DAVIS HEAPS RIDICULE ON G.O.P.'S AID TO BUSINESS

Republicans Have Floundered Helplessly in Effort to Keep Prosperity Promise, He Says.

ADMINISTRATION "INCOMPETENT"

Democrat Points Out at Indianapolis That Vaunted Guardian of Business Has Made Mess of It.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 11.—John W. Davis, in a speech here tonight, riddled the claim of the Republican party that it is safe for business. He declared that the three and a half years of the Harding-Coolidge administration were strewn with broken promises in the field of business legislation, and that, if this condition were allowed to continue, the way would be prepared for a spirit of rebellion against the Constitution and the protecting laws of social order and business safety. The slogan of the campaign, Davis asserted, should be, not "Coolidge or chaos" but "Coolidge, then chaos."

10,000 in Cheering Crowd.

Davis spoke at the Cadle Tabernacle, which was crowded beyond its seating capacity of 10,000. Senator Ralston acted as chairman of the meeting. Introducing the candidate, Senator Ralston described him as a great exemplar of progressive principles. Ralston set off a rousing demonstration with the name of Woodrow Wilson, and drew frequent applause as he eulogized Davis and declared that "Indiana Democrats have their coats off and are working courageously."

When Davis stood up to speak, the crowd arose with him and cheered lustily. He had the audience with him from the start. They approved his characterization of Indiana as a State in which politics is never adjourned. A tribute to the personality and policies of Wilson was underscored with a tumult of cheering and handclapping. Davis said that Secretary Hughes had narrowed the issue to the question: "Shall Calvin Coolidge be continued in office?" "No! No! No!" came in volleys from all over the immense hall. "Are the clerks of the election present?" asked Davis, and the crowd cheered and laughed.

When Coolidge Sat in Cabinet.

Davis referred to the fact that Mr. Coolidge, as vice president, sat in the Senate when Kendrick and La Follette brought the naval oil leases to public attention. He recalled the praise heaped on the Harding policy of "lifting the vice president out of insignificance," and admitting him to the Cabinet and shield," he commented, "without taking the other."

Davis expressed the belief that the elastic section of the tariff act, giving the President the power to change rates, violated the Constitutional provision which rests the taxing power in Congress.

The audience applauded a suggestion that the President should "clear himself in the matter of the Tariff Commission's sugar report, which he has had on his desk since the end of July. There was a roar of laughter when he referred to the Republican candidate for the governorship of New York as "once an Assistant Secretary of Navy—and also his father's son."

Cheers shook the hall when Davis declared for the protection and safeguarding of religious freedom against any possible evasion. Cries of "Good." "You're all right, John." "Hit 'em again," "Atta boy, John," cut through the din of applause. Many got to their feet and there was a great waving of hats and handkerchiefs. The audience was keyed to a high pitch of enthusiasm by the fighting quality of the speech, and, when Davis concluded it, gave him an ear-splitting ovation.

Its Favorite Panacea.

Davis asked his hearers to contrast Democratic measures for the promotion of business, such as the Federal Reserve Act, with the lack of Republican achievement. After the Republicans came into power, he said, there was a series of conferences that produced nothing. This state of affairs was like "the confused buzzing about that goes

SARAZEN BEATS EPINARD IN THIRD INTERNATIONAL RACE BEFORE CROWD OF 50,000

Vanderbilt Colt Leads French Champion by Length and a Half—Mad Play Third.

By GEORGE H. DALEY,
Sports Editor of the New York World.

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 11.—Epinard, idol of France and acclaimed the greatest horse of all Europe until his defeat by Galahad III, is thrice beaten.

Once again he ran second. Sarazen, racing truly and boldly in the colors of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt II, galloped to a sensational and commanding victory in the third International Special here today, in the remarkable time of two minutes and four-fifths of a second for the mile and a quarter, and earned the princely reward of $55,000. The son of Hightime-Rushbox won easily by a length and a half, while Epinard, Harry F. Sinclair's Mad Play and C. B. Head's Altawood finished heads apart behind him in a furious drive.

The winner was acclaimed by 50,000 men and women, seemingly lost for the moment to all reason and suddenly gripped by wild hysteria. Hats filled the air, boys turned cartwheels in the infield, everybody, on tiptoe the better to see the struggle, shouted and screamed. It was the loosening of emotions. Epinard was the favorite, a hot one. Princess Doreen and Chilhowee were the favored ones of Kentucky, but the shouts for the battling horses suddenly centered in one wild outburst for the winner of such a race.

Beaten on Merits.

Epinard was beaten on his merits this time, and so were the owners. The French horse was in a rather tight pocket rounding the far turn, but it was a pocket which could have been avoided if he had been able to move when Sarazen moved at the end of six furlongs. As it was, it cost little or nothing, as Haynes stuck to the rail and never lost an inch of ground. He had plenty of room, too, in the stretch and, while he fought on gamely, he was not good enough to wear down the flying winer.

In truth, Epinard was lucky to be second. Mad Play and Altewood crashed together half-way down the stretch, from which both suffered. Except for this, Epinard would have been fourth, not second.

Sarazen broke on his toes to a good start and George Babin dropped him in behind Chilhowee, which rushed off to force a fast pace. The jockey rated him patiently, lapped for a time with Epinard about a length and a half back of Chilhowee for six furlongs, and then, moving up smoothly, took command. It was no hasty or impulsive move. Sarazen was so full of run that Babin let him go, but kept a steadying hold, and the 3-year-old turned into the stretch a length in front, with every other horse driving to keep up. So it was to the end.

Just "Coasted Home."

Babin, who rode a perfect race, was not called on to ride him out. "After shaking him up at the head of the stretch, he just coasted home," said the jockey after the race.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, in her box in the Clubhouse, found it difficult to restrain her emotions. She stood up with all the others and half whispered to those about her: "He will win; he must win." He did win and as hundreds crowded about to offer congratulations she said, again and again, "I'm proud to win such a race with such a horse." Then turning to Max Hirsch, her trainer, she smilingly said: "And you, too, much of the credit is yours."

Then came a call for her to go to the judges' stand to receive the handsome trophy and, attended by Hirsch, she stood up before the vast crowd and received it from the hands of J. N. Camden, president of the Kentucky Jockey Club.

Hirsch also received a stopwatch as a trophy.

As Babin took Sarazen back to the scales, a huge bunch of American beauty roses was thrust in his arms and a floral blanket was thrown over the withers of the horse, to the accompaniment of cheers.

The jockey was born in New Orleans and began life as a copy-boy in a newspaper office. He has ridden his way to a place among the leading jockeys by hard, earnest, steady work. He showed no nervousness when he gave Sarazen a gallop and short breeze this morning.

May Have Set World Mark.

Those who have contended that Sarazen, because of his breeding, would never go a distance of ground with the best were confounded. He not only went a distance of ground today, but covered the mile and a quarter in what should stand as a world's record time. Whiskbroom II is credited with this mark at 2:00 flat, but all trainers disagreed with the official

350 POUNDS OF DIAMONDS FOR SALE BY SOVIET

World Boycott Planned Against Confiscated Gems, Says Russian Newspaper.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 11—The Russian newspaper, Rul, printed in Berlin, published the statement today that Soviet Ambassador Krestinsky is handling the sale of 330 pounds of diamonds which were confiscated by the Soviet Government and which are being sold through agents in Paris, New York and London.

It is stated that a large number of diamonds are being smuggled into the United States through Canada by women employes. According to the Russian newspaper, the diamonds which are for sale are held in the Kremlin at Moscow and are released only on the signatures of five members of the political bureau of the Communists party.

The Rul declares that international jewelers and diamond merchants are uneasy concerning the jewels in Soviet hands, and that the Belgian and Dutch Chambers of Commerce have already boycotted gems bought from Soviet agents. Negotiations are in progress, it is said, to effect a similar boycott throughout the world. The quantity of diamonds in the possession of the Soviet is so great, the newspaper estimated, that it will require a decade to sell them unless they are sacrificed.

ROBBERS KILL MESSENGER ON TRAIN, FLEE WITH $40,000

Bank Employe Also Wounded When Five Men Attack Pair in Pennsylvania Mountains.

By the Associated Press.

EBENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 11.—Five armed robbers today shot and killed James Gorman, an American Railway Express messenger, seriously wounded Joseph Davis, a bank messenger, and escaped with a $40,000 mine payroll at a remote spot on the Cambria & Indiana Railway, near here.

Sheriff L. M. Keller of Cambria County organized a posse here and went in pursuit.

The robbers boarded a gasoline-propelled combination coach of the railway, a subsidiary of the New York Central, at Rexis. They took seats immediately behind the messengers. As the car made its way toward a pass in the mountains, the motorman was ordered to stop the car, and as he applied the brakes the robbers opened fire on the messengers. They then gathered up two satchels, containing the money, and escaped in an automobile, waiting nearby.

3 BABOONS AND 2 CHIMPANZEES TO JOIN FOREST PARK ZOO

Other Arrivals Expected Soon Are Two Orang-utans, a Tigress and Cheetah.

Two chimpanzees and three large baboons are expected to arrive at the Forest Park zoo today in the course of increasing the simian population there to fill the new monkey house to be opened in December. They will not be placed on exhibition immediately. They are natives of Africa and were obtained through the Hagenbecks at Hamburg, Germany.

A pair of Norwegian musk oxen for the zoo reached New York Thursday, where they will be held 10 days under the hoof-and-mouth disease regulations.

Other arrivals expected at San Francisco next week are two orang-utans from Borneo, a tigress from India, an Indian chetah (a leopard-like beast), and some rare tropical birds.

Car Ownership Not Compulsory

No, not in the strictly legal sense. But cars are so necessary to greater happiness, better health, to business needs and broader education, that they are, thus far, virtually compulsory.

Do not these advantages exercise a kind of compulsion to you to buy? Are you hesitating on account of cost?

The outlay can be very modest. Consult the classified "Automobiles" columns to find how inexpensive is the cost of a good used car.

NURSE ENDS HER LIFE IN FORMER EMPLOYER'S HOME

Miss Irene Hammond, 39, Forces Way Into University City Apartment of Dr. Eugene J. Neville.

BODY DISCOVERED IN THE BATHTUB

Had Shot Self — "You Turned Me Down After 20 Years," Says Note She Left.

After forcing her way into the apartment of her former employer, Dr. Eugene J. Neville, at 6677 Washington avenue, University City, and writing a note charging him with putting her aside after 20 years of association, Miss Irene Hammond, 39 years old, shot and killed herself Friday night.

Dr. Neville and his wife were visiting at the time in Chicago, where their two adult sons reside.

The note was addressed to "Gene" and signed "Irene." The writer complained "You turned me down after 20 years" and asked, "Why, oh why, didn't you give me a chance?" Parts of it were incoherent and illegible.

One Bullet Through Body.

Miss Hammond's body was found at 11:45 p. m. One bullet had passed through the body, piercing the heart. The revolver which discharged the bullet was on top of the body. Death apparently had occurred some time after 10 p. m.

A few minutes before 10 o'clock, Mrs. Neville, at the home of a son in Chicago, received a long-distance telephone message from Miss Hammond in which the latter said she understood the Neville apartment had been robbed, but nothing of importance taken. Miss Hammond then hung up.

Mrs. Neville telephoned at once to F. P. Storm, 4920 McPherson avenue, a real estate dealer, with whom the keys to the Neville apartment had been left for safekeeping when Dr. and Mrs. Neville went to Chicago last month. Storm, accompanied by two policemen, went to the apartment.

Pane of Glass Broken.

Opening the front door with a key, they passed inside and discovered a pane of glass in a rear window had been broken, to permit entrance, and had been carefully replaced from the inside. Portions of a light meal were on the kitchen table. In a bedroom a woman's shoes and stockings were on the floor and a pillow and coverlet had been removed from a bed.

The bathroom door was locked from the inside. Kicking it open, Storm and the police came upon the body of Miss Hammond, fully clothed except for the shoes and stockings. She had knelt down in the bathtub, after spreading the pillow and covelet underneath her and had fired the revolver, slumping backward as she died.

How long she had been in the house was not determined, but it is thought she ascended a rear stairway to the third floor apartment after dusk and entered through the window. About 8 o'clock, Mrs. Victor Schelp, who occupies another apartment in the same building, saw lights in the supposedly unoccupied apartment and summoned police. The lights were out when the police arrived and they went away without investigation, assuming Mrs. Schelp merely had seen reflections.

Place Not Robbed.

The apartment had not been robbed, Miss Hammond's report that it was, being made, presumably, with the expectation that police would be sent to the apartment and would find her body. No one in the six-family apartment heard the shot that killed her.

Marks of a hypodermic needle and other evidence of addiction to the use of narcotics were found on Miss Hammond's body. The body was removed to an undertaker's parlor at 5966 Easton avenue.

The inquest into Miss Hammond's death was begun last night at Coroner Bracy's office, 6118 Easton avenue, and was continued until Monday night, after several witnesses were heard.

Mis Hammond had been employed as secretary and nurse at the offices of Dr. Neville in the Wall Building, 3902 Olive street, prior to his retirement a few months ago. A cousin, who conducts a restaurant at 6272 Delmar boulevard, told police Miss Hammond had worked for Dr. Neville for about 20 years and lately had seemed despondent and cynical. She was estranged from her family and was not known to have any permanent address. Her last visit

MAJ. HART LONELY WHILE WAITING FOR MRS. HALL-QUEST

Suit of Fomer British Army Officer's Wife for Divorce to Be Heard Monday.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Maj. Frederick W. Hart, for love of whom Mrs. Shirley Knox Hall-Quest left her husband, Dr. Alfred Lawrence Hall-Quest, Pittsburg University dean, who divorced her, has been found here working in his accountant' office.

Mrs. Hall-Quest, he said, has left Chicago while he has remained here.

"She is nearby, though, and we shall be reunited and married as soon as my wife obtains her divorce in Cincinnati," the former British Army officer was quoted as saying.

He refused to say where Mrs. Hall-Quest had gone, but said he knew how to find her. Neither has been to Minneapolis, he said.

"Our plan for the future cannot be very definite," he explained. "We are just waiting—just waiting for the end."

"The end," he indicated, was the outcome of the divorce suit instituted in Cincinnati by Mrs. Hart, which will be heard there Monday.

ZANNI REACHES TOKIO; FURTHER FLIGHT UNCERTAIN

Suggestion Made That He Return to Europe and Cross Atlantic Next Year.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Oct. 11. — Maj. Pedro Zanni, Argentine airman flying around the world, will be decorated with the Sixth Order of the Rising Sun by the Japanese Government, the Minister of Communications announced today after the arrival of Zanni at Kasumigaura, the Tokio air base, from Kushimoto.

The daring aviator landed at Kasumigaura this morning from Kushimoto in 5 hours 37 minutes, completing the Shanghai-Tokio wing of his flight without a mishap. Kasumigaura is the air base for Tokio.

"I cannot say whether I will attempt to make the transpacific air flight at present," said Maj. Zanni tonight.

Maj. Zanni conferred with the best informed Japanese airmen. The opinion was expressed outside the conference that Maj. Zanni, after consultation with the Japanese, would realize the futility of attempting the trans-Pacific trip at this season. The suggestion is under consideration that Maj. Zanni return to Europe completing his cruise to South America by way of the Atlantic ocean in the spring of 1925.

Maj. Zanni was a jaunty figure when he climbed out of his plane attired in a natty white linen suit and a cork helmet.

SON'S ARRESTS GET FATHER, A POLICEMAN, INTO TROUBLE

Sergt. Drain to Face Board On Charge He Used Abusive Language to Superiors.

Desk Sergeant Edgar Drain of Mounted District is under charges because of his excessive zeal in trying to keep his son out of jail. Technically he is charged with using profane and abusive language to superior officers. The real trouble is caused by the frequency with which his son is arrested as a suspect by other members of the police force.

Young Drain lives with his father at 2311 Ann avenue, and his father admits he does not work. Frequently when the Soulard police district round up suspects they pick up young Drain. He has never been prosecuted. Such was the situation Monday night when the son was lodged in a cell and booked "suspected of robbery."

It is charged that Sergt. Drain thrice used the word "hell" while "fronting" for his son by phone. Lieut. James Moran of Soulard quotes him as saying, "Why the hell can't you look up the captain's number?" and "It's a hell of a captain who don't leave his phone number at the station." Capt. Kirk asserts Drain exclaimed, "To hell with you," and hung up abruptly when he refused to act on young Drain's behalf at midnight.

Drain was not relieved from duty, as is the usual practice, but he must explain before the Police Board at its next meeting. He denies he used profanity.

DAWES TO BE IN ST. LOUIS FOR TWO HOURS TONIGHT

Charles G. Dawes, Republican candidate for the vice presidency, will be in St. Louis tonight for two hours between trains. He is going to Louisville, Ky.

His party will arrive at Union Station at 9:15 p. m. and will leave at 11:15 p. m.

Arrangements have been completed for Dawes to speak at the Coliseum here. Dr. E. B. Clements, Republican National Committeeman from Missouri, said that the date had not been fixed definitely, but it will be in all probability during the week of Oct. 26.

GIANT DIRIGIBLE ZR-3 LEAVES FRIEDRICHSHAFEN ON FLIGHT TO AMERICA

POTHIER FREED, ROSENBLUTH NOT TO FACE TRIAL

Jury Acquits Ex-Sergeant of Cronkhite Murder After Deliberating Hour and Half.

NO SURPRISE TO U. S. ATTORNEYS

Government Felt Two Years Ago Evidence Was Insufficient, Federal Official Says.

By the Associated Press.

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 11.—Roland R. Pothier, former sergeant-bugler of the 213th Engineers, was acquitted today by a jury in Federal Court of the charge of murdering Maj. Alexander B. Cronkhite on the Camp Lewis military reservation, Oct. 25, 1918. The case was given to the jury this afternoon.

The jury deliberated for an hour and a half. One ballot was taken shortly after the jury retired at 2:45 p. m., showing the jurors in accord on acquittal. After discussing various phases of the case, the jurors decided that they had no evidence to justify conviction and notified the bailiff at 4:15 that they had reached a verdict.

Capt. Robert Rosenbluth, jointly accused with Pothier for the alleged murder, will not be tried, according to Thomas P. Revelle, United States District Attorney. Rosenbluth's trial was set for Oct. 22 and the grand jury indictment against him will be dismissed on motion of the Government, Revelle said.

Government Not Surprised.

The verdict came as no surprise to the Government, it was said. Revelle declared before the verdict was returned that the Government realized that its case against the defendant was not strong. In fact, the question of dismissing the indictments was raised shortly after the grand jury returned its findings two years ago, but Attorney-General Daugherty ruled that, having been placed under a cloud by indictments, the defendants were entitled to have their names cleared by a jury, Revelle said.

It developed today through records in the office of United States Marshal Benn, that Major-General Adelbert Cronkhite, father of the slain man, who was a moving spirit in the investigations of the last six years, had been subpenaed by the Government as a witness more than 30 days ago but has never answered the summons. Several telegrams have been sent to Gen. Cronkhite by the Federal authorities within the last three weeks and the only response received was about 10 days ago to the effect that the General had misunderstood the nature of the summons.

Pothier showed no emotion either before or after his acquittal. Asked about his intentions and how soon he would return to his wife and baby in Central Falls, R. I., he replied that he would do nothing until he had made arrangements with the Government for transportation.

Pothier and Rosenbluth were arrested in Providence, R. I., and New York, respectively, in 1921, after the dead major's father, Maj. Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, had caused, by personal inquiries and pleas to authorities, a reopening of the case. An army board of inquiry, which met just after the killing in 1921, decided that Maj. Cronkhite had shot himself accidentally.

Father Reopens Inquiry.

Maj. Gen. Cronkhite was in France at the time, commander of the 18th Division. In the investigations he made after returning to America, he charged that Army authorities, at the instance of higher government officials had "hushed up" the matter. An inquiry by the Department of Justice followed these charges, and Pothier's and Rosenbluth's arrests followed.

Then came a long legal battle over the question of whether the State or Federal courts had jurisdiction in the case. This was carried to the Supreme Court, which

U. R. PASSENGERS FOR QUARTER 4,576,286 FEWER THAN IN 1923

Total Decline for Six Months 8,432-398, Number of Cars Being Reduced Because of Bus Competition.

The report of the United Railways for the quarter ending Sept. 30, filed yesterday with the City Registrar, shows there was a falling off of 4,576,286 in the number of passengers carried, as compared with the same period last year. The total for the past three months was 63,282,885 and for the corresponding months last year it was 67,859,171.

For the quarter ending June 30 there was a decrease of 3,856,112, compared to the corresponding quarter last year, making the total decline for the six months 8,432,398. The decrease in the past quarter was 720,174 greater than in the previous quarter.

The report shows the beginning of curtailment in the number of cars operated, as Manager Perkins predicted would be necessitated by the falling off of patronage, attributed to bus competition. The average for week days in the past quarter was 1322 cars, against 1394 the corresponding quarter last year.

ORLANDO, Fla., Oct. 11.—With the sun beginning to shine in this section for the first time in several days, Central Florida from here to the east coast is recovering from one of the worst rainstorms in its history. The total loss at Daytona, the center of the trouble, in property damage was placed at more than $1,000,000. More than four feet of water continues to stand in the main streets of New Smyrna and two feet deep in some sections here. The total rainfall was almost a foot and a half during the last 72 hours. OVER NEW YORK BY WEDNESDAY, COMMANDER SAYS

Ship Heads for Belfort, Where Weather Reports Will Be Awaited to Determine Route.

TOO MUCH WEIGHT CAUSED DELAY

Gasoline and Baggage Unloaded — Would-Be Passenger With Rifle Arrested Near Hangar.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 12 (Sunday).—The dirigible ZR-3 started on her transatlantic voyage to Lakehurst, N. J., at 6:30 o'clock this morning. The airship headed in the direction of Belfort.

The dirigible will await weather reports at the French town of Belfort before it is decided whether the northen or southern route is to be taken.

By SAMUEL SPEWACK,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 11.—The American experts here were agreed the ZR-3 could have sailed today had she been taken out of her hanger in the cool of the dawn instead of two hours later. Temperature affects the lifting power, and the thermometer rose so rapidly at 8 o'clock this morning that Dr. Hugo Eckener, her commander, reluctantly postponed the start another day.

His decision came as an anti-climax. Thousands of visitors from all parts of Germany stormed the flying field to see the take-off. Relatives of the crew, weeping and cheering, showered the officers with flowers.

The four Americans who will make the trip, Capt. Steele, Commanders Klein and Kraus and Maj. Kennedy, had already gone on board with their luggage. A band had gathered to give the big dirigible a musical farewell and various officials had speeches all prepared. And then nothing happened.

By the Associated Press.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 11.—Dr. Hugo Eckener, Zeppelin director in charge of the dirigible ZR-3, upon the receipt of weather reports which indicated that the North Atlantic was clearing, declared: "The weather man promises a cool morning and we think we have the hoodoo baffled at last. If all goes well we will be at over New York City early Wednesday."

The police this afternoon detained an unidentified man, dressed in hunting clothes and carrying a rifle, who was found loitering around the ZR-3's hangar. He had announced his determination to go to the United States aboard the dirigible, or, failing in that, to shoot Dr. Eckener. The police would not reveal the man's name, but said he is a German.

The start of the Zeppelin from Friedrichshafen had been announced for this morning, but was suddenly postponed at the last minute.

While no formal statement was forthcoming from the management of the Zeppelin works, it was apparent that Dr. Eckener had discovered that the ZR-3 was loaded with more weight than it could comfortably carry.

Even taking out a ton and a half of gasoline failed to lighten the ship enough so she would float as she should.

As every ounce of gasoline may be required in the event of rough

COOLIDGE DEFENDS PUBLIC'S RIGHT TO REGULATE TRADE

President Says People Will Keep Ownership of Property as Preliminary to Rule Over Government.

'WANT SUPERVISORY POWERS TO SELVES'

Declares Laws Aimed at Control of Monopolies Have Not Been Employed for Destruction.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Working co-operation between business and the public "in accord with the dictates of common sense," was held up tonight by President Coolidge in an address by radio to employes of the H. J. Heinz Co., gathered at banquets in various cities to celebrate the anniversary of the founding of the business, as the "true and practical ideal" wished by the Government.

The supremacy of the Government has been the main motive dominating the economic and political development of recent years, he said, adding that it has brought the public interest into the equation of modern industrial and commercial relations.

But the Government, Mr. Coolidge declared, prefers to let business go its own way, "so long as that is the right way; so long as it is the way of honest and genuine service to the real public interest." The Government, he continued, must be the servant "of the public welfare and the creation of an informed and seasoned public opinion."

No Domination by Privilege.

"It cannot be dominated by any privilege," the President warned. "It cannot be subservient to any private advantage. It must always represent the public. With the hearty sympathy of both business and the people we have made a long advance toward such standards. There are encouraging signs of readiness to go farther on the same way. The Government will surely be prepared to give all encouragement in such a program. For, by these methods, only shall we bring about a proper balance, a secure and lasting adjustment of the supreme individual interest, by bringing it into harmony with the highest consideration of the national welfare."

The people of America will keep control and ownership of their property, Mr. Coolidge insisted, "as a preliminary to the maintenance of their supremacy over their Government."

"They know," he added, "that when the Government begins to own property, it begins to own people. They want all these powers in their own hands."

Subordinated to Public Interest.

It is the firm policy of the American people, the President declared, to insist that business forms and methods shall be subordinated to the public interest. In this regard, he said, public authority as represented by the Government has taken up the attitude of "moderation and reasonableness in dealing with these difficult and complex problems."

"Laws aimed at curbing and regulating monopolies have been employed for control and regulation, not destruction," he explained. "It is no part of public policy, as the American people now conceive it, to tear down legitimate and useful business."

Exemplifying the changed attitude of the public and interests in their new relations, is the changed policy toward consolidations in railroads, Mr. Coolidge said.

Government's Power Recognized.

Pointing that the public has now sanctioned a consolidation in the railroads, by act of Congress, by compulsion if necessary, he declared, "there is gratifying indication that this new program is going to be accepted and put into effect, without resort to compulsion."

"The change in policy toward consolidation of railroads," he continued, "is warranted by the change in policy toward operation. The Government's power and its right to control and regulate the charges of public facilities is now fully recognized. Through the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Government determines when and what terms securities of carrying corporations may be issued. Within the constitutional prohibition against confiscation, it fixes their rates, determines the income they may earn and demands from them for railroad use any surplus beyond the fixed rate of legal return. The public demands service of the railroads without confiscation, but at fair and reasonable rates fixed by the Government."

Cannot Harm Public Interest.

Referring again to the new business standards and the Government's position, the President declared the ideal now is that neither concentration nor competition shall be permitted to the extent of injuring the public interest.

"Whether a business unit is good or bad," he said, "is to be determined, not by its size, but by its practices. No business is allowed to set aside the law of supply and demand, the rules of open bargaining and fair competition. The supervisory and regulatory power of society, exercised through the process of government, is brought in as the supreme authority. No business may hold itself above consideration of the public interest and recognition of public authority. Business is required to adjust itself to this view of its public relations. If it will not fully and voluntarily adopt itself to these condition, then they will be imposed upon it by the force of law.

"That, it seems to me, is substantially the present-day attitude of society toward the relations of business and Government. It is pretty generally accepted as a safe and proper rule, albeit there are infractions from time to time. But the policy is fixed and both business and the people have generally acquiesced in it. Probably we shall never attain to perfection in its administration, but we are progressing.

Step Toward Industrial Plan.

Business itself, has come to recognize the soundness of this rule and the absolute necessity of adherence to it. This attitude marks a long step toward industrial peace and economic stability. Powerful factors in the business world were for a time loathe to abandon anything of their complete independence. They protested the whole theory of a right to interfere with their proceedings. Some of them made it necessary for the Government to invoke extreme measures before they would be convinced. But now, at last, they have accepted the doctrine that the public right must be considered and must be served.

"Not only that but, business with quite impressive unanimity has admitted that the attitude of the public was correct and justifiable. I think we are warranted in feeling that the greatly preponderant share of business is entirely sincere in its conversion to the new view. A change has come over its entire attitude toward this set of questions. It has accepted the public's right of regulation, not grudgingly and with reservations, but frankly and openly."

REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN FUND PASSES $1,000,000 MARK

But Party Needs More, Chairman Butler Says—Borah Committee to Begin Investigation.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Chairman William M. Butler said today that contributions to the Republican national campaign fund up to Oct. 1 totaled $1,095,000. "I am ready for the fund investigation," he said. "The national committee has been operating on a strictly business basis and we have vouchers and receipts for all disbursements. All accounts are audited and we operate on a budget plan. The committee needs more money as expenses are increasing as the campaign progresses."

The source of the contributions was not indicated.

Painting a halo over the committee, the chairman said the limitation of campaign contributions to $1000, proclaimed by Chairman Hays in 1920, but not strictly observed, was not adopted. A few contributions of as much as $10,000 each have been accepted. Butler is more interested in the motives of the contributor than in the amount. If he is satisfied that the motive is good he would accept almost any amount, although he would not allow a few men to pay all the expenses, but if the motive appeared bad he would not accept the contribution whatever the amount.

He said he had letters indicating that labor organizations supporting Senator Robert M. La Follette were making assessments on their members for contributions. He said one letter showed that the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America was requiring its members to contribute $1 each to the La Follette campaign fund under threat of being called before the executive board if they failed to donate.

Borah Calls for Reports to Committee This Week.

By the Associated Press.

BOISE, Idaho, Oct. 11.—The special Senate committee to investigate political campaign expenditures will meet in Chicago Wednesday or Thursday of next week, according to Senator William E. Borah, chairman of the committee, who wired the three chairmen of the National Committee, yesterday, requesting "that all facts touching campaign contributions, both as to contributors and amounts, be available to the committee."

All Chairmen Summoned.

The messages were directed to Clem L. Shaver, Democratic National Committee, Hotel Belmont, New York City; John M. Nelson, national manager, La Follette-Wheeler Progressive headquarters, Morrison Hotel, Chicago, and William M. Butler, Republican National Committee, Wrigley Building, Chicago. Information from Senator Shipstead that he cannot meet with the committee before Oct. 20 caused Borah to send the following telegram to Senator La Follette today:

"Shipstead advises me he cannot meet with committee before Oct. 20. Wish you could prevail upon him to meet with us not later than Oct. 15 or 16 at Chicago. Think he ought to be there."

Borah also wired the United States Marshal at Chicago today making inquiries as to the possibility of obtaining rooms in the Federal Building for the hearings of the committee. He leaves for Chicago Sunday night.

NAVY SPEED PLANE CAPSIZES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—The F-2-W, a navy high-speed seaplane, today plunged to the bottom of the Delaware River off Fort Mifflin while on a test flight under guidance of Lieut. A. W. Gorton, who escaped from the cockpit as the plane dived beneath the water, and swam to a nearby tugboat. He was uninjured.

"The plane was tail heavy," he said, after being rescued. "It went into a right turn. I throttled the motor and was able to bring the plane around. As I did, she headed toward the water, porpoised and dove straight downward."

The F-2-W was designed for a speed of 250 miles an hour, with a motor of 150 horse-power. The plane had metal wings.

BIG DEMAND FROM PUBLIC FOR GERMAN BONDS

Wall Street Rushed by Prospective Customers Who Beg for Share With Money in Hand.

By Leased Wire From New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Wall street banking houses for the first time in their history were crowded today with pospective customers, most of whom never before had seen the inside of an international banking institution, who begged with money in their hands for a share in the $200,000,000 German loan, to be floated Tuesday.

At the offices of Blair & Co., typical of the financial district in general, clerks were busy from morning until night telling the public that subscriptions could not be received from private individuals, but must come in the regular way though accredited dealers in bonds.

Investors, it was evident, had formed the impression not knowing Wall Street methods, that German bonds could be purchased over the counter like groceries, and many could not understand why investment banking procedure should be different from savings banks or national routine.

Oversubscriptions Indicated.

J. P. Morgan & Co., head of the syndicate of more than 300 banks in al parts of the country participating in the loan, again announced that subscriptions would not be reecived from members of the combination until the books open Tuesday morning. Reports continue to indicate, at the same time, that dealers will turn in orders aggregating $1,000,000,000 for the United States alone, and that vigorous pruning will be necessary in the allotment of bonds.

Indications multiply that the German loan, to be put out at 92, will sell at a premium shortly after listing on the New York stock exchange. Speculators naturally would like to take advantage of this practical certainty, but the Morgan syndicate apparently has closed the door to them. Bonds will be sold only to accredited members of the Morgan group and every bond so handled will be labeled as to destination.

That a premium will be seen is evidenced by the action of the Austrian loan last year. This bond issue, put out at 90, quickly sold on the stock exchange above 91 and this year passed 97. Of late it has been declining to the level of the offering price of the German business, for the reason that the German bonds will be similar in setup and conformation, necessary from a common sense standpoint. Naturally, if Austrian bonds continued to sell above 92, holders would take a profit and shift to the German loan at the first opportunity.

Principals in the Syndicate.

Official announcement of the financing came from J. P. Morgan & Co. at noon today. The principal members of the Morgan offering syndicate, with which hundreds of other banks are allied, include Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Guaranty Co. of New York, Bankers' Trust Co. of New York, Harris, Forbes & Co., Lee, Higginson & Co., Kidder, Peabody & Co., and Dillon, Read & Co.

Full information as to the safeguards protecting the bond issue will not be released by J. P. Morgan & Co. until the financing is offered to the public. This official data probably will appear in Tuesday morning's papers.

Morgan Statement.

J. P. Morgan & Co., in a formal statement, stated in part:

"The proceeds of the American portion of the loan, together with the portions to be offered in varying allotments in Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy, Switzerland, Holland, Sweden and Germany, are to be used to make operative the plan of the first committee of experts appointed by the reparation commission, popularly described as the Dawes plan, with the object both of insuring currency stability in Germany and of financing essential deliveries in kind during the preliminary period of economic rehabilitation.

"The issue will bear the title 'German external loan, 1924, 7 per cent gold bonds.' The bonds will be dated Oct. 15, 1924, will mature in 25 years, will bear 7 per cent interest and will be offered to the public at 92 and interest."

The dollar bonds will be listed on the New York Stock Exchange. The full details of the loan will not be made known until Tuesday, but it was learned today the proceeds will be used as a gold reserve for the new bank set up under the Dawes plan and sent to Germany as fast as they are needed. The bonds carry sinking fund provisions, which are said to be sufficient to retire the issue at maturity.

"Guarantee of Conduct."

While the German loan does not carry the guarantee of several nations, as did that recently granted to Austria under League of Nations supervision, the protocol in London agreement whereby the principal nations concerned recognize the priority of the loan over all other obligations, was described by one banker as a "guarantee of conduct."

on in the beehive without a queen."

Of the new officeholders who were installed, he said that the majority were untrained, some were corrupt and many were hampered "by the substitution of partisan advantage for the business welfare of the country." As a last resort, he said, the administration turned to its favorite panacea, the protective tariff, and called upon all to "fall down before this golden calf and rise free of their burdens."

Citing statistics on bank failures under the Harding-Coolidge administration, Davis said that figures of this sort were more eloquent than the "voodoos' hymns" sung in praise of the protective tariff.

It was in order to divert attention from this "pitiable record," Davis said, that Republican spokesmen were pretending to see a grave menace to the Constitution in the La Follette movement. He pointed out a number of differences between the Democratic and the Republican party, one of them being "the difference of $200,000,000 in the profits that Sinclair and Doheny hoped for from their oil leases."

Republican Claims.

Davis said in part: "It has long been the claim of the Republican spokesmen that the Republican party is the trustworthy guardian of sound business activities that make for the general welfare of the whole country. They have attempted to support this claim by deprecating the worth of Democratic measures whenever it was possible to get a hearing from the public and by ignoring those Democratic measures for the safeguarding and promoting of business whose worth was so evident that attack upon them would have reacted against those who made it. Such great far-reaching, constructive acts of the Democratic party has, for example, the Federal Reserve Act, are not open to attack.

The object of Republican speakers, therefore, has been to conceal from the country the true source of such measures. In like manner, all that is praiseworthy in the revenue act of 1924 was achieved under the Democratic leadership and by Democratic votes. Republican speakers, however, are now prone to ignore the work done in this field by the Democrats and to claim even that measure as an achievement of the present administration.

A False Impression.

"The claims and assertions of the Republican press and Republican speakers have been so persistent, so loud, and have reached so far, amongst all classes of our peope that they have had a great and almost trgic effect in creating a false impression. When that party took over the Government in 1921, its promises were truly vociferous that carried through by Democratic votes?

"It is to the Republican regulation, disposition or management of our merchant marine that we are to look for a display of their vaunted business sagacity and of economical operations? Surely, if results mean anything, it is seldom in all history that a vast business has ever been subjected to a control so planless, fluctuating, costly and tragically demoralizing as the Republican management of the merchant marine.

Desert-Like Record.

"Turn where we will, to mining, railroads, labor, banking, the conservation of our natural resources, or to any other branch of producing and distributing activity, and during the last three and one-half years, where do we see in the field of business legislation and reform aught else than a vast and unwholesome desert broken at great intervals by a few oases that Democratic votes were able to create? Can we be surprised that such a record has given strength to all the forces of unrest and discontent? What could do more than four more years of vapid promise and misgovernment to prepare the way in this country for a spirit of rebellion against the Constitution and the protecting laws of social order and business safety? The slogan which the Republican press has recently been attempting to make popular should be stated not as an alternative but as a sequence. It should not be 'Coolidge or chaos' but 'Coolidge then chaos.'

Three and one-half years ago the Republican administration took office. Heedless and helpless and rudderless, it was utterly incompetent to fulfill the promise it had made, to stabilize business conditions and restore the feeling of security that is indispensable for honest and genuine prosperity. There were conferences on unemployment; there were long discussions about trade associations, and there were appeals to the states and municipalities.

Confused Buzzing About.

"There was a commission appointed to investigate the coal industry, commissioners to investigate agriculture, and a score of futile inquiries of every sort and character. There was all the confused buzzing about that goes on in the beehive without a queen. Experienced and honest officials were dismissed wherever it was possible and a host of new officeholders were installed—most of them untrained, some of them corrupt and many of them hampered measures would at once be taken to bring on a business prosperity such as this country had never known before.

"What these measures were to be we were not told. It was enough that the party of business was in the saddle and whatever was needed that party would provide.

"The ululations of a Republican press and party leaders reached the expectant business world like a steam siren announcing the approach of the millenium. But the business world should have remembered that the whistle does not pull the train. It is not by promises, however loudly shouted, but by achievement that the Republican administration must now be judged.

"What has that administration done to carry out the hopes it held out to business enterprise, to the farmers, the laborers, and all others on whose industrial activities the welfare of our country depends?

No Notable Achievement.

"Do we find any notable achievement in improving our business relations with other countries? On the contrary, there has never been a time when these relations were less satisfactory, and no constructive program leading to stable and permanent betterment of commercial conditions has either been adopted or announced.

"When we find the countries of Central America, Nicaragua, San Salvador and even Haiti—where American influence should normally be strong because it is moral—when we find these countries making special concessions to France from which we are excluded, we should naturally expect our administration to take cognizance of the fact and to take measures to secure for our producers equally favorable terms. I mention this merely as one among many instances of helplessness and neglect.

"Has there been achievement in taxation and the administration of public finances other than that initiated by Democratic thought and in the discharge of their duties by the lack of proper guidance, the absence of a definite program and the substitution of partisan advantage for the business welfare of the country. Did honest labor and honest business get any benefit from all those investigations, discussios, appeals and the general demoralization of the civil service? To ask that question is to answer it.

"In its dizzy confusion the Republican administration had recourse to the one measure which for two generations has been its trusted support. Whatever the troubles of the business world may be, a prohibitive tariff has been the panacea prescribed by the party. That ancient and rusted device was exhumed and polished and set aloft; and laborers and farmers and business men were summoned to leave other gods and come and fall down before this golden calf and rise free of their burdens.

Records Compared.

"What has been the result on business of three years of Republican guardianship? Let us compare the last three years under Wilson with the first three years of the Harding-Coolidge administration. Take bank failures, for instance: In the years 1918, 1919 and 1920, there was a total of 189 bank failures; in the years 1921, 1922 and 1923, a total of 1221, and during the first six months of 1924, a total of 428 banks failed, with liabilities more than double those of the last three years under Wilson. In commercial failures the record is equally striking.

"During the last three years under Wilson there were in the entire country 25,314 failures; during the first three years under Harding and Coolidge, there were 62,048, with liabilities three times the liabilities of those who failed in the Wilson administration, and in the first six months of 1924 there have been 10,725 commercial failures, with liabilities more than half of the total for the entire years of 1918, 1919 and 1920. Figures of this sort are more eloquent than any campaign oratory or the voodoo hymns sung by those who see in a prohibitive tariff the source and origin of American prosperity.

Using a Smoke Screen.

"In order to divert attention from these unpleasant facts and to throw a smoke screen over the pitiable record of the last three and one-half years, Republican spokesmen, headed by President Coolidge, are now going into hysterics over the menace to the Constitution presented by the third party. They are trying to persuade themselves and persuade the country that the proposal put forward by Senator La Follette, that Congress shall have the power to override a decision of the Supreme Court, is the real issue upon which the American people must pass in this campaign. Some people, including myself, have been openly against that suggestion—ancient as it is—long before constitutional patriots like President Coolidge and Gen. Dawes began to be excited about it. I opposed it in 1912, when it was put forward by Theodore Roosevelt.

"I do not remember that either General Dawes or President Coolidge had anything to say about it at that time. But they know, you know and the country knows that the outcry they are making now is a smokescreen pure and simple. They know that, in order to bring such a proposal into the field of practical politics, Progressives under Senator La Follette must first carry the electoral college; second, a two-thirds majority of both branches of Congress; and, third, the legislatures of three-fourths of the states. They know, you know and the country knows that by no possibility can Senator La Follette carry this fall a majority of the electoral college. They know that his party cannot carry a two-thirds majority in either house and all they hope for through their present outcry is to frighten the American people into forgetting the things they have done and left undone.

The Protest Vote.

"Undoubtedly there are many men and women in this country who are not satisfied with the way their Government has been conducted. They wish to register their protest against corruption in office, privilege in legislation and timidity in leadership. They can protest, no doubt, by voting for the progressive ticket, but let them take the may of the United States and ask themselves in soberness what chance there is of such a protest being made effective.

"Those of them who have been Republicans may yield to the mere force of habit and vote the Republican ticket, but how can they hope that their views will prevail against the irreconciable conservatives in both branches of Congress, and against the cautious and purblind conservatism of the Republican nominee.

"What can they hope for more than a continuation in office of a party divided against itself and given over to thaos or retreat? Those, on the other hand, who vote for the Democratic party may do so with the prospect that their votes will count for something; that they will accomplish some result; and they may be assured that the election of a Democratic President and Democratic Congress will mean harmony in action and a forward march.

Difference in Dollars.

"I know there are those who seek to have the country believe that there is no difference between the Democratic and Republican parties or their nominees. I should like to point out the difference of $200,000,000 in the profits that Sinclair and Doheny hoped for from their oil leases, which they would never have gotten under Democratic rule; a difference of nearly $30,000,000 in the condition of the American farmer and the value of his holdings; a difference of $750,000,000 in the proposed ship subsidy; a difference of not less than $2,000,000,000 in excessive prices to the consumer imposed by a Republican tariff; and a difference between wholesale and widespread corruption and administrative honesty.

"When did the Democratic party take campaign money from Sinclair and turn over to him any public property? When did it receive subscriptions from tariff beneficiaries and allow them in return to write their own schedules? Or when did it deliver to other predatory groups the use and control of any governmental agency?"

Nominee Greeted Cordially at Urbana, O., and Richmond, Ind.

Davis began his second Western drive for votes with a rear platform speech this afternoon at Urbana, O., the home town of State Democratic Chairman Tom E. Dye, who accompanied him across the State. He pleased an extremely friendly audience with the prediction of Democratic success in Ohio and the nation at large.

"I believe the American people are deeply concerned about the election," he said. "As to the constant talk of apathy and indifference I have found none of it. The people are thinking about the thing even though they may not be standing on the street corners and speaking about it.

"There are three classes of people in this country. One class says everything is right with our form of government and nothing can be done to improve upon this administration. There is a second class that says everything is wrong with our form of government and everything is hopeless. There is a third class that says the form of government is well enough but the administration of it certainly needs to be improved. I belong to that third class."

The crowd applauded him heartily as the train pulled out.

Third Party Animal.

Davis was cordially greeted at Richmond, Ind., where he made the first scheduled speech of his tour.

Davis was met at the station by a band and given a parade through the town. He found the Richmond auditorium filled to overflowing with as enthusiastic a crowd as he has addressed during the campaign. A cheer leader called for "Three cheers for Davis," and they were given with great heartiness.

Davis said that, while the third party had not officially chosen an animal, he supposed it must be the salamander. "For," he explained, "Gen. Dawes says the party is red hot, and the only animal that can live in red heat is the salamander."

As Davis began lashing out at the Republican record, a voice in the audience boomed: "Davis will do!"

"Well," Davis interpolated, "I am a modest man, but I am constrained to think that that is the opinion of the country."

The sally drew a big cheer.

Davis' attack on the tip-toe diplomacy of the Harding-Coolidge administration was interrupted with frequent applause and cries of: "Good!" and "That's the stuff!"

A promise that, if elected President, he would send American delegates to the proposed world-wide disarmament conference at Geneva was received with vociferous applause.

Crossing Ohio and Indiana the train left in its wake a trail of white cloth caps advertising the Davis candidacy. The caps were distributed from the baggage car at several stations and were seized and put on by many who had come to the train for a glimpse of the candidate.

Repairs to Be Made at San Diego to Two Engines, Radio and Aft Girders.

By the Associated Press.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 11.—Necessity of making repairs to two of the engines and to the radio apparatus, together with work on two aft girders strained slightly during the landing at the North Island naval air station, will delay departure of the dirigible Shenandoah on the flight to Camp Lewis, Wash., until Monday morning, it was announced this afternoon at the station. No hour has been fixed for the start of the flight but it was said that departure would be made as early Monday as possible.

Officers of the Shenandoah stated that the coast would be followed from San Diego to Seattle excepting that the dirigible would veer inland in order to fly over Los Angeles. From San Francisco north the coast is also to be followed and the dirigible will fly over Seattle before going to Camp Lewis, it was said.

Slight damage was done to the Shenandoah when the airship was brought to the ground last night. Officers at North Island stated that one of the rear gondolas of the ship struck the ground slightly but with sufficient force to strain two of the girders. A six-foot hole was torn in the cabin.

The damage, it was said, was not serious, but on account of the mountains to be crossed on the flight to Camp Lewis, it was deemed best to make thorough tests to avoid any possibility of accident.

MAYOR'S STAND ON COURTHOUSE SITE ATTACKED

Plaza Committee Questions Kiel Caustically on Reversing His Opinion in the Matter.

ASKED TO SAY WHO "INFLUENCED" HIM

Adequacy of Fund in Case Broadway Location Is Selected Also Brought Into the Dispute.

The Plaza Courthouse Committee yesterday issued a statement, in the form of a questionnaire, attacking Mayor Kiel's stand in behalf of a Broadway site for the new courthouse.

The Plaza Courthouse Committee is in charge of a campaign for the Twelfth Boulevard Plaza Courthouse site, in the election of Nov. 4. The supporters of a Broadway site brought the matter before the voters, through referendum petitions against the ordinance passed by the Board of Aldermen, fixing the site on the Memorial Plaza.

Members of Plaza Committee.

Present members of the executive board of the Plaza Courthouse Committee, which is to be enlarged, include two members of the Board of Public Service, President Kinsey and Director Cunliff of the Department of Public Welfare. The committee's questionnaire to Mayor Kiel is:

"1. You spoke in the bond issue campaign for the Municipal plaza and used a picture showing the courthouse on the Municipal plaza. You have had that picture under the glass top of your desk in your office ever since. Who influenced you to change your opinion?

"2. Why have you surrendered the interests of the people to special interests?

"3. Why pay $1,500,000 for a city block in a backward district for the new Courthouse, when the city now owns a site in a progressive location?

Sufficiency of Fund Questioned.

"4. Do you not know that if the downtown site proposed by the special interests should be purchased for $1,500,000, the remainder of the $4,000,000 voted by the people for a Courthouse would not build a structure much more than half adequate for the needs of the city?

"5. Do you not realize that such a situation would mean a new bond election to provide additional money, and that in this way the erection of the badly needed Courthouse might easily be delayed indefinitely?

"6. The design of the plaza contemplated a main hall with a soldiers' memorial at one end and the Courthouse at the other. Are you playing fair with the Gold Star mothers, who were responsible for the Memorial project, and with the soldiers and sailors who died in the great war, by proposing to build a public garage opposite to the memorial of their sacrifice?

Asked About Other Bond Matters.

"7. Do you expect to reverse your opinion on other bond issue matters as you have on this? If other special interests decide they want the convention auditorium in another location, will you yield to them also, and wreck the whole carefully worked out plaza plan which the people by their votes approved?

"8. If the people vote to place the Courthouse on Nov. 4, how long will you abide by that decision?"

The committee also made a statement in reply to the circular issued by the Broadway group, bearing a picture of the old Courthouse and the appeal, "Save the Historic Courthouse."

Old Structure to Be Preserved.

"This implies," the plaza committee says, "that if the new Courthouse were to be built on Twelfth, the old Courthouse would be wrecked. There never was any such intention. Wherever the new Courthouse is, the old one will be preserved and used by some of the city departments."

Former Circuit Judge Charles W. Bledge is chairman of the Plaza Courthouse Committee. The executive committee is headed by Maurice J. Cassidy, and has among members Lon O. Hocker, Judge John W. Calhoun, Nelson Cunliff, S. R. Kinsey, Mrs. E. T. Senseney, Mrs. Roscoe Anderson, Mrs. Harry Hoffman, E. J. Russell, Col. Frank G. Jonah, J. Lionberger Davis, Dan Murphy and David Goyling.

"When did the Democratic party take campaign money from Sinclair and turn over to him any public property? When did it receive subscriptions from tariff beneficiaries and allow them in return to write their own schedules? Or when did it deliver to other predatory groups the use and control of any governmental agency?"

Nominee Greeted Cordially at Urbana, O., and Richmond, Ind.

Davis began his second Western drive for votes with a rear platform speech this afternoon at Urbana, O., the home town of State Democratic Chairman Tom E. Dye, who accompanied him across the State. He pleased an extremely friendly audience with the prediction of Democratic success in Ohio and the nation at large.

"I believe the American people are deeply concerned about this election," he said. "As to the constant talk of apathy and indifference I have found none of it. The people are thinking about this thing even though they may not be standing on the street corners and speaking about it.

"There are three classes of people in this country. One class says everything is right with our form of government and nothing can be done to improve upon this administration. There is a second class that says everything is wrong with our form of government and everything is hopeless. There is a third class that says the form of government is well enough but the administration of it certainly needs to be improved. I belong to that third class."

The crowd applauded him heartily as the train pulled out.

Third Party Animal.

Davis was cordially greeted at Richmond, Ind., where he made the first scheduled speech of his tour.

Davis was met at the station by a band and given a parade through the town. He found the Richmond auditorium filled to overflowing with as enthusiastic a crowd as any he has addressed during the campaign. A cheer leader called for "Three cheers for Davis," and they were given with great heartiness.

Davis said that, while the third party had not officially chosen any animal, he supposed it must be the salamander. "For," he explained, "Gen. Dawes says the party is red hot, and the only animal that can live in red heat is the salamander."

As Davis began lashing out at the Republican record, a voice in the audience boomed: "Davis will do!"

"Well," Davis interpolated, "I am a modest man, but I am constrained to think that is the opinion of the country."

The sally drew a big cheer.

Davis' attack on the tip-toe diplomacy of the Harding-Coolidge administration was interrupted with frequent applause and cries of: "Good!" and "That's the stuff!"

A promise that, if elected President, he would send American delegates to the proposed world-wide disarmament conference at Geneva was received with vociferous applause.

Crossing Ohio and Indiana the train left in its wake a trail of white cloth caps advertising the Davis candidacy. The caps were distributed from the baggage car at several stations and were seized and put on by many who had come to the train for a glimpse of the candidate.

MAYOR'S STAND ON COURTHOUSE SITE ATTACKED

Plaza Committee Questions Kiel Caustically on Reversing His Opinion in the Matter.

ASKED TO SAY WHO "INFLUENCED" HIM

Adequacy of Fund in Case Broadway Location Is Selected Also Brought Into the Dispute.

The Plaza Courthouse Committee yesterday issued a statement, in the form of a questionnaire, attacking Mayor Kiel's stand in behalf of a Broadway site for the new courthouse.

The Plaza Courthouse Committee is in charge of a campaign for the Twelfth Boulevard Plaza Courthouse site, in the election of Nov. 4. The supporters of a Broadway site brought the matter before the voters, through referendum petitions against the ordinance passed by the Board of Aldermen, fixing the site on the Memorial Plaza.

Members of Plaza Committee.

Present members of the executive board of the Plaza Courthouse committee, which is to be enlarged, include two members of the Board of Public Service, President Kinney and Director Cunliff of the Department of Public Welfare. The committee's questionnaire to Mayor Kiel is:

"1. You spoke in the bond issue campaign for the Municipal plaza and used a picture showing the courthouse on the Municipal plaza. You have had that picture under the glass top of your desk in your office ever since. Who influenced you to change your opinion?

"2. Why have you surrendered the interests of the people to special interests?

"3. Why pay $1,500,000 for a city block in a backward district for the new Courthouse, when the city now owns a site in a progressive location?

Sufficiency of Fund Questioned.

"4. Do you not know that if the downtown site proposed by the special interests should be purchased for $1,500,000, the remainder of the $4,000,000 voted by the people for a Courthouse would not build a structure much more than half adequate for the needs of the city?

"5. Do you not realize that such a situation would mean a new bond election to provide additional money, and that in this way the erection of the badly needed Courthouse might easily be delayed indefinitely?

"6. The design of the plaza contemplated a main hall with a soldiers' memorial at one end and the Courthouse at the other. Are you playing fair with the Gold Star mothers, who were responsible for the Memorial project, and with the soldiers and sailors who died in the great war, by proposing to build a public garage opposite to the memorial of their sacrifice?

Asked About Other Bond Matters.

"7. Do you expect to reverse your opinion on other bond issue matters as you have on this? If other special interests decide they want the convention auditorium in another location, will you yield to them also, and wreck the whole carefully worked out plaza plan which the people by their votes approved?

"8. If the people vote to place the Courthouse on Nov. 4, how long will you abide by that decision?"

The committee also made a statement in reply to the circular issued by the Broadway group, bearing a picture of the old Courthouse and the appeal, "Save the Historic Courthouse."

Old Structure to Be Preserved.

"This implies," the plaza committee says, "that if the new courthouse were to be built on Twelfth, the old Courthouse would be wrecked. There never was any such intention. Wherever the new courthouse is, the old one will be preserved and used by some of the city departments."

Former Circuit Judge Charles W. Bledge is chairman of the Plaza Courthouse Committee. The executive committee is headed by Patrick J. Cassidy, and has among its members Lon O. Hocker, Judge Jesse W. Calhoun, Nelson Cunliff, Frank R. Kinsey, Mrs. E. T. Senseney, Mrs. Roscoe Anderson, Mrs. Harry Hoffman, E. J. Russell, Col. Frank G. Jonah, J. Lionberger Davis, Dan Murphy and David Nutting.

BRICKS IN BUS GARAGE LAID BY KIEL'S FIRM

Mayor Says Concern Will Bid for Any Desirable Job and Take Those Awarded.

The brick contracting firm of Kiel & Danes, of which Mayor Kiel is president, is doing the brick work on the new garage being built in Lindenwood, at 6927 Scanlan avenue, which is to house busses of the People's Motorbus Co.

The bus company extended its line to Lindenwood, after permits for this and other new lines were granted by the Board of Public Service Sept. 1. The company is not building the new garage, as it is ostensibly in the name of a private owner, but will occupy it as a tenant. The general contractor is the Hercules Construction Co.

Mayor Kiel yesterday, when asked about the matter, said the Hercules company asked him to bid on the brick work, and he showed a copy of his bid, dated Sept. 22. The bid was on a basis of cost plus 10 per cent, and plus $200 for use of equipment.

"We will bid for any desirable job, and will take any that is awarded," the Mayor said of his brick firm. "This particular job of brick work will amount to $8000 or more, and the firm's profit will be some $1800, which overhead costs will about cut in two. The building is a $50,000 one, and brick work usually figures about one-sixth of the total. We are going to do the brick work on another garage for the Hercules Co., to cost about the same."

ZR-3 STARTS ON FLIGHT OVER NORTH ATLANTIC ROUTE TO U. S.

weather, Dr. Eckner deemed it best to postpone the hop-off rather than further reduce his fuel supply which, as the dirigible stood in its hangar this morning, weighed about 31 tons.

All the food, fuel, oil, mail, baggage and other necessary things were placed aboard the ZR-3 yesterday. A canary bird, which is to be the only mascot of the airship, was in its cage in the gondola.

The Americans who are to make the trip across the ocean were allowed to take one suitcase each and three blankets. In their belongings are playing cards, several cartons of chewing gum and some chewing tobacco. Cigars, cigarets and smoking tobacco are taboo aboard ship.

Naval Vessels in North Atlantic on Watch for ZR-3.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—For the past two weeks three American naval vessels have been tossing around in the North Atlantic awaiting the flight of the ZR-3 from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to Lakehurst, N. J.

They are the Patoka, recently converted into a floating base with mooring masts for airships, which is lying 100 miles south of Cape Farewell, Greenland; the scout cruiser Detroit, 150 miles southeast of Cape Race, Newfoundland, and the scout cruiser Milwaukee, 200 miles east by north from Boston.

These vessels were placed on their present stations at the request of Dr. Hugo Eckener, director of the Zeppelin works and commander of the huge dirigible. Twice daily they transmit weather reports for the information of the German commander of the ZR-3. It is understood here that the location of the three naval vessels will not be changed if Dr. Eckener should determine to fly the southern route, along which no naval vesels are or will be stationed.

A dispatch received by the Navy Department today from Capt. Geo. W. Steele, who will be a passenger on the ZR-3, and later will be her commander, confirmed press reports that the dirigible expected to leave early tomorrow.

Regular Mooring Force to Handle Ship at Lakehurst.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 11.—When the ZR-3 arrives here at the naval air station, it immediately will be placed inside the great hangar and work will be started on removing the dangerous hydrogen gas, which will form the lifting power during its flight.

No special preparations for handling the big craft upon its arrival here have been made. The ground crew of the Shenandoah, in charge of the mooring officer, Lieut. H. V. Wiley, will handle the ZR-3.

According to the best available information here, it is unlikely that the dirigible will make its first flight over American territory for a number of weeks. After the ship has been placed on blocks inside the hangar and the hydrogen gas removed, a group of American experts will carefully go over the connections of the craft, to determine whether it meets with requirements.

The first flight in this country will depend upon how soon a sufficient quantity of nonexplosive helium gas, to inflate the 13 bags inside the envelope, can be obtained.

U. S. MISSIONARIES MOBBED BY BUDDHIST MONKS IN INDIA

Prof. Gleason and Wife Beaten With Sticks and Knives in Attack in Street.

By the Associated Press.

RANGOON, Burma, Oct. 11.—Prof. and Mrs. Gleason, American missionaries attached to Judson College here, were mobbed by Buddhist monks Thursday night. Both were beaten and removed to a hospital.

The police today raided a building and made seven arrests. The police have offered a reward of 500 rubles for the actual assailants.

Information received today by the American Consul-General here is to the effect that the attack was unprovoked and was not anti-American in any sense, but was a demonstration of anti-white or anti-Christian character against the imprisonment of the extremist leader, Ottama Pongyi, who was sentenced to several years on the charge of making speeches likely to cause dissatisfaction.

A number of Buddhist monks, it is said, had vowed vengeance on the police for the conviction of Pongyi. They attacked the two American missionaries when they were walking on the street. The monks were armed with sticks and knives. They beat the Gleasons to the ground and cut and bruised them about their heads. The assailants then fled to a Buddhist monastery and the victims were hurried to the hospital.

POLICE SERGEANT SUSPENDED

Desk Sergeant Thomas J. Coats of the East St. Louis Police Department was suspended yesterday under charges of neglect of duty.

Chief of Police Barry declined to explain the ground for the charge, stating it would be set forth in full at the next Police Board meeting.

Sergt. Coats, who has been on the force since 1905, was suspended early in August because he failed to appear as witness against another policeman at a hearing; but was reinstated after a few days.

ROBBERS GET $911 IN PAYROLL HOLDUP

Escape in Auto After Taking Cash From Hunkins-Willis —Co's Office.

Two robbers got $911 in cash in a holdup at the branch office of the Hunkins-Willis Lime and Cement Co., 4480 Duncan avenue, at 4:20 p. m. yesterday.

Thomas J. Roche of 3038 St. Vincent avenue, the manager, was at the telephone and Hiram Hensley of 1719A Dolman street, was at his desk when the men entered and ordered them to hold up their hands.

One of the robbers got the $911 payroll which had been placed in envelopes, and both fled to a waiting machine which a third man drove north on Taylor avenue.

YOUTH CAUGHT AFTER CHASE CONFESSES HE IS BURGLAR

A bunch of grapes, several cigars, a bottle of milk and six or seven half dollars, were the only fruits of seven burglaries or attempted burglaries to which a youth arrested early yesterday by night riders of the Magnolia avenue district confessed last night.

The youth, arrested after a chase which began when policemen saw him trying to enter a soft drink bar at 3800 Chouteau avenue, gave his name as John Smith, 18 years old, of Cleveland. In addition to his seven attempts at burglary yesterday, none of which was signally successful, Smith also admitted that he had committed about 10 other burglaries in the last two weeks. He was unable to give the location of his previous attempts, but said that the most encouraging reward he had had for his efforts was not more than $5.

Smith was sighted at 3:50 a. m. yesterday working at the rear window of the Chouteau avenue bar. He fled when Lieut. William O'Brien and special officers ordered him to halt and leaping down a 30-foot embankment to the Frisco tracks, disappeared in the darkness under fire. The policemen caught up with him at Wittenberg and Vandeventer avenues, and he admitted a short time later that he had tried to get into Guzina's place.

That was his seventh early morning stop, he said. He was unsuccessful in his first attempt at burglary yesterday morning at the confectionery of Fred Welpott, 1628 South Grand boulevard.

POTHIER FREED, ROSENBLUTH NOT TO FACE TRIAL

remanded the issue to the Tacoma Federal Court for decision. The Tacoma court, during Pothier's trial, decided it had jurisdiction.

After his arrest, Pothier made several "confessions" in one of which he said Rosenbluth told him to kill Cronkhite. This has been denied by Rosenbluth, and Pothier later repudiated all statements he had made. In its closing argument today, the defense held that Pothier merely took the line of least resistance when making statements and that he had told his inquisitors anything they wanted to be told.

2500 HAVE PAID TO HEAR SPEECH BY LA FOLLETTE

Independent Candidate for the Presidency Will Appear at the Coliseum Tuesday Night.

JOHN P. LEAHY, DEMOCRAT, IN CHAIR

E. V. P. Schneiderhahn Announces He Will Bolt G. O. P. National Ticket and Vote for Senator.

Senator Robert M. La Follette, independent candidate for the presidency, whose St. Louis strength has been measured by leaders of the two older parties, in terms of 40,000 to 60,000 votes, will speak at the Coliseum Tuesday night and will be introduced by a Democrat who believes him to be "closer to the principles of Jefferson than either Davis or Coolidge."

John P. Leahy, former president of the United Irish Societies of St. Louis and a Democrat will preside. A Republican who has voiced approval of the La Follette candidacy publicly is Edward V. P. Schneiderhahn, former vice president of the City Council.

To what extent the actijon of these two men in leaving the presidential candidates of their party is reflected in a wholesale manner is an interesting phase of the situation here.

Mrs. Plumb Here Today.

Senator La Follette will arrive here Tuesday morning and will deliver only one address. His son, Philip, will also speak at the Coliseum, and Mrs. Glen Plumb of Washington D. C. will precede the party to speak this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Eagle's Hall, Jefferson and Lafayette avenues. She will speak Tuesday evening before the Town Club.

Liberal Party headquarters in the Title Guaranty Building reported yesterday that 2500 of 3700 reserved seats had already been sold. The second balcony will be open to the public free.

Leahy, in his introductory address, will explain his reasons for favoring the candidacy of the Wisconsin Senator.

Statement by Schneiderhahn.

Schneiderhahn does not believe that either the Democratic or Republican party deserves a vote of confidence and attacks the stand of each upon the prohibition question. He also said the question of government ownership of railroads and curtailment of the power of the courts as proposed by La Follett are not, in fact, issues in the present campaign. His statement follows in part:

"The fundamental issue in this national campaign is this: Which of the two great political parties is entitled to a vote of confidence? The honest answer is: Neither. The record of the past eight years calls for a rebuke of both parties.

"There will be a big stay-at-home vote.

"But there will also be a tremendous vote for La Follete by citizens who will not hesitate to assert themselves. It will not do to call them names. For after all the country must depend on its independent citizenship to right the wrongs growing out of a fossilized partisanship.

Still a Republican.

"Yes, I will vote for La Follette. I am a Republican, but I take my Republicanism from the big men of the Republican party and not from its small men. You remember Washington asked Jefferson into his Cabinet. By voting for La Follette you can still vote your State and local ticket.

"The reasons for rebuking the old parties? Just to cite one reason. There is a widespread dissatisfaction on account of the manner in which both parties combined to impose prohibition. Imposed is the word. You know that neither party had nationally declared in favor of prohibition before prohibition was imposed. If neither had so declared it would have been overwhelmingly defeated. The great statesmen of the country while in favor of temperance and effective regulation always declared against prohibition I am opposed to prohibition on principle. I am opposed to it in the interest of morality and temperance. Well, when the country had its mind on other things prohibition was put over. Again "put over" is the word. That was the time, "to put it over." And it was put over. In Missouri the Legislature passed the Ratification Act, despite the overwhelming popular majority seventy-four thousand, (74,000) against it at the time when many citizens were out of the State and could not vote because they were in the military and other service of the country.

Wets Spurned by Old Parties.

"When appeals were made to the national Republican and Democratic conventions to take notice of the present unwholesome conditions under Prohibition, creating a reign of moonshine whisky, hypocrisy and corruption without accomplishing the aim alleged for prohibition, and asking the parties to advocate a remedy and wholesome change, both conventions spurned the appeals and declared for enforcement.

"La Follette is opposed to the principle of prohibition and so stated when he voted to submit the prohibition amendment and he voted against the Volstead Act.

"The question of government ownership of railroads and of curtailment of power of the courts are not in fact issues in this campaign, whatever anyone's views on those subjects may be. My own views are therefore also immaterial. Certain it is, that the President of the United States could make no change. And any amendment to the constitution of the United States must be considered by Congress and the States. The experience which we have had with the eighteenth amendment will of itself tend to create a more cautious approach to the question of acceptance of any amendment to the constitution of the United States."

SARAZEN BEATS EPINARD IN THIRD INTERNATIONAL RACE

on that day at Belmont Park, when many contended he stopped his watch at the regular finish instead of some yards further on, the temporary finish mark for the mile and a quarter of the Suburban Handicap.

Sarazen went the six furlongs in 1:10 2-5, the mile in 1:35 4-5, and to the mile and a quarter in 2:00 4-5, and did it all easily and comfortably.

The race was truly run except for the bumping of Altawood and Mad Play which had little bearing on the result. It is true Epinard ran into a bad pocket, but, as said before, it was because he could not go with Sarazen when Haynes asked the question, and because Mad Play, at the some time, moved up on the outside. Mad Play ran a brilliant race himself and so did Altawood, which closed from far back after being last and a distant trailer for seven furlongs. Chilhowee stopped badly from forcing the pace with Mad Play. Princess Doreen and Little Chief were never prominent and never dangerous.

Sarazen now takes his place at the side of Ladkin and Wise Counsellor as conquerors of Epinard. As a matter of fact he did more than they did in winning so easily and over the truer test of thoroughbred greatness.

Sarazen was not eligible for the first two international races because he is a gelding. He is not a robust horse and on the light side, but he is perfectly made and is blessed with faultless action and a big heart.

Winner Pays $5.70 for $1.

Sarazen paid $13.40 for a $2 ticket in the mutuels machines.

The crowd stretched out for almost a half mile to the paddock turn, and spreading out from the last run in the grandstand and club house, across the dense lawn to deep in the infield. The overflow from the enclosure poured through the tunnel under the track and flooded over the infield. The crowd also was impressive in its enthusiasm and explosive in its nature.

More people were jammed together for the Golden Jubilee running of the Kentucky Derby at Louisville last May, and for the first International Special at Belmont Park, on Labor day. Semi-frenzy gripped those record gatherings, and the enthusiasm then lifted the most phlegmatic out of themselves. But the 50,000 or more at Latonia this afternoon, all the place could hold, appeared to give way to their feelings with even more abandon. For one minute men and women seemed to have lost their reason.

Crowd Gathers Early.

The day was wonderfully fair. Indian Summer was in the air. The track was lightning fast. By nine o'clock in the morning, more than 200 men and women were scattered about the grand stand arriving early to avoid the crush and to insure seats. By ten o'clock a steady stream was rippling through the gates, hundreds with lunches in boxes and baskets. By noon there was a river of flowing humanity. By 1 o'clock not a foot of standing room could be discovered.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt II, with her party, arrived in Latonia this morning, and coming direct to the track, had luncheon in the clubhouse. Among those from the East who had boxes, most of whom were on hand, included August Belmont, Julius Fleischmann, James Butler, Lawrence Waterbury, J. S. Cosden, Joseph E. Widener, Mrs. Payne Whitney, Frederick Johnson, Edward F. Simms, Walter J. Salmon, C. J. Ryan, Edward B. McLean and Mrs. Vanderbilt. Among others noted in the clubhouse throng were Thomas A. Combs, A. B. Hancock, Hal P. Headley, J. N. Camden, Gen. W. B. Haldeman, F. A. Burton, Frank Navin, George Long, Col. Vennie, Miss Elizabeth Daingerfield and Pierre Wertheimer, owner of Epinard.

None of Col. Matt Winn's carefully prepared plans miscarried. He gambled when he added $50,000 to the third special, in building additions to the clubhouse at one end and the grandstand on the other and in ordering 10,000 benches and chairs to be placed at every possible point of vantage, but he was repaid in full measure by the crowd.

August Belmont, chairman of the Jockey Club, arrived on Friday evening. He had counted heavily on seeing Ladkin do battle once more with the French invader, but the slight lameness of his 3-year-old from a bruised heel, which kept him out of the big race, was accepted without a murmur.

Resigned to Disappointment.

F. A. Burton and J. S. Ward were already resigned to their disappointment, outwardly at least. Like Mr. Belmont, both had been anxious for one more shot at Epinard. As it happens the score is even between the French champion and both Ladkin and Wise Counsellor, and the chance to definitely settle the issue has now been lost because of the hazards of training. Epinard was beaten a half-length by Wise Counsellor, with Ladkin third, in the six furlong sprint at Belmont Park and was beaten a short head by Ladkin with Wise Counsellor third in the mile of the second Special at Aqueduct.

Ladkin and Wise Counsellor, at their stables this morning, were playful and while neither had marked signs of lameness in walking, both showed tenderness from their bruised heels. Both will be ready to race within a week and Wise Counsellor will be shipped to Laurel tomorrow, for the mile stakes of $10,000 next Saturday. Sarazen will travel in the car with Wise Counsellor.

Gives Up as Shoplifter To Recover Her Son

Woman Abandoned Three-Year-Old Boy With Candy When Detected Trying to Steal Dress.

A 3-year-old boy, holding a pound box of candy in one hand and a tobacco can filled with paper dolls in the other, was abandoned in a downtown department store yesterday when its mother fled from the store upon bein gcaught attempting to steal a dress. The boy was held at Central District Station for seven hours until the mother, Mrs. Margaret Simmons, 23 years old, of 2327A Lafayette avenue, recovered him by surrendering on a charge of petty larceny.

According to Miss June Hitte, a house detective at the B. Nugent & Bro. store, Mrs. Simmons was seen at about 2 p. m. placing a dress beneath her coat in a second floor department. When Miss Hitte seized her arm, Mrs. Simmons slipped from her velvet cloak and fled panic-stricken down the stairs. The boy was left standing beside the counter.

Downstairs the fugitive darted across Broadway and was knocked down by an automobile, losing her purse. She rose to her feet and fled north to Lucas avenue pursued by policemen, house detectives and a volunteer posse.

A policeman took the boy to Central Station, where questioning brought only tears and the information that his first name was "Bobbie." A matron pacified him by opening a box of candy he carried and feeding him from it.

Mrs. Simmons appeared at 9 p. m. with a bondsman who signed her $200 bond. Through her tears she declared that the dress took her fancy, and, without money to buy it, she yielded to an impulse. Then, realizing she was caught, she forgot everything but the desire to escape. She is separated from her husband.

'NOBLE SHEPARD' AGAIN WRITES TO GOVERNOR

Purported Escaped Murder Convict Says He Won't Surrender as Suggested.

A second letter purporting to be from Noble Shepard, who escaped from the St. Louis Jail in 1896, while under sentence of death for a double murder, was received by Gov. Hyde in Jefferson City yesterday.

The letter declared that Shepard would not surrender himself, as suggested in the previous letter, inasmuch as Gov. Hyde was unwilling to make a definite promise that the death sentence would not be carried out.

Both Letters Mailed Here.

Both letters were mailed in St. Louis, but bore no street address and no indication of any particular locality. In the first letter, received by the Governor Oct. 2, the writer said he was old and feeble, and would give himself up and go willingly to the penitentiary if the Governor would promise not to hang him. He asked that a reply be made through the Post-Dispatch.

The Governor said he would make no promise, but that, if Shepard were to surrender to the police, his case would receive full consideration when it should reach the Governor.

The second letter is:

I saw your reply to my letter in the Post-Dispatch, and I think it would be dangerous to give myself up. It would be almost suicide on my part, as I have no friends or money to help me.

I would never have escaped if I got a term in the penitentiary. But just before I escaped I saw a man named Fitzgerald hanged, and I made up my mind that hanging was not right.

This will close my case—no hard feelings on my part.

Yours truly,
NOBLE SHEPARD.

Escaped From Old City Jail.

Shepard killed Lizzie Leahy and Thomas Morton, in a houseboat on the river front in 1896. After his conviction and two days before the death watch was to be placed on him, Shepard escaped from his jail cell, in the old Four Courts Building, by sawing his way out. The escape caused the jailer then in office, Louis Wagner, to be censured severely, and the censure even extended to Mayor Walbridge, who had appointed Wagner. The matter was made an issue in the political campaign of that year.

GLEE CLUB IS ORGANIZED

The Glee Club and the student orchestra of St. Louis University were organized yesterday, the former with a chorus of 51 voices, and the latter with 41 instrumentalists, both being large increases in size over last year. Twenty states are represented in the organizations.

Rehearsals for both will begin at once. It is expected that three subscription concerts will be given this season, and a tour made in the spring.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, D. G. Johnson, 609 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

TELLS WHY DAWES PLAN WILL END WAR-DEBT TANGLE

Prof. M. J. Bonn, Former Financial Adviser of Berlin Government, Speaks at Washington U.

SAYS IT IS BINDING TO GERMAN PEOPLE

Government Accepted Scheme Without Coercion and Support of It Will Win Back Territory.

Two reasons for believing that Germany will faithfully carry out its obligations under the Dawes plan agreement were given by Prof. Moritz J. Bonn of the University of Berlin, lately a financial adviser of the German Government, in an address at Washington University yesterday.

The first reason is that the plan was accepted by the German Government without coercion, and is, therefore, regarded by the German people as legally and morally binding.

The second reason is that it is to Germany's advantage to fulfill the conditions of the plan, as a means of insuring the future evacuation of the Rhineland by allied troops.

"The risk of repudiation is far greater for Germany than it is for the allies," Dr. Bonn said. "The allies hold a double set of guarantees for the execution of Germany's obligations. The Germans hold none for the carrying out of the French promises. I am willing to put confidence in the honesty of the French statesmen, but Germany's risk is the greater.

End of Coercive Finance.

"The Dawes plan was not forced upon the German people by threats. It was accepted by them after detailed discussion between equals striving for an agreement. It marked the end of coercive finance, such as was shown in four previous conferences which I attended. At those conferences we were confronted with demands which we knew, and the allied statesman knew, that we could not meet, and were told to sign, anyway.

"But some people say that Germany has repudiated its debt once, and may do so again. By repudiation is meant the depreciation of the mark, which went down to a point where I have not sufficient command of your language to express its value in English.

"There was nothing intentional, on the part of the German Government, in the depreciation of the mark. But even if there had been, one such experience was enough. Once bitten, twice shy. We have had to undo all that work of depreciation, at such a cost that we all felt the strain and are feeling it now. Inflation will not come again, while there are Germans living who remember the last episode of inflation.

"You will also hear it said that we postponed indefinitely the settling of our pre-war debts. So we did, but the Treaty of Versailles forced us to put our old creditors after our newer ones, and when the new creditors demanded more than we had, the old creditors' chance became small indeed.

Attitude on War Guilt.

"The fact that Germany now seeks to deny sole responsibility for the war is cited by some as an unfavorable indication. But this is not connected with the paying of the obligations we have now assumed. Previously, an avowal of responsibility for the war was forced upon us at the point of the bayonet. We did not feel that this represented a verdict morally binding upon us. This feeling, widely prevalent in Germany, is, I think, a feeling deserving of respect. It shows that the German people are aware of the awfulness of the crisis through which the world passed, and are not convinced that the guilt is theirs alone.

"If the German Government should change hands, that would not overthrow the agreement into which the present Government has entered. No holder of your Liberty bonds has ever had occasion to fear that the bonds issued by a Democratic administration, would be repudiated by its Republican successor. Civilized Governments generally recognize the obligations of the preceding regimes.

"While quite a number of the Nationalists voted against the plan, and still dislike it, none of their leaders, if placed in power, would dare to risk, through repudiation, the prolonging of the Rhineland occupation.

"There is risk in this plan, or in any plan which depends upon the recovery of the world. It will not work quickly, but I believe it will work. We are turning the corner, and we shall not get around it all at once."

Speaking, after his address, of the reverses of the MacDonald Government in England, he said that the Dawes plan was now an established British policy, and that a new government would not be likely to take any action affecting it unfavorably.

Tells of Settlement.

"In August," he said, 'it was a question whether we would not do better to let the Nationalists take the matter to the German people, and we felt sure that in that way they would be beaten more thoroughly, and would know that they were beaten. But it would have taken two months or more, and in the meantime, the English or French Government might undergo some change, as has now happened in the case of England. Therefore, it was best that the German supporters of the Dawes plan accepted their victory in the form in which they could get it most quickly."

Dr. Bonn explained the Dawes plan, involving yearly payments of $250,000,000 from railroad and industrial revenues, and $400,000,000 a year from government revenues, the latter payments to be dependent on Germany's prosperity and ability to pay, as determined by experts on the scene. "The reparations commissioner," he said, "must collect the $400,000,000, but when he feels that the condition of the country will not permit the transfer of such a sum abroad, he can lend it to us at interest."

"Though there is a widespread opinion that Germany has shirked her obligation in the past," the speaker said, "anybody looking into the reports of the Reparations Commission will see that that is not true. Quite apart from the loot of the Ruhr, she has paid over $2,000,000,000, or double the amount wrenched from France after 1871.

"I do not pretend that Germany enjoyed making payments. Reparation and indemnity payments are not payments for value received, but for damage or reputed damage done. They are the ransom extorted by the victor for the cessation of the hostilities and the evacuation of territory. Such arrangements will work well when the total reparations are within the debtors' means, and when he is convinced that the fulfillment of his obligations will bring about the freedom of his country.

Attitude of Germany.

"Up to the adoption of the Dawes plan, these essential elements were missing in the different schemes of payment. After having been left in suspense for two years about her total liabilities, Germany was asked to assume a reparation debt such as she never could hope to pay of. She became convinced, moreover, that the object of the settlement was not reparation, but perpetual occupation.

"The essential element for such co-operation as is needed between debtor and creditor being absent, Germany's will to carry out the obligations may often have appeared lukewarm, for the prospect of perpetual peonage must crush the spirit of initiative.

"All that belongs to an unfortunate and, let us hope, dead past. The Dawes plan looks forward to a system of intelligent co-operation."

The success of the international loan, he said, was never a matter of doubt with him, since its total amount, $200,000,000, is but one-third the annual sum of reparations payments, and the loan takes priority over allied claims.

Dr. Bonn spoke at the assembly of the university, before the faculty and student body. He was introduced by Chancellor Hadley and Charles Nagel. He was later the guest of honor at a luncheon in one of the smaller dining rooms of the City Club. He will go to Chicago today, and one of his speaking engagements there is before an American Legion post.

Beaten in Effort to Climb Mt. Everest, but Ready to Try Again

—Photograph Copyrighted by London Times

THE climbing party is shown on its arrival at Darjeeling, India, their starting base, after having been compelled to turn back on reaching a point within 800 feet of the peak, which is 29,002 feet high. Indeed, two of the party may have reached the goal, as they were last seen within 200 feet of the top and still going well though they disappeared after that and were never seen again. It is believed they either fell to their death or perished at the top in the extreme cold. The returning climbers were met just outside Darjeeling by General Bruce, who led the party at first but had to be invalided back to Darjeeling. The photograph shows from left to right; Dr. Hingston, Mr. Hazard, Lieut-Col. Norton, Bentley Beecham, Capt. Geoffrey Bruce, Mr. Somerville and Gen. Bruce. All are anxious to try again and believe they can make the top with their experience. It is announced that another expedition will attempt it in 1926.

FORCES OF DISCONTENT BACK LA FOLLETTE, SAYS WEEKS

War Secretary Ridicules 'Slush Fund' Charges and Warns Against a 'Wisconsinized' Government.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Branding the La Follette movement as "an amalgamation of the forces of discontent into a political party," Secretary of War Weeks entered the political lists here tonight in a radio address, which dealt entirely with the independent ticket and platform.

"Communists, Socialists, I. W. W.'s, malcontents, converts of Lenine, Trotzky, Debs and Emma Goldman, people who want something for nothing, and individuals with grievances, real or imaginary, have rallied to the support of La Follette," Weeks declared. "There are also well-meaning citizens who will vote for La Follette because they have been deceived. Without investigation, they have accepted false charges as true. Without thought they have accepted his assertions that our form of Government should be changed and have taken for granted that his promised remedies will improve the form of Government founded by Washington, Hamilton, Jefferson and Franklin.

"Running true to form, La Follette has sought to arouse class antagonisms, discontent, suspicion, distrust and confusion in the minds of the voters in order to aid his own political fortunes."

Cites Wheeler's Indictment.

Weeks also referred to the indictments in Montana of Senator Wheeler, independent vice presidential candidate.

"An indictment does not mean that the accused is guilty or not guilty, but it indicates 'a probable cause' and the evidence must be sufficiently strong to justify a grand jury taking this action," Weeks said. "* * * I think this is the first time in the history of the government where a United States Senator has been indicted by his own constituents. If perchance the almost impossible should happen and the La Follette ticket is elected, there is the possibility that people of the United States will have a vice president found guilty of violation of the laws he has taken his oath to sustain."

La Follette' charge that the Republican party was gathering a slush fund to buy the election was ridiculed by the War Secretary.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "up to date the Republican National Committee has not collected as much money since the Republican convention for all its committees, national, senatorial and congressional, as the public has spent for the seven baseball games of the world series. Senator La Follette should be subpened to appear before the Borah committee and compelled to submit evidence in support of his charges."

Wisconsin's Expenses Climb.

Weeks reviewed political and social conditions in Wisconsin since 1901, since when, he said, the State had become "thoroughly socialized" with "innumerable bureaus, commissions and boards" controlling all activities and private businesses which have been "the subject of constant interference, inspection and supervision."

As a result of this, in the period between 1900 and 1920 Wisconsin's State expenditures increased more than in any other State of the Union, Weeks continued, adding:

"If the La Follette Socialists should, by any change, get control of our national Government, we will see our Government Wisconsinized and you and I will pay for it."

Third ticket proposals to empower Congress to reverse decisions of the Supreme Court, Weeks said, "would strike a death blow at one of the three branches of our Government, the judiciary, and would weaken our whole governmental structure."

Urged High Sugar Tariff.

Weeks said that, although elected to the Senate on the Republican ticket, La Follette had consistently opposed Republican measures in Congress.

"It is criminal offense to obtain money under false pretenses," he continued. "It may be legal to obtain political office under false pretense, but it certainly is not moral.

"Senator La Follette and his followers have obtained public office as members of the Republican party and when elected they have done every thing they could to destroy or impair the efficiency of the party."

As examples of La Follette's activities, Weeks cited his opposition to various tariff measures in Congress, saying, however, that the Senator had supported the emergency tariff law of 1921, because "it affected many items in which the residents of the State of Wisconsin were interested."

"Incidentally, he voted for a 2-cent duty on sugar, a higher rate than the present tariff law," the speaker said. "Consideration is being given to the possibility of reducing the present rate."

GALLIGAN OPENS NEW BREACH AT HERRIN

Williamson County Sheriff Ousts Two Deputies He Named After Riots.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MARION, Ill., Oct. 11.—Sheriff George Galligan tossed a bombshell into the camp of his enemies today when he served Chief Deputy John Schafer and Deputy Sheriff Joe Schafer with formal written notices that their "services are no longer required," and announced he had appointed Constable Adrian Smith of Creal Springs as Chief Deputy Sheriff, with Ora Thomas as a Deputy Sheriff in Herrin to take the place of "Bud" Allison, who was killed in the Ku Klux Klan and antiklan outbreak of Aug. 30 last, in which seven men were fatally wounded.

John Schafer has not resigned and has not turned in his star, and it is believed that he will continue to function, previous attempts by Galligan to remove him having been fruitless. The County Board of Supervisors is supporting Schafer and is under contract to pay him the same salary as that received by Galligan.

Schafer and his son were appointed by Galligan upon his agreement with the so-called Citizens' Committee that he would appoint whoever they named, following the Herrin riots of last February, when Constable Caesar Cagle was killed. At that time both Schafers denied membership in the klan, but the klan supported their appointment.

Smith is known as an antiklanaman and Thomas is one of the bitterest opponents of the klan, being named by them as one of the leaders in the Herrin killings. Thomas is now out on bond, having been indicted by the grand jury. Thomas served a Federal jail sentence for violation of the prohibition law upon a plea of guilty before Judge Lindley. He was among those arrested by S. Glenn Young in his raids of last year and was alleged then to be a Deputy Sheriff under Galligan.

PHAFF BELIEVED PAWN IN HANDS OF NEW PIRATES

Men Who Looted French Steamer Known to Be in New York and Extradition May Soon Be Asked.

By ALFRED M. MURRAY.

Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

BREST, Oct. 11.—The pirates who looted the French rum runner Mulhouse are walking the streets of New York today but their extradition may be asked soon by the French authorities.

Capt. Fournier of the French navy, presiding over the maritime court which is investigating the case, while not yet willing to admit the innocence of Capt. Max Jerome Phaff, under arrest here for piracy, believes the leaders are still on American soil and ready to scuttle for safety.

Capt. Fournier has told the Morue Francaise, the company which owns the Mulhouse, to order the commander of the ship back to Brest at once in order to give his testimony.

To Smash Rum Ring.

Fournier told me yesterday that the case will take years to settle. But much sooner than that bombshells may be sprung from Brest which will smash a powerful rum ring in the United States, despite their present confidence in their high protection.

Documents now in the hands of the Brest court contain a full list of names of men implicated in rum running and many who are suspected of being involved in the piracy of the Mulhouse. Phaff himself may be found to be no pirate, but only a pawn in the hands of two factions of rum runners who were engaged in double-crossing each other.

Phaff insists that he can prove an alibi in the Mulhouse case. He says he was in Montreal and Halifax from July 20 to 30, or from July 27 onwards, he cannot remember the exact dates. He says he stayed at the Halifax Hotel in Halifax, and the Mount Royal Hotel in Montreal.

Denies Studler Story.

The accusation against Phaff rests mainly on a conversation he had with a man named Studler on a channel boat. Phaff insists Studler's affidavit is deliberately inaccurate. He says he told Studler only in a general way how the piracy of the Mulhouse could have been accomplished, not that he had done it.

Another point against Phaff was the story of a French wine merchant, Masqueller, that he heard from a man named Walters in New York that Phaff had offered him a large sum to loot the Mulhouse. Phaff insists this charge was a ruse to get him out of the country and prevent his testifying at the trial of Capt. Samuel Ford, just acquitted of pirating the rum-runner Lutzen.

During Phaff's hearing today, it was said, the name of a prominent man was mentioned as having had an interview with Phaff at the Hotel Savoy in London. A sensation is promised when this man's name is disclosed.

Phaff Indignant in Prison.

However, Phaff's attorneys believe their client will be released next week after all the witnesses are heard. It was developed that Masqueller has expressed his regret for causing Phaff's arrest but that he "had to do it on account of the insurance companies."

Phaff actually came to France with letters of introduction from Masqueller to various wine merchants, including the Mumm champagne firm.

Meanwhile Phaff is getting more and more indignant at his detention in prison. Today he exclaimed in a frenzy:

"I am going mad. Why don't they shoot me instead of torturing me?"

But from it one gathers that a huge net is being prepared that will enable the United States to make a haul of all the big fish in the rum running business as well as the small fry.

'BAR TO U. S. JO'NING LEAGUE'

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—The Japanese position in the League of Nations regarding questions affecting immigration "has placed a serious bar to the United States ever joining any international league," Representative Theodore Burton of Ohio said here today in an address. "The United States must always be in a position to dictate upon her own immigration problems," he added. "We cannot admit immigrants who are uncongenial to our industrial relations."

"The league is a duet made up of England and France, singing in discordant notes." Speaking of peace, he said:

"We must first reach an international agreement to suspend all hostilities until an international commission can decide all facts of law. We must then all agree to abide by international law. We must establish a World Court and we must teach the people the necessity of co-operation." Sivilization, he added, would not survive another war.

Burvin W. Sharplin of 3153 Rutger street, died at city hospital at yesterday of complications resulting from an injury to his head suffered on board the United States submarine S-35 in the Philippine Islands last January.

Sharplin, who was a World War veteran of 18 months' overseas service, enlisted in the Navy in December, 1922. He and another seaman were trying to start the engine of the submarine when a crowbar caught in the machinery and struck him in the face, tearing out his left eye.

Members of the family said he had wandered about the country following his release on July 7 from the Marine Hospital at San Diego, Cal., and arrived home Friday seriously ill. He was taken to the hospital at once.

RUN FORCES BANK TO CLOSE

CENTERVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 11. —The Citizens' National Bank of this place closed today following a run on it by depositors. Sam L. Whitson, cashier of the bank, since it was organized 18 years ago, is in a Nashville hospital, following a sudden attack of illness, the result, it was given out at the time, of taking poison by mistake.

It is reported that Liberty bonds estimated at approximately $40,000 left with the bank by depositors for safe keeping, are missing.

Whitson was arrested in Nashville Friday night on a warrant sworn out by District Attorney A. V. McLane. He will have a preliminary hearing Oct. 20. The bank's last statement showed deposits of $200,000.

POND DRAGGED AFTER BOY, 14, DISAPPEARS

Jesse Hansen Believed to Have Drowned When Swimming— Clothes Found on Fence.

Firemen dragged a pond at Pi- issant and Goodfellow avenues last night searching for the body of Harry Hansen, 14-year-old son of Jesse Hansen, 5539 Wren ave., who is believed to have drowned when swimming there yesterday afternoon with a group of playmates.

A policeman reported at 7 p. m. that several small boys ran to a pond near the pond and announced that a boy had been drowned there. He investigated and found a boy's garments hanging on a barbed wire fence near the water. Later when Hansen came to Mounted Police station searching for his son, he was shown the garments, which he identified.

The pond, which is about six feet deep and is fed by rain water, has been used as a "swimming hole" for many years. At present the lot on which it stands is being graded for a subdivision and the pond is in the process of being filled.

GOVERNMENT MERE TOOL OF WEALTH, SAYS LA FOLLETTE

Equality in America Has Ceased, He Tells 10,000 in Audience in Chicago Armory.

'ONE LAW FOR RICH, ANOTHER POR POOR'

Charges Industrial Life in Entire States Is Directed by Wall Street's 'Robber Barons.'

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ARMORY HALL, Chicago, Oct. 11.—Senator Robert M. La Follette told an audience of 10,000 here tonight that he confidently expected to be elected President Nov. 4.

"We are not going to throw the election into the House of Representatives," he declared. "It will never reach the Senate. This election will be settled as every Presidential election has been settled for the last 100 years, by a vote of the people at the polls. On that day I am confident they will elect the Progressive ticket by a substantial majority."

A tumult of shouting and cheering greeted the prediction, not only from those who filled the seats of the great armory hall, but from the 2000 others massed on the playground next door, listening to the speech through amplifiers.

Greeted by Cheering Multitude.

In the forenoon, an even more impressive demonstration had marked the arrival of the Senator from Cincinnati, and his passage through the downtown streets at the head of a long procession. As the parade moved north on Michigan boulevard, and westward to the heart of the "Loop," it was escorted by a dense cheering multitude which packed the street to either curb.

In an open automobile, at the head of the procession, was the short, erect form of the candidate, waving happily at the surging human sea that threatened almost to engulf the car.

Traffic in the congested district was hopelessly entangled for more than an hour. The Chicago Evening Post, a Republican paper, said this afternoon: "It was the first real political demonstration Chicago has seen this year."

Tonight's meeting showed a similar spirit and was of proportionate magnitude. The speaker frequently brought his hearers to their feet cheering as he tore into private monopoly, government by injunction, and war profiteering.

Attacks Morgan and Co.

"The people of this country know now that the most potent influence in drawing this nation into the great war was J. P. Morgan & Co., fiscal agents for the British Government," he cried.

Again he brought them up shouting with the statement that, "greed and corruption have penetrated even to the doors of the White House."

"We know it. We know it," came half a dozen answers from floor and gallery.

Was there an echo of the Loeb-Leopold trial, when the Senator, in affirming that all men are not equal before the law as it now is enforced, said: "You cannot punish a millionaire as a poor man would be punished, no matter how revolting or inhuman his crime may be."

There was, at least in the demeanor of the hearers.

Reserve Board Denounced.

With savage emphasis, La Follette, laying aside his manuscript, declared that "One of the most infamous and disastrous acts ever perpetrated by a governmental body was when the Federal Reserve Board, at a secret meeting in 1920, decided to deflate the farmer, thus decreasing farm values $20,000,000,000 and totally bankrupting 600,000 Western farmers. Beside that awful crime, the scandal of last year pales almost into insignificance," he said.

No Equality Before Law.

The speech, considerably longer than he has been accustomed to deliver since this trip began, a week ago, was occupied chiefly by the processes by which, in the speaker's opinion, the Government has ceased to be representative of the people, and has become a mere tool of organized wealth. This transformation has taken place within the last generation, he said.

"Equality, the old equality of our fathers, has all but ceased to exist in America," he commented. "There is neither equality of opportunity nor equality before the law. There is one law for the rich, another for the poor.

"On the one hand, we have a financial obligarchy which controls the economic life of the nation; on the other, a political oligarchy that controls its political life. Today

WICHITA, Kan., Oct. 11.—Charles G. Dawes, Republican candidate for Vice President, arrived in Kansas today and was asked by reporters the matter of "where do you stand in Kansas?"

Dawes asked for a copy of the platform speech he delivered at Emporia, at a meeting at Topeka and at a meeting at Wichita.

The choice, he said, was between standing by the platform with President Coolidge or alignment with Democrats and others opposed to the leadership of things for which Senator Follette, the Independent candidate for the presidency, stands. He said he had no desire to make answer to his question, but repeatedly declared his belief in Americanism in Kansas and every other section of the country. He appealed to colors more than once and to at any time in the history of Kansas."

Doesn't Mention Democrats.

Here in Kansas, as in Wyoming, Iowa and in other states he has visited in the present speaking tour, Dawes has presented only the names of President Coolidge or La Follette, and has not mention whatever the Democratic candidate, John W. Davis, despite the fact that Kansas has had a Democratic governor and administration.

The economic issues that arise in the future, he said, Civil War, he declared, are not asked for a tariff for protection against foreign competition that came the transportation ways, demands for public land grants, unlimited grants given by the Government to public domain, and at other times the area.

The period in which we are living, he followed, he declared, is a period of an unreasonable desire for wealth on the one hand and by reckless waste on the other, they declared, conditions which endanger the control the Government. Mark Hanna was the first man to see the idea of consolidations for the purpose of combinations in return for profits, which enabled them to control the purse-strings of the country.

"When the Republican party sent Representative Lincoln to Congress pledged to legislate against the trusts demanded the session of the Congress, the practice, in order that they might themselves against such legislation and regulation and control by the Senator. "Within a few years' time, indeed, the trusts had passed away."

"Wall Street's Rule."

The trusts have not only destroyed industrial competition, he said, but they have succeeded to maintain their power. They must also destroy the power of political freedom. "Wherever they obtained the power, by prohibiting the freedom of speech, free thought and put into office men who will carry out their dictation. Hence we have government, in every state, arranged alongside against the employees.

"The industrial system of the states is directly responsible, he exclaimed. "Industry has become little more than a subject to the control of the banking syndicates in New York and the Standard Oil interests. Virginia is but a vassal state of Pennsylvania. Its principality, and its people are serfs living in the shadow of Wall street's robber barons."

Puts Hughes to Rout.

If elected President, he declared, he will break this power. The laws against trusts will be enforced." The Government will be taken out of the hands of the industrial conflicts and injunctions would be abolished. The use of troops in labor disputes would be stopped.

This brought up the discussion of Hughes' attitude in the Federal Judiciary. As a member of the Supreme Court, Hughes reiterated his decision that the constitutional amendment giving the State Legislature the power to enact legislation, enable the re-enactment of the child labor law by Congress, over the veto of the Supreme Court, after a similar proposal to had been declared unconstitutional by the people.

"It is the courts that have usurped property rights and human rights," he shouted.

POND DRAGGED AFTER BOY, 14, DISAPPEARS

Jesse Hansen Believed to Have Drowned When Swimming—Clothes Found on Fence.

Firemen dragged a pond at Florissant and Goodfellow avenues last night searching for the body of Harry Hansen, 14-year-old son of Jesse Hansen, 5539 Wren avenue, who is believed to have drowned when swimming there yesterday afternoon with a group of playmates.

A policeman reported at 2 p. m. that several small boys ran to him near the pond and announced that a boy had been drowned there. He investigated and found a boy's garments hanging on a barbed wire fence near the water. Later when Hansen came to Mounted District station searching for his son, he was shown the garments, which he identified.

The pond, which is about eight feet deep and is fed by rain water, has been used as a "swimming hole" for many years. At present the lot on which it stands is being graded for a subdivision and the pond is in the process of being filled.

ACCIDENT VERDICT IN DEATH

7-Year-Old Negro Girl Was Run Down Crossing Cass Avenue.

A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned yesterday in the death of Reather McDonald, 7-year-old negro girl, 1511 North Seventh street, who was run over and killed by a truck in front of 920 Cass avenue Thursday afternoon.

Several negro children, who were on their way home from school with her and witnessed the accident, testified that in trying to cross from the north to the south side of the street, leading her younger brother by the hand, she ran against the side of the truck and was knocked down, a rear wheel of the vehicle passing over her head. The driver was Harry Rathgns, 3942 Penrose street, a licensed chauffeur.

GOVERNMENT MERE TOOL OF WEALTH, SAYS LA FOLLETTE

Equality in America Has Ceased, He Tells 10,000 in Audience in Chicago Armory.

'ONE LAW FOR RICH, ANOTHER POR POOR'

Charges Industrial Life in Entire States Is Directed by Wall Street's 'Robber Barons.'

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ARMORY HALL, Chicago, Oct. 11.—Senator Robert M. La Follette told an audience of 10,000 here tonight that he confidently expected to be elected President Nov. 4.

"We are not going to throw the election into the House of Representatives," he declared. "It will never reach the Senate. This election will be settled as every Presidential election has been settled for the last 100 years, by a vote of the people at the polls. On that day I am confident they will elect the Progressive ticket by a substantial majority."

A tumult of shouting and cheering greeted the prediction, not only from those who filled the seats of the great armory hall, but from the 2000 others massed on the playground next door, listening to the speech through amplifiers.

Greeted by Cheering Multitude.

In the forenoon, an even more impressive demonstration had marked the arrival of the Senator from Cincinnati, and his passage through the downtown streets at the head of a long procession. As the parade moved north on Michigan boulevard, and westward to the heart of the "Loop," it was escorted by a dense cheering multitude which packed the street to either curb.

In an open automobile, at the head of the procession, was the short, erect form of the candidate, waving happily at the surging human sea that threatened almost to engulf the car.

Traffic in the congested district was hopelessly entangled for more than an hour. The Chicago Evening Post, a Republican paper, said this afternoon: "It was the first real political demonstration Chicago has seen this year."

Tonight's meeting showed a similar spirit and was of proportionate magnitude. The speaker frequently brought his hearers to their feet cheering as he tore into private monopoly, government by injunction, and war profiteering.

Attacks Morgan and Co.

"The people of this country know now that the most potent influence in drawing this nation into the great war was J. P. Morgan & Co. fiscal agents for the British Government," he cried.

Again he brought them up shouting with the statement that, "greed and corruption have penetrated even to the doors of the White House."

"We know it. We know it," came half a dozen answers from floor and gallery.

Was there an echo of the Loeb-Leopold trial, when the Senator, in affirming that all men are not equal before the law as it now is enforced, said: "You cannot punish a millionaire as a poor man would be punished, no matter how revolting or inhuman his crime may be."

There was, at least in the demeanor of the hearers.

Reserve Board Denounced.

With savage emphasis, La Follette, laying aside his manuscript, declared that "One of the most ominous and disastrous acts ever perpetrated by a governmental body was when the Federal Reserve Board, at a secret meeting in 1920, decided to deflate the farmer, thus decreasing farm values by $20,000,000,000 and totally bankrupting 600,000 Western farmers. Beside that awful crime, the scandal of last year pales almost into insignificance," he said.

No Equality Before Law.

The speech, considerably longer than he has been accustomed to deliver since this trip began, a week ago, was occupied chiefly by the processes by which, in the Senator's opinion, the Government has ceased to be representative of the people, and has become a mere tool of organized wealth. This transformation has taken place within the last generation, he said.

"Equality, the old equality of our fathers, has all but ceased to exist in America," he commented. "There is neither equality of opportunity nor equality before the law. There is one law for the rich, another for the poor.

"On the one hand, we have a financial obligarchy which controls the economic life of the nation; on the other, a political oligarchy that controls its political life. Today political power and economic power are in the same hands."

Tariff and Rail Subsidy.

The economic oligarchy began to arise in the period following the Civil War, he said. Industries asked for a tariff to protect them against foreign competition. Then came the transcontinental railways, demanding and receiving land grants, until they had been given by the Government from the public domain land equal to five times the area of Illinois.

The period of trust formation followed, he continued. Fed by an unreasonable tariff, on one hand and by railway favoritism on the other, they reached proportions which enabled them to control the Government itself. Mark Hanna was the first politician to see the idea of milking these corporations for campaign contributions in return for the favors which enabled them to maintain and expand their power, he continued.

"When the people rebelled and sent Representatives to Congress pledged to legislate against them, the trusts demanded, and got possession of the Department of Justice, in order that they might save themselves against prosecution, regulation and interference," said the Senator. "Thus, within a few years' time, industrial freedom has passed away."

"Wall Street's Robber Barons."

The trusts had by now virtually destroyed industrial freedom, he said, but they found that, in order to maintain their advantage, they must also destroy a great measure of political freedom. Therefore, they obtained the passage of laws prohibiting the exercise of free speech, free thought and assembly and put into office men who would carry out their will in that direction. Hence we find the Government, in every industrial dispute, ranged alongside the employer and against the employe.

"The industrial life of entire states is directed from New York," he exclaimed. "Great cities have become little more than estates subject to the will of two great banking syndicates—Morgan & Co. and the Standard Oil. West Virginia is but a satraphy. Eastern Pennsylvania is really a feudal principality, and the inhabitants are serfs living under the rule of Wall street's robber barons."

If elected President he proposed to break this power, he declared. The laws against monopoly would be enforced. The power of the Government would not be thrown into the scale against labor when industrial conflicts arose. Strike injunctions would be abolished. The use of troops against strikers would be stopped.

Puts Human Rights First.

This brought him naturally to a discussion of his position toward the Federal judiciary, including the Supreme Court, in which he reiterated his desire to have a constitutional amendment submitted to the State Legislatures, making possible the re-enactment of legislation by Congress over the judicial veto of the Supreme Court, and his proposal to have Federal Judges elected by the people.

"It is the courts who have exalted property rights above human rights," he shouted. "One Federal Judge declared, in holding a minimum wage statute unconstitutional, that "Government exists for the protection of life, liberty and property, and the chief of these is property." That Judge was Van Orsdel of the District of Columbia, and his decision was upheld by the Supreme Court, by a vote of 5 to 4.

"It is being charged that in proposing to limit the powers of the courts, I am attacking the liberties of the people. To those who regard judges as the defenders of our liberties, I offer this challenge; show me one case in which the courts have protected human rights, and I will show you 20 in which they have protected property rights at the expense of human rights."

For Referendum on War.

La Follette then gave a brief review of the foreign policy, which he would introduce if elected. It was a condensed outline of what he had presented so comprehensively at Cincinnati, the preceding night—The abolition of secret diplomacy, the repudiation of the doctrine that the flag follows the dollar, the elimination of all profits from war, the conscription of wealth, as well as men, withdrawal of the marines from Haiti and Santo Domingo and an effort to conclude treaties with all the nations, providing for drastic reductions in armaments, the abolition of conscription, and the guarantee of a popular vote on declarations of war.

"We must end war, or war will end civilization," he cried. "I believe the people of the country are coming to our support. They are in revolt against the corruption, the cynicism, the degradation of the old parties. The progressive tide is rising all over the continent, and it will not be restrained.

Old Parties Defeated, He Says.

Today the Democratic and Republican candidates are defeated. They cannot win and they realize it. We can."

La Follette will enjoy a day of rest tomorrow, the first since he started on the tour last Sunday night. In six days he has spoken in six cities, in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Michigan, Ohio and Illinois. At each of the six meetings the hall has been filled, and there has been an overflow crowd, ranging from 300, at Scranton, to 3000 at Detroit, and 4000 at Cincinnati, not to mention tonight's great outdoor gathering.

At Rochester, Scranton and Newark, his audiences were friendly and apparently deeply interested in the exposition of his views. At Cincinnati and Detroit they were enthusiastically partisan.

To those who are traveling with the party, it has become obvious that La Follette really believes he stands a good chance to win the election. This conviction has grown upon him to a marked degree during the progress of this trip. He feels that he is the candidate which the winner will have to beat.

He speaks Monday night in Kansas City, and Tuesday night in St. Louis.

DAWES IN KANSAS SPEECHES WARNS AGAINST RADICALS

In Four Addresses, He Says Choice Is Coolidge and Constitution or Forces Backing La Follette.

By the Associated Press.

WICHITA, Kan., Oct. 11.—Charles G. Dawes, Republican candidate for Vice President, visited Kansas today not asking "what's the matter with Kansas," but "where do you stand, people of Kansas?"

Dawes asked this question in rear platform speeches in Atchison and Emporia, at a noon meeting in Topeka and at a night rally in Wichita.

The choice, as he outlined it, lies between standing on the Constitution with President Coolidge and alignment with the Socialists and others opposed to the existing order of things behind Senator La Follette, the independent candidate for the presidency. He professed to have no doubt about final answer to his question, for he repeatedly declared there is "no radicalism in Kansas," and that "in no section of the country is the call to colors more eagerly responded to at any time than by the people of Kansas."

Doesn't Mention Democrats.

Here in Kansas as in Nebraska, Wyoming, Iowa and Minnesota, the other states he has visited on the present speaking tours, Dawes presented only the alternatives of Coolidge or La Follette, making no mention whatever of Davis and the Democratic candidacy, despite the fact that Kansas for two years has had a Democratic State administration.

He likewise refrained from touching upon what leaders of his party consider the real campaign in Kansas—the contest in which Jonathan M. Davis, Democrat; Ben S. Paulen, Republican, and William Allen White, independent, are seeking the governorship. He spoke in White's home city of Emporia, but White, who is making his campaign with opposition to the Ku Klux Klan as his issue, was campaigning in another section of the State. His son, William L. White, was in the audience in the capacity of representative of his father's newspaper and on behalf of his father conveyed a message of greeting through members of the Dawes party to the vice-presidential nominee. The younger White declined an invitation extended by local Republicans to board the train to present the greetings in person, declaring such action might be embarrassing to Dawes, inasmuch as the Republican State organization is supporting Paulen.

Goes to Railroad Centers.

The itinerary laid out for Dawes took him through some of the more important railroad centers of the State, which Republican leaders informed the nominee, are the principal La Follette strongholds. Some railroad men were in the audiences at Atchison, where there are Missouri Pacific shops, and at Topeka and Emporia, where are Santa Fe shops.

The meeting at Topeka was held in the city auditorium and here tonight Dawes spoke in the Forum.

WOMAN AND MAN INJURED SERIOUSLY IN AUTO CRASH

Mrs. Olive Weber Suffers Internal Hurts—Accident Occurred on Olive Street Road.

Benjamin Z. Asquez of Maryland Heights was injured critically and Mrs. Olive Weber, 5615 Michigan avenue, suffered serious internal injuries and a possible fracture of the skull at 2 a. m. yesterday when an automobile driven by Asquez collided with one in which Mrs. Weber was riding on Olive Street road near Dawson road.

Both machines were going eastward. Asquez told Deputy Sheriff Kick that he saw no tail light on the other machine, which was driven by Dan Gleason, 2917 Dixon street. Gleason suffered scalp wounds and John Patterson of Maryland Heights, who was riding with Asquez, was uninjured.

Spokesman for Three Candidates Exchange Fusillades.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Brought face to face on the same platform by women of Chicago, spokesmen for three presidential candidates today received and answered each other's fusillades in an atmosphere of old-fashioned campaign fervor. Phillip La Follette, in the city, with his father, cited the opinion of John Marshall, first chief justice, in answer to criticism of independents' proposals for limitation of judicial power. W. L. Harding, former Governor of Iowa, told the Republican women among his hearers, "you haven't gone wrong because Fall fell." Judge D. H. Miller of New York, former special assistant secretary of the department of state, and former legal adviser to Wilson at Versailles charged President Coolidge with responsibility for "crimes of the Republican administration."

The meeting was called by the Chicago League of Women Voters.

"The decision of John Marshall," La Follette said, "held that the Supreme Court could declare an act of Congress unconstitutional only when no reasonable man could hold it to be constitutional. Today we have the court permitted to declare acts unconstitutional when three out of the seven justices dissent; it would seem that the four hold the three to be 'unreasonable men.'

"The members of Congress are under the same oath to uphold the constitution as the justices of the Supreme Court."

Harding outlined the theory of the power of the Supreme Court to over-rule Congress as follows:

"It is a referee as far removed as possible from the influence of any of the three parties to the contract embodied in the constitution: You, the state, and the Federal Government."

Harding added, "If there are more bad men in the Republican party than in the other parties, it is because there are more of us. Christ picked a Cabinet and one of the twelve sold out, but He didn't lose faith in the other eleven, or in the cause."

"When there were charges, later disproved, of aircraft fraud during Mr. Wilson's administration," said Judge Miller, "he was indignant at the possibility of fraud and summoned Mr. Hughes, recently his Republican opponent for re-election, to make an investigation. Mr. Coolidge was indignant, not at the oil scandal, but at the investigation. As vice president he had sat in the Cabinet with Daugherty and knew him, but he kept him on."

SPEECH-MAKING IN BRITISH CAMPAIGN GETS UNDER WAY

Labor Attitude Likened to Bridge Player Who Kicks Over Table and Demands New Deal.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 11. — Speech making in the campaign which is to culminate in a general election on Oct. 29 is already under way.

The three big parties have placed their platforms before the electorate. The Labor manifesto is signed among others by Ramsay MacDonald, John Robert Clynes, Robert Smillie, George Lansbury and Arthur Henderson. The conservative manifesto is signed by Stanley Baldwin and the Liberal by H. H. Asquith and Lloyd George.

Foreign affairs and defense questions are scarcely mentioned in the Labor manifesto, apart from the Russian treaties and a paragraph claiming credit for improved relations with France and Germany and noting the important steps taken at Geneva toward arbitration, security and general disarmament.

Economic Questions.

In the Liberal document allusions to foreign affairs are equally scanty but in the Conservative manifesto, the empire and foreign relations are given greater attention, but still are overshadowed by social and economic questions. In reference to foreign affairs, Baldwin pronounces his party for "co-operation in all matters admitting of common action with the United States" for the support and strengthening of the League of Nations on practical lines.

He says that the Unionists, if returned to power, will have to "examine afresh the position in which the defenses of the empire have been left by the present administrations and while favoring any political proposals for the general limitations of armaments must scrutinize carefully in conjunction with the Dominions, the far-reaching commitments and implications of the scheme recently put forward at Geneva."

The competition between the three parties is clearly on the ground of social and economic reforms. The question of free trade versus protection has almost vanished. The Liberal document pronounces unshakably for free trade but the Labor manifesto does not mention the subject. Baldwin admits that the last election settled the question but he still advocates a safeguarding industries act, which the Labor administration abolished and supports measures of imperial preference, which, he declares, "we shall steadily keep to the front."

At a meeting under the auspices of the Scottish Liberal Federation in Glasgow last night, Sir John Simon, appearing in the place of the liberal leader, former Premier Asquith, compared the attitude of the Ramsay MacDonald government in making a capital issue out of the proposed inquiry into the withdrawal of the proceedings against a communist editor to the attitude of a bridge player who when asked why he had revoked, immediately kicked over the table and demanded a new deal. Such action, commented Sir John, naturally increased the suspicion which had been entertained by his fellow players.

Proposed Russian Loan.

The Government's action in precipitating an election, however, went deeper than that, said Sir John. The Government did not dare to go any further towards pledging the British taxpayer to support the proposed loan to Russia.

J. H. Thomas, the Colonial Secretary, opening his election campaign in Derby, dealt at length with the withdrawal of prosecution against J. R. Campbell, editor of the Workers' Weekly, for alleged sedition. He said his reply to those who asked why the Government did not accept the proposal of the liberal members of the House of Commons to appoint a select committee to inquire into the Campbell case was this:

"If we have reached the stage where the Prime Minister of this country and the Attorney General, having from their places in the House of Commons pledged their own honor as to everything that had taken place in the Campbell matter and having told their full story with regard thereto, are simply to be told 'We do not believe you,' how can we expect that the administration of this country or negotiations with foreign powers can be conducted, with the whole House of Commons saying 'We do not believe you.'"

CONFERENCE FOR SOCIAL WELFARE OPENS TODAY

LOST BOMBING PLANE SAVED BY RADIO FAN

Amateur Relays Distress Call of Member of Squadron Sent to New York at Night.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. — The imaginary enemy who meant to move on New York, thought better of his intention when he found a protecting formation of eight Martin Bombers, maneuvering over the city in battle array after flying here by moonlight last night, on an "urgent mission," from their base at Langley Field, Va., 212 miles away. The bombers continued, after a while, their flight up to Hartford, Conn.

Later, they returned to Mitchel Field, their emergency base, whence they will fly back to Langley Field tomorrow.

The trip was a test to demonstrate the possibility of being able to defend, overnight, any point on the Atlantic seaboard against foreign attack. It also marked the end of the summer training period, as did the flight from Langley Field to Bangor, Me., last year.

Radio Fan Gets Call.

A radio fan, L. B. Joyce, of Bronxville, was responsible for the rescue of Capt. H. M. McClellard and three fellow aviators in the squadron. Joyce was listening in on a concert, he said, when he heard out of the air the words, "Please tell Mitchel Field that Capt. McClellan flying with bombers from Langley Field is lost somewhere between Barnegat Bay and Atlantic City."

He immediately put in a telephone call for Mitchel Field, meanwhile keeping an ear to his radio receivers. Capt. McClelland kept on broadcasting.

At last McClelland found himself east of Sandy Hook. "But I can't get Mitchel Field," he said on the radio. "I can't see its landing lights. Please tell Mitchel Field to locate me."

By this time Joyce was in telephone communication with the field and McClelland's voice came so strong it was transmitted from the radio loud speaker to the phone transmitter and he talked directly to officers at the field. Shortly afterward they heard the far-off whirr of motors, flashed him landing signals and he, with his crew of three and their cargo of bombs landed.

Experiment Reported Success.

Officers who participated in the flights were enthusiastic over the results. No such night-flying feat had been accomplished before in this country.

Nine planes started from Langley Field, but two were forced to turn back because of ignition trouble. At Cape May, N. J., Maj. John H. Piere's flag plane was forced down by mechanical trouble. He landed in a short, rough field by the light of parachute flares dropped by himself and his comrades, but resumed the flight an hour later and finished the trip with one of the planes that had turned back, but which had come on again. The other plane which had turned back got only to Lakehurst, N. J.

PASTOR CONVICTED IN COURT FOUND INNOCENT BY CHURCH

Buffalo Methodists Find the Rev. Charles Penfold Was "Conspiracy Victim."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 11.—The Rev. Charles C. Penfold, former pastor of the Sentinel Methodist Episcopal Church of Buffalo, was given a clean slate at Corning this afternoon by the 115th Conference of the Methodist Genesee District. The church report asserted the minister was the "victim of a conspiracy" and was "innocent of the charges." Justice Rozan, who sentenced the Rev. Mr. Penfold to 10 days in jail, upon hearing of the conference report declared Mr. Penfold was given a fair trial and the evidence received by the court did not indicate any conspiracy against him.

Penfold was arrested by Cheektowaga constables at night a few weeks ago. He was charged with outraging public decency. At the hearing he testified that the woman who accompanied him in his automobile was his wife. The woman also swore she was Mrs. Penfold. A few days later Mrs. Freda Lohr, a singer in the choir of Penfold's church, appeared before Justice Rozan and asked for permission to change her testimony. She then asserted that she had testified falsely at the first hearing as she was not Mrs. Penfold. Mrs. Lohr then testified that she testified falsely at the first hearing at the request of the minister.

Before Mr. Penfold was sentenced he was innocent of outraging public decency. He was taken to the Erie County prison and after being imprisoned for a few hours obtained his release from County Judge Noonan pending an appeal to a higher court. Aside from this charge Mr. Penfold, it is said, will be prosecuted by the District Attorney on perjury charges.

CHURCH FEDERATION WORK

The work of the Church Federation of St. Louis will be presented to congregations of many St. Louis churches today. The Rev. William Crowe, president of the Federation, has sent to the different pastors a request that the Federation's activities be outlined briefly. These include evangelism, religious education, hospital work, social service, and comity agreements covering church extension enterprises.

ONLY AN AROUSED PUBLIC CAN OBTAIN CRIMINAL LAW REVISION, BARRETT ASSERTS

Urges Bar Conference, Which Meets in Jefferson City This Week, to Draw Up Definite Legislative Plan.

From the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 11.—Changes in the present judicial system, and any improvement in criminal law procedure to stem the rising tide of crime, can be obtained only through the arousing of public sentiment and the presentation of a definite legislative plan, Attorney-General Barrett declared today, in commenting on a conference to be held here Wednesday, under the auspices of the Missouri Bar Association, to consider crime conditions and criminal law procedure.

Approximately 500 civic, commercial and other organizations in the tSate have been invited by Guy A. Thompson, retiring president of the Bar Association, to send representatives to the conference, to be held in the State Capitol. A report of a bar committee on "crimes, criminal law and procedure" will be submitted and steps probably taken to institute a campaign for reforms.

Barrett declared the courts were not responsible for existing crime conditions. "It is for public sentiment to say whether the system shall be changed and, if so, to what extent," he said. "You cannot blame the courts for declaring the law as it stands. That is their sworn duty. It is useless to blame the Legislature or damn the lawyers unless public sentiment itself undergoes a change."

Based on British Code.

The Attorney-General recalled that Missouri's present system of criminal jurisprudence is based largely on a code adopted in England at a time when it was necessary for the people to protect themselves against the tyranny of despotic rulers. He declared that many of the provisions in the law that once were safeguards are now stumbling blocks in the path of justice.

"Assuming that the whole purpose of the law is to deter crime by the threat of certain and swift punishment," Barrett continued, "let us consider how effectively or ineffectively our present system works. Our law says to the criminal, 'You may or may not be found out. If you are found out you may not be caught. If you are caught and if sufficient evidence is obtained, charges will be filed against you and you must prepare for trial.'

"There are many ways in which you can secure delay and that in itself may save you. If you can get any five men, however disreputable, to make affidavits in your behalf, you can compel a change of venue to some other county, which will inconvenience and handicap the prosecution.

"If at last you are put to trial there will be a legal encounter between the Prosecuting Attorney and you representatives. You can hire as many as you wish, and of as much experience and ability as your purse can pay for. The State's representative will have one hand strapped behind his back. His feet will be tied.

He will be governed by Marquis of Queensbury rules. Your representatives will have both hands free, will be governed by no rules and they may strike below the belt, or kick or trip.

Question of Appeal.

"Should your representative win, you are free and no appeal will lie from any decision by the judge in your favor. Should you lose, you may or may not be sentenced. If you are, you may take an appeal and upon this appeal the court will not consider any conduct of yourself or your attorney. Any infraction of the laws of evidence unfavorable to you, however, by the Judge or Prosecuting Attorney, will set aside the result of the contest and give you another chance.

"If the conviction should be affirmed and you cannot then be found, your bondsmen, if solvent, will have to pay the State some money unless the bond forfeiture is remitted. If you are still in the State, however, you will go to prison where you will be given wholesome food and healthful exercise, while your friends can be at work to secure your pardon or parole. They will put increasing pressure throughout the months on each of those who were jurors or officers at your trial, and they may be able to coax or coerce recommendations in your behalf. Perhaps they will argue that you should be released because you were the only one of your gang who was caught and convicted.

"Picture Not Overdrawn."

"If you are so unfortunate as to get the worst of all these contingencies, you may still be sure that unless you misbehave while in prison your term will be shortened to seven-twelfths of your sentence, and that even a life sentence means only a limited number of years."

(Under Missouri prison rules, and the merit system, a well-behaved prisoner is credited with a year for each seven months actually served.)

"There is the picture," Barrett stated, "and every informed citizen knows that it is not overdrawn."

Law enforcement largely depends upon the attitude of the public," Barrett continued. "It is the public which tries to escape jury service and who, as jurors, render spineless verdicts," he said. "It is the public which runs away or gives fictitious names when officers of the law are looking for witnesses. It is the public which controls the selection fthe Legislature, and it is public sentiment which dominates legislative action."

"With more public spirit of law observance," Barrett said, there would be less worry about law enforcement.

"Where there is no sentiment for observance," he concluded, "there of course can be no support for enforcement. Where observance is general, enforcement is sure. The two are necessarily interdependent, yet we stress the one and ignore the other.

Ramacciotti Stars, Scoring Three... for St. Louis University—Hass... ures for the Visitors

In a contest marred by fumbles and frequen... Louis University football eleven defeated the scrap... to 14, in their annual struggle at the Billikens' Field...

The visitors played even with Coach Savage's team during the first half, even getting the lead once and trying the score once, but gave way in the second half and succumbed to the battering of Ramacciotti and company.

Head Coach Savage was scouting the Loyola-Milliken game fortunately. The young Billiken mentor would surely have exploded had he witnessed the many fumbles his men committed and the chances they missed. The Billikens were penalized with great regularity for a total of 75 yards and Stanton was removed in the second quarter for alleged "roughing."

Miners Use Old Attack.

The Miners displayed their usual vicious attack and made great progress with a musty old play that they employed last year to great advantage. In this movement, the quarterback fakes a pass to both halfbacks, who go through center; the quarterback then proceeds to follow them up with the fullback charging ahead of him. In last year's contest, this worked for the entire game. Yesterday the Billikens caught on and refused to be fooled after the eighth attempt.

Hasselman at halfback stood out on the Miner offense and his runs were the ground work for both Rolla touchdowns. Lee, fullback, who chalked up both markers for Rolla, also played a stellar game, but was injured in the second period and had to be carried off the field. It was announced that he had suffered a fracture of a small bone in his foot. He will probably be out for the remainder of the season.

Both Teams Score Early.

The Billikens started things off with a rush and scored their first touchdown in about three minutes. Ramacciotti, in whirlwind dashes, accounted for every foot of the 45-yard march except for a nice gain of eight yards by Mahoney. Rolla came back immediately after this setback and after an exchange of punts, Hasselman ran 30 yards around end to the Billiken 10-yard line and Lee made the remainder of the yardage on a trick play, tying the score.

The next Billiken marker followed blocking of a punt in which Schwartz featured. After a short pass to McKenzie, Ramacciotti went over again. Rolla took the lead in the second quarter after the Billikens were penalized half the distance to their goal for Stanton's disqualification. Hasselman again tore off a long gain and Lee once more carried the ball over. McBride then kicked goal and the score stood 14—12, with Rolla in the lead.

Billikens Regain Lead.

Kalp, substituting for Ramacciotti at fullback, made several nice gains after three exchanges of punts. Two forward passes, O'Reilly to McKenzie and O'Reilly to O'Toole, put the leather over the Rolla goal and the half ended with the Billikens ahead by a 19—14 score.

The Billikens started the second half with their original lineup, and it was not long before Ramacciotti had gone over the Rolla goal line, but he was called back on an offside penalty. St. Louis then lost the ball on downs, but Schwartz again broke through and spoiled a Rolla punt and gave his team the ball in Rolla territory. McKenzie made 11 yards and Ramacciotti added six, but the Bills suffered a 15-yard penalty Ramacciotti made a 12-yard smash through tackle to the 15-yard line and then went across for the final touchdown.

The last period was featured by nice gains by Mahoney and Ramacciotti, who managed to work the ball to Rolla's one-yard line as the game ended.

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 11.—Wisconsin's football team failed to show any speed against the Coe College team from Cedar Rapids, Ia., and barely tied the score, the final count standing 7 to 7, here today. Ramacciotti Stars, Scoring Three Touchdowns for St. Louis University—Hasselman Features for the Visitors.

Association Team Wins Its Third Game—Orioles Have Four Victories.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 11.—Defeating Baltimore, 3 to 2, today, St. Paul brought the game count in the "little world series" to four to three in the Orioles' favor.

The next game will be played tomorrow.

Five victories are needed to clinch the championship.

Earnshow, who previously won for the Orioles, was in the box for Baltimore today.

Once more the name of Mark Koenig, substitute shortstop, was written large in the box score, for his single, double and triple in three times at bat figured prominently in the Saints' scoring and he accepted cleanly his two chances in the field.

DAYTON HIGH WINS FROM EAST ST. LOUIS

Steele High School of Dayton, O., overwhelmed the East St. Louis High School football team yesterday with a versatile attack and ran up a 25-to-0 victory.

East St. Louis was kept so busy defending its goal line that it had little opportunity to open up with its varied offensive game. Halfbacks Freed and Turvene of Dayton and Quarterback Bob Harris of East St. Louis were the outstanding individual stars. Turvene intercepted a pass and ran 75 yards for a touchdown in the third quarter.

Chicago U. Wins from Brown, 19-7

Blocked Kick Paves Way for Eastern Team's Single Score — Maroons Use Line Smashing Attack.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—With the six world flyers as honored spectators, the University of Chicago outplayed Brown University of Providence, R. I., today and won 19 to 7. The Maroons displayed their typical line smashing football, developed from a forward wall which shifted into place as the signal was called and tore big holes through the Browns' line.

Except for a blocked kick near the Chicago goal, Brown never seriously threatened the Maroon goal line. Eckstein paved the way ofr the Bears' score when he blocked Thomas' punt and Brown was given the ball on the fourth down.

A double pass caught the Maroon defense napping and Keefer came through the unguarded side of the line for 12 yards to a touchdown.

The first period was uneventful with the play chiefly in midfield and mediocre punting. Chicago opened the second period with consistent gains by Kernwein, Thomas and Marks who had replaced McCarty.

Thomas made the final three yards for the first touch down. Thomas also got away after slipping through a big hole in the right side of Brown's line and ran 20 yards for Chicago's second touchdown.

Both sides then sent in back field reserves, Stagg using a dozen or more substitutes behind the line.

Ferry and Keefer Stopped.

Ferry and Keefer, who had scored several good gains in the first period, were smothered by the Chicago defense in the last half, and Ferry attempted to score on passes as a last resort. Most of them 20 yards or more, and all went wild.

The Maroons then turned to passes and one of 15 yards, Thomas to Barnes, over center, brought the ball to Brown's 20-yard line. Francis and Caruso went in then and the former quickly carried it over.

Keefer and Ferry bore the brunt of the offensive for the Brown team, but seldom did the line hold long enough to get a start. Chicago tried but few end runs and fewer passes. One pass, Thomas to Abbott on the Brown 15-yard line, fell short by inches or making the necessary distance to complete Chicago's fourth successive first down. On the first Brown play when they took the ball on downs at that point, the Bears were penalized 15 yards for holding, and on the three-yard line Ferry punted only 30 yards. Then followed Thomas' 20-yard run for a touchdown.

JOCKEY CLUB DIRECTORS PRESENT GOLD PLATE TO PIERRE WERTHEIMER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 11.—The directors of the Kentucky Jockey Club entertained Pierre Wertheimer, owner of Epinard, at a breakfast given in the Latonia clubhouse at noon today. President J. N. Camden presided and M. J. Winn, on behalf of the Kentucky Jockey Club, presented Wertheimer a gold plate suitably inscribed, as a souvenir of his visit to Kentucky. Wertheimer, in a response full of feeling, spoke his appreciation of the courtesies shown him, assuring his hosts that the sincerity of their welcome touched him deeply.

The list of guests included the officers and directors of the Kentucky Jockey Club, members of the State retiring commission and August Belmont, chairman of the Jockey Club.

The Winner

SARAZEN

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt's three-year-old horse was the third American thoroughbred to defeat Epinard. Wise Counsellor and Ladkin won from the French turf star at Belmont and Aqueduct, respectively, at six furlongs and one mile. Yesterday's race was over a mile and a quarter. Epinard finished second in all the special events.

Ohio State Holds Veteran Iowa Team to Scoreless Tie

Charlie Brookins Goes in Late for Iowa and Makes Sensational Gains—Crowd of 25,000 Sees Game.

By the Associated Press.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 11.—They only game today in Western Conference territory in which two conference teams clashed ended here in a 0 to 0 tie when Ohio State and Iowa failed to cross the other's goal.

Urged on by approximately 25,000 persons, including a small group of madly cheering Buckeyes, the elevens bucked each other's line, passed frequently and almost frantically but failed to make an effective gain when gains would have been most valuable.

From the spectators' viewpoint, the game was a thriller, especially in the last quarter, when the Ohio eleven captured the ball near its own goal line and, throwing discretion to the winds, tried pass after pass. Several of these were successful and the desperate Buckeye machine carried the ball to Iowa's 34-yard line but finally was forced to punt and Iowa took her last chance to break the tie.

Coach Ingwersen then sent in Charlie Brookins, world's champion hurdler, and Brookins tore around Ohio's line for 10, 15 and once 25 yards, while the eager Iowa rooters looked at their watches furtively and hoped for the best. Brookins, however, had come too late and the game ended with the track star still carrying the ball towards Ohio's goal.

The Buckeyes had one chance to score by a goal from the field and Iowa twice tried this method to break the tie. But Klee missed the posts from the 30-yard line and Hogan's and Fisher's toes failed in the crucial moment.

Parkin for Iowa and Klee in the backfield and Jenkins in the line for Ohio, scored individual honors. Throughout the first and third quarters Parkins pierced the Ohio line for long gains and Klee was practically the only Buckeye who was able to break through the Iowa line effectively.

Marquette Wins Over Navy, 21-3

Brilliant Passing Attack in Final Period, Milwaukeeans Baffle Opponents.

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 11.—Conserving their offensive strength until the final period of play, Marquette University exploited a varied attack featured by brilliant aerial plays and defeated the Annapolis midshipmen on the gridiron today, 21 to 3. Three times they crossed the Navy goal line and added the extra points from placement goals. Navy in the early part of the last quarter scored when Wellings dropkicked a goal from the 33-yard line.

By the Associated Press.

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 11.—Smashing all existing Kentucky track records for a mile and a quarter, Sarazen, three-year-old chestnut gelding, owned by Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, II, today vanquished Epinard, pride of the French turf, in the final race of the International series before a record-breaking crowd of 50,000 to 60,000 spectators.

Sarazen, ineligible for the two previous international races because he was a gelding, flashed across the wire a length and a half ahead of the gallant French hose in 2:00 4-5. This was within 4-5 of a second of the world's record established by the great Whisk Broom II, 10 years ago.

Whisk Broom at that time carried 135 pounds, while Sarazen was burdened with 120 today. Sarazen stepped the fastest mile and a mile and a quarter ever run on the Latonia track. He was clocked at the mile in 1:35 4-5, clipping a fraction of a second off the mile track record.

Second for Third Time.

Epinard, strangely enough finished today where he did in his two previous American starts second. While Sarazen's victory was convincing, Epinard was just as wonderful in defeat. Working his way through interference, when Altawood and Mad Play bumped in the final sixteenth of the race Epinard came up from fourth place, shot quickly to the outside, flashed ahead of Mad Play and was gaining rapidly on the Vanderbilt gelding in the closing strides.

Mad Play, the entry of Harry F. Sinclair, probably ran the greatest race of his career finishing on top of Epinard for third place. Altawood, owned by C. Bruce Head of Lexington, made a desperate effort and was barely beaten for third place. Altawood finished fourth, six lengths ahead of Princess Doreen, the heavily played filly, which landed fifth place, while Little Chief finished sixth, My Play seventh and Chilowee last.

Winner Gains $60,000.

The victory was worth $55,500 to Mrs. Vanderbilt, in addition to a $5000 gold cup. Epinard won $6000 hs second prize, while $3000 went to Mad Play and $1000 to Altawood as fourth prize money.

Epinard and Sarazen were heavily played in the pari-mutuel wagering, although the bulk of the Western money was placed on the hopes of Princess Doreen. A $2 ticket on Sarazen paid $12.40 to win; $4.20 to place and $3.90 to show. The place price on Epinard was $3.10, while $3 was his show price. Mad Play paid $5.50 to show.

The race, except for the unavoidable bumping of Altawood and Mad Play in the exciting finish was one of the most cleanly contested in the history of Kentucky racing. Epinard at no time during the gruelling mile and a quarter run was farther than three feet from the rail except when he was taken to the outside in his dash for second place as the flying field straightened out for the wire.

Chilhowee, Off in Front, Falls Back After Setting a Heart-Breaking Pace

The shadows from a fading sun were just beginning to settle over the picturesque Latonia course, in the Kentucky hills, when Epinard and the seven American thoroughbreds were paraded past the stands and then wheeled about for the start at the far turn of the track barrier, at 3:35 o'clock. Due to the actions of Sarazen, which was excitable and nervous, the barrier was not sprung until nearly five minutes later.

Chilhowee Off in Front.

Chilhowee broke in front, followed by Epinard and Sarazen, with Little Chief fourth. When the flying field flashed past the stand on the first quarter, Chilhowee gamely clung to the lead with Sarazen trailing him, Mad Play fighting back in third place and Epinard a scant fourth. Chilhowee was still leading at the three-quarters pole, but began to crack under the terrific strain at the mile. Sarazen flashed into the lead from second place, Chilhowee dropped into second place, Mad Play third, Altawood fourth and Epinard fifth.

As the horses swung around the turn leading into the stretch Sarazen, setting a killing pace, was leading by a length and a half with Mad Play second, Altawood third and Epinard fourth. The stretch run will live long in memory of those who saw it. Epinard, gamely fighting to improve his position, was trailing at Mad Play's flanks. The Sinclair colt accidentally bumped Altawood and Epinard flashed into second place.

"Come on, Epinard," was the cry that went up from the excited spectators. But these shouts of encouragement were unavailing as Sarazen's speed was too great and the Vanderbilt gelding flashed on to victory in a whipping finish.

As the horses shot under the wire the stands seemed weighted down by a deadly silence. Then, like a bursting flame, a tremendous roar greeted Sarazen's victory, but the ovation that the vanquished Epinard received when he trotted back to the judges' stand was just as great.

Epinard's Owner Smiles Through Tears.

Pierre Wertheimer, owner of the gallant French 4-year-old, had tears in his eyes but a smile on his face when the race was over. If he was disappointed in the failure of his horse to achieve victory his expression did not indicate it.

"Of course I had hoped for victory, but it was a great race and I am satisfied. I desire sincerely congratulate Mrs. Vanderbilt. Where is she?"

Whether the vanquished Epinard will make another race in America before returning to France was undecided tonight. Previous to today's race, Wertheimer said that Epinard would return to France at once if defeated. Eugene Leigh, trainer of the French colt, however, wants him to appear in two stake events at Laurel, the first of which for $70,000 is scheduled for a week from today.

Bad Ride or Interference.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 11.—Owner Pierre Wertheimer had no open complaint to make on the score of his horse's defeat, today; but many in the stands felt that the great horse once more had been the victim of interference or an indifferent ride.

Many horsemen indicated that they thought Epinard the best horse in the race. He was crowded an eighth of a mile out and was full of run when finally he drew clear.

Mr. Wertheimer let it be known to friends that he was not altogether satisfied with Haynes' ride.

PIKERS LOSE TO GRINNELL, 14 TO 0, IN OPENING VALLEY GAME

Critchett and Sweet Get Touchdowns for Pioneers In the Last Two Periods

Long Runs by Stotts and Moran Figure Prominently in Gaining First Score, While Wing's 50-Yard Dash Helps to Second—Washington Gains on Passes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GRINNELL, Ia., Oct. 11.—Grinnell College displaying a slashing brand of football that has not been seen here for a number of years, took the Washington University Pikers into camp in a stubbornly fought contest today by a 14 to 0 score. The day was extremely hot and both teams were almost completely exhausted before the finish.

Both coaches used many substitutes in the last half, apparently to the slight advantage of the Pioneers whose second-string men seemed to be in better condition than the Piker subs.

A punting duel between Levy, of Washington and Meeter of Grinnell was the feature of the first period of the game. Levy consistently out-distanced the Pioneer booter, and had it not been for the stellar performance of the Grinnell line which held like a stone wall against the Grinnell goal might have been in danger.

Pioneer Line Improves.

The Pioneer forward wall was vastly improved over the one which crumpled before the Cornell college attack last week. Strengthened by the addition of Rinefort at left tackle and Peterson at center, it was able to stop many Piker plays behind the line as well as rip open wide holes for the Grinnell backs.

The second quarter of the game was marked by a slight weakening of the Grinnell eleven, matched by a corresponding brace by Coach Wimberly's men and it was the only period in which the visitors consistently out-played the locals.

Grinnell refreshed by the rest came back strong in the second half and threatened to score in the opening minutes of play when Levy's punt was blocked and McClain recovered for Grinnell on the Washington 10-yard line. Grinnell was penalized five yards, however, and the Washington line braced, giving the ball to the Pikers on downs.

Captain Critchett Stars.

Spectacular punts by Captain Critchett a few moments later paved the way for the Grinnell touchdown. Exchanging punts with Levy and Stockhoff, he twice punted out of bounds on the Washington 3-yard line. Stockhoff was forced to punt from behind his own goal and Stotts returned the ball to the 28-yard line. From this point a series of smashes and runs culminating in a smash by Sweet that put the ball over the line.

Critchett dropped kick for the extra point.

The final touchdown came in the last few minutes of play as a result of a brilliant 50-yard run by Wing, who broke through the line and evaded a half dozen tacklers before he was brought down. A pass from Critchett to Rose and two smashes by Wing and Critchett put over the final marker. Critchett again dropped kicked for the extra point.

Levy Stars for Pikers.

The Grinnel team which seemed in better condition to withstand the heat proved invincible in the second half of the game. Smashing and passing their way to victory in spite of the stubborn defense of the Pikers. Levy's wonderful punting proved to be one of the features of the game. Playing his first game at fullback, this young giant consistently out-punted Meeter in the first half and kept the Piker goal from danger. Levy shared honors with his running mates in the backfield, Walsh and Ingram, whose passes and smashes proved the best ground gainers for the Pikers.

Meeter played a smashing game at left half for the Pioneers, but could not outshine Stotts, Moran, Sweet and Wing, who time after time broke through the Washington forward wall for good gains. On the line, Peterson, who was playing his first varsity game proved a veritable stone wall in defense in addition to starring in the offense.

The game was slowed down by many penalties to both sides.

Cards Recall 11 Athletes From Minor Circuits

Bell, Who Topped American Association in Hitting, to Get Another Chance.

The Cardinals have recalled [illegible] players, who made the spring training trip, from the minor league teams to which they were sent, according to an announcement by Clarence F. Lloyd, secretary of the team. Chief among the athletes who will return for another whirl at a major league place is Lester Bell, the shortstop, who returns from Milwaukee.

The complete list of players recalled by the Rickeymen follows:

Lester Bell, shortstop, from Milwaukee.

Albert Boole, catcher, from Fort Smith.

Joe Bratcher, outfielder, Oakland.

Edgar Clough, pitcher, Fort Smith.

Art Delaney, pitcher, Houston and Galveston.

Taylor Douthit, outfielder, St. Joseph.

D'Arcy Flowers, infielder, Ft. Smith and Oakland.

William Hallahan, pitcher, Fort Smith and Kalamazoo.

Flint Rhem, pitcher, Fort Smith.

Henry Vick, catcher, Louisville.

Fred Wigington, pitcher, New Haven.

Bell, after his early season failure with the Cardinals, came through in sensational style with the Milwaukee club. Starting slowly he worked his way to the front and when the campaign was finished he was the leading batter in the American Association with an average of .363. Bell can hit that is certain, and if he comes through as a fielder, he will prove a valuable man for the Rickeymen.

Two Young Southpaws.

Of the recalled athletes, Clough, Rhem, Douthit and Hallahan finished the season with the team. Rhem made a favorable impression and is counted upon as a regular for the 1925 pitching staff.

Clough and Hallahan are both left handers. Rickey needs southpaws. His only regular portsiders are Bill Sherdel and Eddie Dyer. Delaney pitched a few games for the Rickeymen last spring, but was sent to the Texas League for more seasoning. He is a right hander. Wigington has made two trips with the Cardinals. He is a right hander with plenty of stuff but lacked experience.

Boole, a catcher, made the training trip two years ago. He was very green, but possessed a wonderful throwing arm, which caught the eye of the Cards' manager. Vick was sent to Louisville last spring when the team's regular receiver was injured. He did a mighty good job and will force Niebergall to hustle to retain the third string berth. However, with Clemons slipping, both Vick and Niebergall will have a good chance to remaining.

Bratcher and Douthit will vie for places in the outfield and Flowers will make another bid for an infield berth.

"Dollar Mark and Gamblers Are Real World's Series Menaces"---Ban Johnson

American League's President Thinks Players' Share Has Become Too Big for Safety, and Suggests Means of Deflating—Seeks U. S. Aid Against Gamblers.

By John E. Wray.
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 11.—Ban Johnson, one time absolute monarch of the baseball world and today esteemed its wisest adviser, self-exiled from the World Series because he refused to view what he termed a "tainted team" compete for the world's highest baseball honors, was a happy man yesterday when he learned that Walter Johnson and the Washington club had finally wrested the crown from New York, where it had been parked for the past three years.

"I am glad that a team without blemish won; and it was fitting that one of baseball's cleanest exponents, Walter Johnson, should have been an important factor in the victory; but I am hoping for the future that the World's Series of years to come will be modified. The brand of the dollar must be effaced and the hand of the gambler manacled," said Johnson between beams from his delighted eyes and gratified smiles.

"The World's Series is a matter for concern," Johnson continued, and the smile went out of his face, leaving him wan and gray-looking, after his severe attack of grippe.

"In the first place the money feature is growing and causing ball players to lose all sense of proportion. I have been quoted as saying that the dollar mark in the National Game was a menace. That I did say but only as regards the World's Series. The money aspect is a matter of anxiety to the game's well wishers. Between the dollar sign and the gamblers lie all the ills—one might say the ONLY ills—that threaten the sport.

Share Equals Season's Pay.

Johnson was asked just where in the world's series the dollar offended. He explained:

"The player's share of a world's series today is out of all reason. The average salary of an American League baseball player counting only those who survive the elimination of early season is somewhere around $5000 to $6000. That is about the individual share of the average world's series winner. It is as much as some of the contestants in the 1924 series earned for a whole season's work.

"The effect of this disproportionate reward, is to center the player's thoughts on money and on winning at any cost. If the race is close, it is a constant temptation to buy or bribe resistance out of the way, to make sure of victory. It has happened in the past. It was attempted in the late campaign. It can happen in the future, unless the great incentive is removed—and that is: Too much dollar!"

"But what remedy is there for this?" President Johnson was asked.

"I don't know that: but there must be one. As well drop the worlds series altogether if it cannot be safeguarded. One way suggested is to reduce the prize to the player, and distribute the rest of the purse among other than first, second and third place clubs.

"Another suggestion is to cut down the price of admissions to world's series games, and this rather favor. They had no such prices as prevail today, 10 years ago—and no talk of tainted series.

"There is still another plan that has merit and it ought to be seriously considered. It is the plan of setting aside a stated amount for the winning and losing players, much less than they now receive, and using the remainder of the world's series 'pot' to establish and maintain an institution for disabled and sick players. I advised an establishment such as this some time ago; but was unable to go through with it.

Amputate the Dollar Mark.

"But under existing conditions, if high prices prevail, it would certainly be one way of amputating some of the dollar mark from the series."

The last mentioned plan was suggested in the Post-Dispatch last week.

"I would think that $2500 for the winning player ought to be the maximum reward," Ban continued. "On this basis the 1924 world's series pot would have yielded about $75,000 for the players' home."

The Post-Dispatch suggestion also advocated that the club owners' share be trimmed and added to the ball players' fund, so that the promoters of the business of baseball, as well as the public that supports it, jointly might become contributors. But Mr. Johnson was silent on this point.

"Is big money hurting baseball in any other respect than in the world's series?" the former Czar of baseball was asked.

"Only insofar as a purely monetary incentive hurts anything. Baseball is a big business and naturally the money factor has grown enormously. But there is nothing sinister in the amounts involved, since the necessity for immense parks, the enormous salaries paid—one player alone draws $52,000, while two executives of one New York club draw $45,000 salaries each—the hundreds of thousands burned up in the purchase of experiments like O'Connell and others, and the high cost of purchasing players all make it necessary to deal in large figures. Clubs must take in big money to survive."

"But none of the clubs can compete in receipts with the New York clubs. Does not that give the metropolitan teams an advantage?"

Money Can't Buy Title.

"The best answer to that," Johnson remarked, "is the Washington club, one of the most cheaply operated and least costly teams in the league. It won the pennant and the world's championship from the Yankees and Giants respectively — two corporations that, roughly, represent $6,000,000 of investment.

"The New York club of the American League has won three pennants since it was organized, more than 20 years ago. Detroit, then a cheap town, has done as much. Philadelphia, where economic spending and thrift are the watchword, has done much. Boston, in days not a costly club, has won the title three times. The White Sox also have won it. I do not believe either New York club or any other club can BUY a pennant through sheer money-to-spend advantages. Owners of real stars are not willing to sell known talent."

President Johnson might have added at this point that the only reason the Yanks were able to buy Ruth and many other former stars of the Red Sox team was because short for the Shells and hit a home Frazee wanted to flout Ban Johnsonrun with two men on.

B. B. JOHNSON.

and also get rid of a $300,000 obligation to Jake Ruppert at the same time. No other instance like that is on record, except when Connie Mack broke up his championship team because of the exorbitant salary demands of his players in 1914.

"As for buying minor leaguers, look around and see the money in hundreds of thousands spent on exploded "wonders" from the bushes," Johnson went on. "Then look around in baseball and see the many great players who came up at practically no cost—the Hornsbys, Speakers, Sislers, Cobbs, Wingards and numberless others. It's up to the manager and scout above all to develop the championship team of today, rather than to the unlimited purse."

"What was your reference to manageling the gambler, Mr. Johnson?"

Federal Aid Needed.

"I meant that a Federal law limiting baseball gambling should be passed. State laws seem inadequate and political influence diverts justice in lots of cases. We have had men under indictment, but they wiggled off the hook. With Federal aid we could prevent it."

"Is gambling prevalent and where?"

"Everywhere. This year it has been greatest on the Coast. There, my investigators inform me, some of the men involved in the 1919 affair are operating. As high as $100,000 has been bet on a single game. That means some player has been bribed, for gamblers are not sportsmen—they MUST not lose when they risk money like that.

"Around the major league circuit gambling still goes on. We have tried to get the goods on some of the big operators, but it is hard. Only when a squealer gives up something, as when one former St. Louis ball player lost a big bet and failed to make good his check, are the culprits turned up. We have investigators at work and few are the leagues in which gamblers are not working, they report. Gamblers are the ones that tempt the baseball players. There are black sheep in every flock and baseball is no exception. Some of them fall for the gambler, but in the main the ballplayer keeps to the line with loyalty and honest effort. That alone makes the game what it is today. Nevertheless, I still insist that the dollar sign must be minimized and the gambler removed entirely in order to make the world's series of the future free from taint.'

Century Cycle Derby Today

Droz, Conrad and Nelson Favored in 14-Mile Road Race.

The Century Cycling Club's annual road race and derby will be held today. The road race will be over the same course as the St. Louis Cycling Club's annual race two weeks ago, on the Olive Street road. The start will be at 9 o'clock from the Creve Coeur car tracks with the finish line at Bellefontaine, 14 miles away. After the road race the cyclists will journey back to Upper Creve Coeur Lake, where they will participate in a hill climbb pursuit race and obstacle race.

The road race is the feature event and has stirred up much interest because of the handicaps and the combination of scratch men. Ten minutes is the handicap given the lead men, although this is not considered large with such riders as Droz, Conrad and Nelson in the race.

WERTHEIMER FULLY SATISFIED WITH RIDING OF EVERETT HAYNES

By the Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 11.—Pierre Wertheimer, owner of Epinard, appeared surprised when told, upon his arrival here tonight with Maj. August Belmont, that it had been reported he was dissatisfied with the race given his horse by Jockey Everett Haynes in the International race at Latonia.

"How can they say such a thing?" he asked. "I have never said so and the truth is that I am satisfied with Haynes' riding—perfectly satisfied. My horse was pocketed for a while in today's race, but that was racing luck, nothing more."

The owner of Epinard, which met this third defeat in America when he finished second to Sarazen today, has made no plans as to the future of his horse, he said, and added he was willing to race him at any time under any conditions that promise interesting racing.

"If Mrs. Vanderbilt is willing to risk Sarazen's reputation by sending him against Epinard again, I should be delighted," he said. He declared that a proposed match race at Churchill Downs during the forthcoming meeting there would be entirely satisfactory to him.

"In fact, I am willing to start him against any horse or field of horses," he said.

Georgia Fails to Kick Goal and Yale Wins, 7-6

Three Cracker Players Are Taken to Hospital as Result of Injuries.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 11.—Yale barely nosed out Georgia by a 7 to 6 score this afternoon. Each team made a touchdown, Georgia scoring in the first half, but failing on the try for a goal from touchdown, while Yale, scoring in the second half, kicked the goal. Georgia had the best of the struggle in the first half, but Yale outplayed the Crackers in the last half.

Three players of the Georgia team were taken to the hospital after the game. None were seriously hurt.

Georgia crossed Yale's goal line in the first period after a steady line attack which carried the ball from Georgia's 20-yard line down the field across the Eli line. They failed to kick the goal. Yale's line was weak and time and again the visitors went through for large gains, being stopped only by the backs.

Yale scored in the third period when 12 successive line rushes by Cottle interspersed with two successful forward passess took the ball to the Red and Black's 3-yard line. Bench went over for a touchdown on a dive through center, and Cottle put the Blue ahead by kicking the goal.

PRINCETON SAVED FROM DEFEAT WHEN REFEREE RULES AGAINST LEHIGH

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 11.—The [illegible] of Palmer Stadium scoreboard remained unchanged during the long afternoon today. The scoreboard top line read "Princeton 0, Lehigh 0," when the ponderous sons of those universities took the field at 3 o'clock and the "0—0" legend still carried when the weary warriors limped toward their dressing rooms.

The last few minutes of that second half saw Lehigh at its best—a best which would have been good enough for a touchdown had the Palmer Stadium engineer made the playing field two inches wider.

Lehigh, with Hess as the outstanding ground-gainer, had swept from its own 10-yard mark down to Princeton's 40-yard line, when the crucial play of the game was cracked. It was a forward pass, Mellenger, Lehigh's left halfback, to Burke, Lehigh's right end. Burke reached skyward for the leather and sprinted across the Princeton goal line.

Referee Fultz had been watching the twinkling feet of Burke during the latter's side-line journey and had noted that he had overstepped the chalk stripe by a scant inch just 10 yards from the Princeton goal. Lehigh was forced to put the ball into play from that point. With that ruling vanished Lehigh's hope for victory.

Epinard Truly Great Horse Despite Defeat In All U. S. Efforts

DESPITE his defeat in all three of the specials run in this country, Epinard has convinced turf followers that he is one of the great horses of history.

With every handicap against him he finished second in each event, beating a specialist at a particular distance on each occasion. No American horse of those that won from Epinard was able to finish as good as second in any of the other specials.

In each of his races Epinard was the victim of bad racing luck or a bad ride; and he was also handicapped by a contract that prevented his being "prepped" in a tuning up race.

In the face of that he achieved the following performance:

First Special six furlongs— Wise Counsellor first, Epinard second, Ladkin third. Time, 1:11 4-5. Lost by half length, coming fast.

Second Special — Ladkin, Epinard, Wise Counsellor. Time, 1:36 2-5. Lost by a whisker and would have won in next jump.

Third Special — Sarazen, Epinard, Mad Play. Time, 2:00 4-5. Was closing fast.

That's glory enough for one lone horse, pitted against the best of an entire country.

CHAMINADE DEFEATS RANKEN ELEVEN, 13-0

AMES SCORES IN LAST 2 MINUTES TO WIN FROM KANSAS, 13-10

LAWRENCE, Kan., Oct. 11. — A place kick by Roberts from the Kansas 20-yard line in the last two minutes of play gave Ames a victory over Kansas today in the first Missouri Valley Conference game of the season for Ames and Kansas on Stadium Field here this afternoon. The final score was 13 to 10.

Ames was first to score in the first period, using the forward pass. After both teams had had the ball and each had failed to make substantial gains by regular football, a pass, Roberts to J. Behm, was completed and Behm ran 40 yards for a touchdown.

Kansas held the offensive throughout the second quarter. Three times the ball was thrust toward the Ames goal. When Ames held the first time, Capt. Burt failed in an attempted place kick. The second time Kansas lost the ball on downs a foot from the goal. On the third assault Burt carried the ball over for the Kansas touchdown and kicked goal for the added point as the half ended.

In the third period Ames went into the lead on Roberts' place kick. The fourth quarter was largely a passing game, neither team being able to gain consistently on straight football. By the aerial route, Ames advanced the ball deep into the Kansas territory but was blocked on the Kansas nine-yard line. Judging the chances against carrying the ball over, a try for goal from the field was signaled. Roberts, dropping back to the 20-yard line, booted a place kick neatly between the posts. Missouri Tigers Gain 14-0 Victory

Missouri Wesleyan Shows Unexpected Strength Against Henry's Eleven.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 11.—Missouri Wesleyan showed real fight and held the powerful University of Missouri eleven to two touchdowns and a pair of points after touchdown here this afternoon, the Tigers finishing their opening home game on the long end of a 14 to 0 score. The first score came in the second quarter, starting with a 17-yard pass, Swofford to Jackson, which placed the Bengals within striking distance, and ending with Jackson's dive for the touchdown in the fourth period.

A back field filled with recruits and working behind a line from which most of the regulars had been withdrawn ripped off a magnificent march down the field to send Casteel over the Wesleyan goal. Coglizer kicked a goal from placement for the first try for point, and Richardson made good the second by the same route.

Practically all of the game was played in Wesleyan territory and though the Bengals at times lacked the punch to score there never was a time that the goal line was in danger and they ran up a yardage which completely eclipsed the efforts of the Methodist eleven.

Coach Henry started his regular lineup for the Tigers, with the exception of Whiteman and Thomas, who were replaced in the backfield by Simpson and Swofford and held the offensive for practically all of the first half. He started the second half, however, with a string of stubstitutes, and changes continued to be made rapidly throughout the third and fourth periods.

The lineup:

Missouri.	Position.	Wesleyn.
Smith	Center	Gilchrist
Lewis	Right guard	Hulse

Swofford	Fullback	Grantham

The score by quarters.

Missouri	0	7	0	7	—14

Substitutions—Sween for Shaffner, Berreit for Sween, Shaffner for Barrett, Barrett for Shaffner, Baer for Morrelock, Henderson for Baer, Schultz for Grantham, McCully for Schultz, Parks for Clemens, Tuttle for Simpson, Baccus for Coglizer, Stuber for Bond, O'Sullivan for Jackson, Lindenmeyer for Vandyine, Walker for Stafford, Richardson for Palermo, Etter for Lewis, Lewis for Walsh, Hicks for Tuttle.

Cards Recall 11 Athletes From Minor Circuits

Bell, Who Topped American Association in Hitting, to Get Another Chance.

The Cardinals have recalled 11 players, who made the spring training trip, from the minor league teams to which they were sent, according to an announcement by Clarence F. Lloyd, secretary of the team. Chief among the athletes who will return for another whirl at a major league place is Lester Bell, the shortstop, who returns from Milwaukee.

The complete list of players recalled by the Rickeymen follows:

Lester Bell, shortstop, from Milwaukee.

Albert Boolp, catcher, from Fort Smith.

Joe Bratcher, outfielder, Oakland.

Edgar Clough, pitcher, Fort Smith.

William Hallahan, pitcher, Fort Smith and Kalamazoo.

Flint Rhem, pitcher, Fort Smith.

Henry Vick, catcher, Louisville.

Fred Wigington, pitcher, New Haven.

Bell, after his early season failure with the Cardinals, came through in sensational style with the Milwaukee club. Starting slowly he worked his way to the front and when the campaign was finished he was the leading batter in the American Association with an average of .363. Bell can hit, that is certain, and if he comes through as a fielder, he will prove a valuable man for the Rickeyites.

Two Young Southpaws.

Of the recalled athletes, Clough, Rhem, Douthit and Hallahan finished the season with the team. Rhem made a favorable impression and is counted upon as a regular for the 1925 pitching staff.

Clough and Hallahan are both left handers. Rickey needs southpaws. His only regular portsiders are Bill Sherdel and Eddie Dyer. Delaney pitched a few games for the Rickeymen last spring, but was sent to the Texas League for more seasoning. He is a right hander. Wigington has made two training trips with the Cardinals. He is a right hander with plenty of stuff, but lacked experience.

Boole, a catcher, made the training trip two years ago. He was very green, but possessed of a wonderful throwing arm, which caught the eye of the Cardinal manager. Vick was sent to Louisville last spring when the teams' regular receiver was injured. He did a mighty good job and will force Niebergall to hustle to retain the third string berth. However, with Clemons slipping, both Vick and Niebergall will have a good chance to remaining.

Bratcher and Douthit will try for places in the outfield and Flowers will make another bid for an infield berth.

UNIVERSITY CITY AND CLAYTON WIN IN COUNTY LEAGUE

Rough play marked the two opening games in the County Football League yesterday. Webster defeated Normandy on the Webster field, 19-0, while University City High won from Clayton, 17-6, on the Pershing Field.

In the Webster-Normandy clash Quarterback Van Reen of Normandy was ruled out of the game on a charge of slugging.

Lintzenich, Webster halfback, was the outstanding star of the game. Decker and Dammerman played a good game for Normandy.

Pelot, Jenkins and Stamm were the University City stars. Pelot was responsible for a touchdown, a place kick and two points after touchdowns. Boldt made Clayton's lone touchdown in the first few minutes of the game.

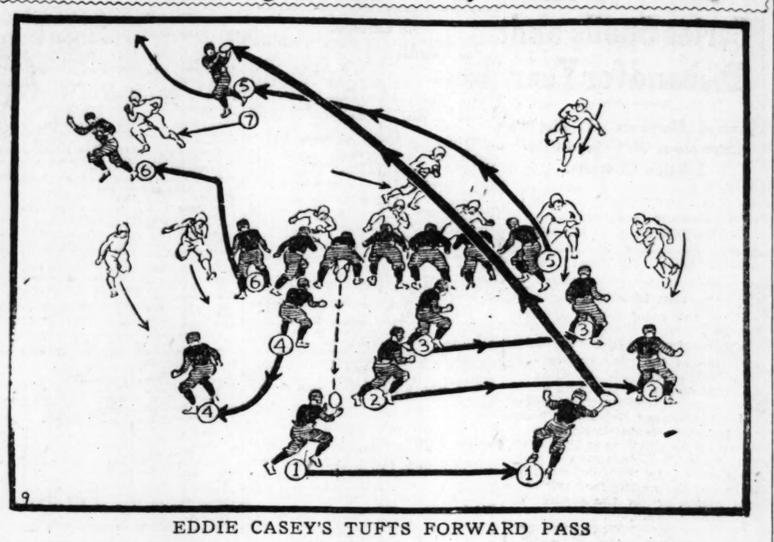
DR. PAINTER JOINS HOLE-IN-ONE CLUB

Dr. George W. Painter joined the "Hole In One Club" when he made the fifth hole on the St. Charles Country Club golf course in one stroke. He was playing with Morris Martin at the time. Dr. Painter announced that he would have the ball mounted and retain it as a souvenir.

Winning Football Plays—No. 9



EDDIE CASEY'S TUFTS FORWARD PASS

EDDIE Casey, who starred at Harvard before coaching at Tufts is a firm believer in the aerial attack. He has found the accompanying forward pass to be very effective. It develops from a regular long side formation.

Direct pass from the center to No. 1, who starts to the right as if for an end run.

Nos. 2 and 3 precede him, acting as interference.

Short end, No. 6, goes down straight and then turns to the left to draw defensive right halfback.

Defensive fullback is drawn to long side of line by fake end run.

Long end, No. 5, cuts diagonally across behind defensive right halfback.

No. 1, after running four to five yards, stops and throws long pass diagonally across to long end.

Nos. 2 and 3 protect the passer.

Short end protects the receiver.

If the pass is timed correctly only the defensive right halfback should be near the receiver and even he should be drawn away by the offensive short end, who signals loudly for the ball.

Langford Tells of Standing on One Foot, With Other Ankle Broken, and Knocking Out Opponent

"Boston Tar Baby" Describes Difficulty of Pleasing Crowds; A Three-Round Fight in Which There Was Only One Punch; Fighting as a Business.

These excerpts from Sam Langford's life story, as told through a representative of the Post-Dispatch, relates to some of Langford's experiences in the ring after he had met some success...The "Boston Tar Baby" declares that fighting must be made a life study for a pugilist to keep going.

ON April 14, 1910, I fought Jim Barry in Vernon, Cal. The fight game had known many greater fighters than Barry, many who could hit harder and who were faster and smarter. But there never was one with a greater fighting heart than that same Barry.

I've had some tough fights in my day, but mighty few were tougher than that one with Barry. He had a rather clumsy style and he was hard to reach, but while you were missing him he always was socking you.

It was about even up for 15 rounds. In the sixteenth the finish came and it was the most sensational I ever figured in. I missed a hard hook for Barry's chin and Jim, catching me whirling, swung a right that lifted me right off my feet. I landed on the floor all doubled up. At the count of three or four I tried to get up but something had happened to one of my legs. I didn't know what it was. All I knew was that the leg wouldn't stand up under me.

I knew I was a goner unless I could get over one punch and finish Barry with it.

So, using my hands and one leg, I braced myself and then I leaped at my feet as Barry came in. Tottering around on that one leg, I measured Barry's rush. Then I let fly. I don't know which hand it was. I think it was a left hook.

The punch caught Barry full and solid. He went down, all tangled up. While the referee counted, I continued standing on that one leg, while terrible pains were shooting through the other.

"Ten," yelled the referee.

Barry had been knocked out.

I tried to hop to my corner. But I lost my balance. My seconds caught me and carried me to my chair. A doctor jumped up, ripped off my shoe, examined the ankle—said: "Broken in two places."

Pleasing the Customers.

CASH customers are funny people. You never can tell what they want—or what they don't want. Lots of times when you are giving what you think they want, it's all wrong.

A lot of years ago I was matched to meet a fellow in the old National Sporting Club, in New York. I didn't know how tough he was, and I said to myself, "I guess I will find out in the first round." So I slapped him on the chin right away and banged his body and he went down. He got up and I dropped him again. While the referee was counting, the crowd was on the chairs, yelling:

"Go easy, Sam; give us a run for our money."

Well, that boy got up, and instead of hitting him, I got him in a clinch and wrestled around with him so he could get a little strength in his legs. I let him stay that round, and, because the crowd wanted it, I let him stick two or three more rounds. All the time I was just sort of shadow boxing instead of trying to hit him, because I knew if I did he was going to be all through for that night.

What did the crowd do?

Well, it began to hiss me and boo me because I didn't knock out the fellow it had asked me not to knock out. That made me mad. So, when the round ended, instead of going to my corner, I leaned over the ropes and made a speech. I said: "I don't know how to please you people. When I am going to knock a man out you tell me not to, and when I do as you want, you get mad at me because I don't knock my man out. I want to say now that this fight ends in the next round and that if I ever box in New York again, I'll never again hold a man up to please anybody."

I knocked out my opponent in the next round, and in all the years afterward I never, when fighting in New York, let a fight go one second longer than I could help.

A One-Punch Fight.

IT was along about that time—1911—when I fought a boy named Fred Atwater, up in Utica, N. Y. Fred came out for the first round with his hands held straight in front of him like a fellow that wanted to get his palms crossed with silver. That looked kind of tricky to me, and I feinted a couple of times to see what Fred would do. All he did was just to hold his hands like that.

That boy had me puzzled. I never made a lead in that whole round and neither did Fred. And he never shifted his hands. I'd heard he was a great hitter and had a tricky way of hitting, and I wasn't going to take any chances rushing him until I knew what that boy did with his hands.

In the second round it was just the same way. I'd walk around him and he'd pivot around, following me with his eyes, and then I'd feint, or bluff a rush, but Fred never moved those sticking-out hands.

When I got back to my corner my seconds said.

"Sam, what do you make of him?"

"I don't know," I said, "but in this next round I'm going to find out. If that's a trap I'm going right into it, and if it ain't, then Freddie's going out of the building on a stretcher."

The third round bell rang and I rushed over at Freddie and, almost before he could get out of his chair, I extended my hands, like as if I wanted to shake with him.

"Hey, Sam, we ain't shaking hands yet," said Freddie. "Dis ain't de last round."

"That's right, boy," I said "—— that's right. It ain't the last round on the written program, but it's the last round for you."

So I chopped down with my right, knocked Freddie's hands straight down, then I left hooked his chin—and that was the first and last punch of that fight.

Fighting as a Business.

THIS fighting business is like every other kind of business. You've got to keep studying and learning all the time, for if you don't, the folks that do will just pass you right by on the way to the top.

A lot of people have wondered how I kept bouncing around in the ring for so long and could keep right on whipping boys even after I got crow's feet under my eyes and a lot of fat around my waist.

Well, it was because I was always studying fighting and learning new tricks, and after I lost my shape and my speed and my eyesight, I was fighting with my head.

When I wasn't fighting, I was going to fight shows and watching all the fighters to see what they had. When I'd see someone doing something new, or using a punch better than I used. I'd go to a gymnasium the next day and practice and practice until I learned the trick.

I never fought a great fighter without learning something from him. Whenever he was making me look bad by getting out of the way of some of my punches, or by hitting me, I was remembering how it all happened. The next day I would be in that old gymnasium practicing again.

I learned a lot from fighting Joe Gans—especially the short, in close way of punching. I learned a lot about using the legs from him, too. The time I fought Joe Wolcott I learned how a fellow could stand toe-to-toe and slug and yet not get all the worst of it. My fight with Jack Johnson taught me about the uppercut. The mixups with Joe Jeannette were great schoolers, too. I learned some clinching tricks from Harry Wills, and I surely did improve the left hook by throwing it like Sam McVey did.

Boxer Bud Taylor to Try Bonesetter Reese, Ball Players' Friend

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 11.

BUDDY TAYLOR, Chicago bantamweight king, is on his way to "Bonesetter" Reese of Ohio to have his arm and shoulder examined. His manager, Eddie Long, figures that if the famous surgeon can fix up baseball players he can do the same for a boxer.

Buddy has had considerable trouble with his arm and hands at times; but the past eight months has had his shoulder out of gear four or five times. It prevented him from getting a chance at the championship and now he is going to try and have it fixed up properly.

Taylor has been on the Pacific Coast with his stable mate, Sammy Mandell, for two months and won his match at Vernon without much difficulty. He hopes to have his shoulder put in good working order and will then make another start after the bantamweight title.

St. Louis U. High Eleven Defeats McKinley, 28-6

Campbell's 60-Yard Run for Touchdown Is Feature—Winning Team Shows Punch.

Coach Boland's St. Louis University High School gave a convincing exhibition of football yesterday morning at St. Louis University Athletic Field when it trimmed McKinley High by a 28-6 score in a game that was well played for three periods but ragged at the end. By their well-timed attack and fighting defense, the Billiken juniors indicated that they will be well up in the race for the city interscholastic honors at the end of the season.

Halfback Campbell's interception of a McKinley pass in his own territory in the second quarter and his subsequent 60-yard dash down the field gave the Boland men their first counter. Later they fumbled on the McKinley 10-yard line. As but a minute and a half remained of the first half, the West Enders began a passing game at midfield following the kickoff, and two passes, the scoring one from Dischneider to Schaeffer, put the ball over.

Winners Pile Up Points.

The third period saw a relentless smashing attack by the Billikens through trackle, and Campbell finally went over for the third touchdown. They received the kickoff again and bucking ther way down the field, scored when Quarterback Strong shot a short pass to Browning over the line.

The fourth period found the Billikens a bit loose in their play, though the McKinley attempts at line bucking came to naught. Using an aerial game, however, the South Siders soon worked the ball to the St. Louis five-yard line, from where Willmarth went over on a fake buck.

Willmarth McKinley's Star.

Willmarth's work was the outstanding performance for McKinley. His defensive work was sparkling and his cool handling of forward passes accounted for the only gains his team made.

Campbell's speed and his faculty for following the ball stamped him as a real star. Quarterback Strong looked good in open field running and Schaeffer at right end stood out especially on defense. The Billiken line work, in general, was good except that over eagerness caused many penalties for offside.

GRAND JURY TO TAKE UP FIRPO PERJURY CASE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Luis Angel Firpo's persistent foe, Canon William Sheafe Chase of Brooklyn, it developed today, has appealed successfully to the Federal grand jury to investigate charges that Firpo perjured himself when he swore upon admission to this country last July that his acquaintance with Miss Blanca Picart was "only casual."

Knowledge of the clergyman's attack on the Argentine pugilist from this new angle came as an interruption to Commissioner Hitchcock's hearing of the same charges, sworn to by Canon Chase in August, pending settlement of which the fighter has since been at liberty in $2000 bail.

Two witnesses had been examined when Assistant United States Attorney Mattuck entered the hearing room to tell Commissioner Hitchcock Canon Chase had asked the grand jury foreman direct to take up the Firpo matter and the foreman had signified his intention to comply.

Soldan Hands Principia Defeat

Dietrich Crosses Goal and Kelly Makes Place Kick for 10—0 Victory.

The Soldan High football eleven defeated the Principia Academy team, 10 to 0, at Francis Field yesterday. It was the first defeat for a Principia football team by a high school eleven in three seasons.

Brilliant running by Kelly, the Soldan quarterback, and Richardson, at right halfback, aided Coach Cook's team in the victory. Principia was on the defensive during most of the contest. The academy's defense was particularly good in the final quarter when Soldan came within two yards of the Academy goal on three different occasions.

Capt. Browne at fullback and Deal at left end were the individual stars for Principia.

Principia kicked to Soldan as the first quarter opened. Soldan returned the kick and recovered the ball on a fumble by Fowler. On the fourth down a forward pass, Austin to Dietrich, gave Soldan the only touchdown of the game. A place kick by Kelly added another point.

Cornell Beaten After Winning 26 Straight Games

Ithacans Fumble Badly in Game Won by Williams, 14 to 7.

By the Associated Press.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 11.—Cornell's string of 26 consecutive gridiron victories ended today when Williams defeated the big red team, 14 to 7. Misplays and fumbles by Cornell and a dazzling aerial attack by Williams were the principal factors in the Ithacans' downfall.

The first period was scoreless. In the second period, a forward pass, Hoeckelman to Isaly, brought the ball to within scoring distance for Cornell. Wheatstone took the ball across the goal line and kicked a placement.

Hoeckelman a few minutes later dropped a Williams' punt. Ide, the New Englanders' left end, recovered the fumble and raced 10 yards for Williams' first touchdown. Fisher kicked the goal.

In the third period there began a mighty battle for the breaks, but without a score.

In the fourth period, Williams unhooked a powerful aerial offensive. A toss from Clement to Bourne brought the ball to Cornell's 25-yard line. Then Clement hurled the ball to Ide and the doughty end scored a touchdown. Williams clearly outplayed Cornell in the second half.

AGA KHAN SETS NEW TRACK RECORD IN PIERREPONT STAKE

Priscilla Ruley Finishes Second By Five Lengths

Winner Stands Killing Pace, and Then Comes On to Win in 2:01 4-5.

OTHERS ARE OUTCLASSED

Light Weight on Both Winner and Runner-Up Acounts for Fast Time.

By G. F. T. Ryall,
Of the New York World Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Aga Khan and Priscilla Ruley, running in the colors of the Belair stud, galloped off one, two with the Pierrepont handicap at one mile and a quarter, at Jamaica this afternoon.

Galloped is not used advisedly for rather the two 3-year-olds fairly flew over what is one of the slowest tracks in this district. As the time hung out was 2:01 4-5, this might well have been a world's record for the ten furlongs though H. P. Whitney's Whisk Broom II is credited with running the distance in 2:00. Few, however, believe that Whisk Broom's time in the Suburban of 1913, in which he carried 139 pounds, approached this mark by more than a full second.

The Pierrepont was not a race except in that it had a place on the card and the association gave a purse. From the rise of the barrier it was a trial of speed for two horses, Rialto and Horologe; the other starters never were in the picture.

Aga Khan Takes the Lead.

Priscilla Ruley broke on top and led for the first mile, then Aga Khan, which raced never more than a length behind, went to the front and passed the winning post five lengths in front. Priscilla Ruley beat Horologue by four lengths. That was all there was to the race. As they passed the finish Aga Khan was eased a bit and Priscilla Ruley moved up to him and together they worked out a mile and a half in 2:29 2-5. In running the mile and a quarter in 2:01 4-5 some of the clockers in the stand made it a second faster. Aga Khan lowered the track record of 2:03 2-5, set by Mad Hatter on Oct. 7, 1922, one and 3-5 seconds.

Priscilla Ruley, carrying 111 pounds, went to the quarter in 0:46 3-5, six furlongs in 1:11 ½ and the mile in 1:36 3-5 and Aga Khan, under 109 pounds, went on the next quarter in 2:01 4-5. He was still in front as they completed the 12 furlongs in 2:29 3-5.

The largest crowd of the meeting, attracted rather by the glorious golden weather than the card, came down to the course for this, the last Saturday of racing on Long Island.

Favorite Wins Opener.

The run of favorites continued in the first race, a claiming event for maiden 3-year-olds and upward. The best that Jeroboam, the public choice, could do was to finish third. Breaking from the rail position he did not have early foot enough to get clear and always was back of horses. Kia made the early running with Royal Airman forcing the pace and at the head of the stretch Royal Airman made his run, winning with something to spare from Reliable, which came from far back. Kia stopped badly, as usual, in the last furlong.

Skirmish An Improved Horse.

Platers can make as good a race out of it as stake horses some times. Skirmish beat Briggs Buchanan in as tight a fit as any at the meeting in the second event at one mile and 70 yards.

Skirmish, which is a much improved horse, was lapped on Honfleur, which made the running for seven furlongs and then stood off the closing rush of Briggs Buchanan in the last furlong. The Post, the favorite, was away slowly and never got within half a dozen lengths of the leaders. Had Honfleur a stronger and headier rider she might have won. Also she interfered with Briggs Buchanan just as he made his run and this might just be the differene between winning and losing.

ALL-STARS TAKE LEAD IN SERIES, WINNING, 9 TO 5

"Mickey" O'Neil's All-Stars defeated the St. Louis Stars, the negro team, at Stars Park yesterday, 9 to 5, in the fifth game of their series, taking a 3-to-2 lead in games.

Allan Peterson's single in the ninth inning, which drove in two runners, broke a 5-5 tie.

The score by innings:

Club.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R.	H.	E.
All-Stars	0	2	0	0	2	0	0	0	5	—9	14	1
St. L. S.	0	0	0	2	0	0	2	0	0	—5	7	5

Senators Receive Series Spoils and Disband for Year

Several Members of World's Champions Will Play in Exhibition Contests.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. — The world's champions of 1924, as a baseball team disbanded today, leaving their record engraved in the permanent history of the sport and in the memories of its followers.

Ceremonies marking the disintegration of the fighting aggregation which brought Washington her first league pennant and world title were informally completed today in the local club house. They consisted in the simple handshake, a slap on the shoulder and "see you next spring," whereupon most members of the team departed by train and automobile for their several homes or for the scenes of winter activities.

Prior to leave-takings, manager "Bucky" Harris appeared with a fist full of checks marking the winners' split of the world series "take." There were 24 checks, each for $5959.64, drawn to the 22 active members of the Senators, with two additional made out to Nick Altrock and Mike Martin, the club trainers and commanders of what in the army would be morale section.

Bonus for Wid Matthews.

The players themselves chipped in for Wade Lefler, for Frank Baxter, the lame batboy and the ground-keeping squad, and the Washington club wired a bonus of $1000 to Wid Matthews, who was sent to Sacramento in midseason as part of the $50,000 deal which brought Earl McNeely here. President Clark Griffith declared as he signed the check that the "dividends on that investment were fat enough to justify a generous view of the situation."

Uncle Sam, as a silent partner in the enterprise will receive $109,310.40 through the internal revenue imposts. An official statement from the treasury today place the total admissions at $1,093,104, upon which a tax of ten per cent will be levied.

Weary to the final degree and sapped by the strain of yesterday's 12-inning thriller, the players barred baseball and any remotely related topic from subjects fit to be discussed.

All Praise Manager Harris.

For the most part they stood silent waiting while attendants cleaned their lockers and packed the uniforms and other personal belongings in waiting trunks. Then a trip to the treasurer's office for a final "OK" on the accounts and one by one the group departed.

Reticent as they were to discuss the series, each player denied having any particular part in the victory ascribing it generally to "the bunch" or Harris' leadership, and in some cases to "the breaks" of the game. McNeely, to whom is attributed the decisive hit of the final game, dismissed queries today with the assertion that "it was a lucky bounce that did it." The only unanimity was in expression of satisfaction that Johnson had come through to victory.

Some Players to Barnstorm.

Although most of the team insisted they were "fed up" on baseball for months to come, several already have started on exhibition tours of varying length. Manager Harris departed tonight for New Haven where he and "Goose" Goslin are to participate in a game. Harris will return to Washington for the winter while Goslin will proceed to Salem, N. J., his home town.

Walter Johnson, Joe Judge, George Mogridge, Al Schacht and Nick Altrock departed Friday night to join a team of professionals for an authorized barnstorming trip, while Sam Rice also hiked off right after the title games for Canada, where he will join a European tour with the members of the Giants and White Sox. Muddy Ruel will also take this trip.

Among those who departed tonight were Tom Taylor, Fred Marberry, Wade Lefler, Bennie Tate, Joe Martina, "Mule" Shirley and Harry Leibold. Taylor was headed for Memphis where he says he will give his injured hand a time to heal before looking around for a winter job. Marberry is now on his way to Streetman, Tex., which proudly claims him. He says he is going to try to improve his curve ball before rejoining the Nats next year.

Peck's Leg Is Bandaged.

Lefler, a member of the North Carolina bar, expects to hang out his shingle at Winston Salem; Martina will again become an oyster merchant at his home in New Orleans; Leibold will again "wrack 'em up" in his billiard parlor in Detroit; while Tate has nothing in mind at present to occupy his spare time at West Frankfort, Ill. Shirley, the other Nat who deserted the capital today, was bound for Snowhill, N. C., and he expects to kill time, at least until the snow flies, watching the college football games in the Sunny South. Mule was a grid star at North Carolina University before taking up the diamond game.

Tom Zachary, Paul Zahniser, Curley Ogden and Earl McNeely will stick around the capital for a few days longer. Johnson, it seems, will only play a few games with the barnstormers and Zachary expects to take his place with the same combination.

The other three will wait here until Johnson gives the word, then will join him in a hunting party at his home in Reno, Nev.

Peckinpaugh, the veteran shortstop, whose gameness was one of the features of the series, widely commented upon, was in the clubhouse group today. His injured leg was in bandages but the attending physician predicted a thorough recovery before spring. Peck announced his intention to return to his real estate business in Cleveland.

Illinois Easy Winner Over Butler, 40-10

"Red" Grange Scores Two Touchdowns, One After a 48-Yard End Run.

By the Associated Press.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 11.—Showing a complete reversal of form over its showing against Nebraska last Saturday, Illinois overwhelmed Butler here today, 40 to 10.

Harold "Red" Grange proved conclusively that he had not gone back by scoring two touchdowns before leaving the game early in the second quarter. One came after a 15-yard dash and the other was a 48-yard journey wide around left end.

McIlwain shared honors with Grange during the first quarter, his terrific line smashing gaining from four to eight yards on almost every effort. Paul furnished the feature for Butler by blocking Britton's kick and falling on it for Butler's lone touchdown late in the fourth quarter. Griggs added the other three Butler points when he put a place kick between the posts from the 43-yard line in the fourth quarter.

Using straight football and an occasional pass, Illinois went through Butler almost at will and threw up a score of 33 to 0 in the first quarter.

Coming back in the third period, Butler braced and fought the Illini on even terms for the entire quarter. Starting just as the third quarter ended, Butler opened up with an aerial attack.

The lineups:

Illinois.	Position.	Butler.
Muhl	Left end	Paul
Roberts	Center	Reichel
Miller	Right guard	Mulholland
R. le Hall	Right tackle	Strole
Carr	Right end	Woodin
H. A. Hall	Quarterback	Nipper
McIlwain	Right halfback	Griggs

Touchdowns—Grange 2, McIlwain, Lecard (sub for McIlwain), Gallivan 2. Points after touchdown—Britton 4. Griggs. Goal from field—Griggs.

The Vespers will have several new players in their lineup and Ratican's team is also considerably changed.

The first game will start at two o'clock. Paul Murphy will referee the first game and Phil Kavanaugh the second.

CENTRE COLLEGE CALLS OFF FOOTBALL CONTEST WITH CARSON-NEWMAN

By the Associated Press.

DANVILLE, Ky., Oct. 11.—A discrepancy in statements" by Carson-Newman College officials regarding the eligibility of members of the Tennessee school's team, resulted in the Centre College athletic board of control calling off today's game here between Carson-Newman and Centre.

Following a two-hour session last night, at which Lake Russell, Carson-Newman coach, was present, the athletic board issued this statement:

"In view of a discrepancy in the statement of Dr. John D. Russell, dean of Carson-Newman College, to the effect that no Syracuse (N. Y.) players were enrolled in the school and a statement of Russell that there were four Syracuse players three of whom are with the team, two of whom are eligible, which discrepancy, together with the interest of Syracuse newspapers in the team, is disturbing, and in consequent bad feeling as a result of the situation have made Centre College authorities feel justified in calling off the game."

PREDICTS NEXT SENATE WILL BE DEMOCRATIC

Chairman of Campaign Committee Sees Increase of at Least Six.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-22 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The next Senate, according to Senator Jones of New Mexico, chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, will be controlled by a safe majority of Democrats. This estimate is based on personal investigations into the close states.

"The 15 seats now held by Democrats in the Senate, which are to be filled in the election of November will again be filled by Democrats," said Senator Jones. "That gives us the 43 Democratic Senators we now have and we are going to capture enough seats from the Republicans to make the Democratic list go to 49, or above it, a gain of at least six, giving the Democratic party control of the Senate.

His Summary of Situation.

"Senator David I. Walsh is making a telling campaign in Massachussets and he is going to be reelected. The other Walsh, Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, is certain of election. Tennessee is going to send to the Senate that gallant overseas soldier, Gen. L. D. Tyson, and Kentucky will return to the Senate Senator A. O. Stanley. The news that comes from Oklahoma is most favorable for the election of Gov. J. C. Walton. Senator Alva B. Adams will come back to the Senate from Colorado. All signs point to the gain of a Democrat in the election of Morris Shafroth, giving us two Democratic Senators from Colorado in place of one. Then who doubts the election of Senator Simmons of North Carolina, Heflin of Alabama, Harrison of Mississippi, Robinson of Arkansas, Harris of Georgia, Ransdell of Louisiana, Sheppard of Texas, Gass of Virginia, and of Cole Blease from South Carolina.

Soccer League Teams to Open Season Today

Vespers to Meet Scullins in First Game of Double-Header.

The St. Louis Soccer League will open its 1924-25 season at St. Louis University Athletic Field, LaClede avenue and Grand boulevard, this afternoon. The city champion Vesper team will oppose the former national champion Scullins in the opening game and the new Ben Millers, under Billy Foley, will meet Harry Ratican's club.

Manager Tate Brady of the Scullins has announced that he has signed four young forwards, graduates of the Municipal League. One of them is Eddie Hart, an inside left, who was a member of the United States soccer team in the Olympic games. Walter Berry, Dick Pait and Al Mueller are the other new Scullin forwards.

Brady has released Tom Mitchell and Joe Rooney.

The Vespers will have several new players in their lineup and Ratican's team is also considerably changed.

The first game will start at 2:30 o'clock. Paul Murphy will referee the first game and Phil Kavanaugh the second.

CENTRE COLLEGE CALLS OFF FOOTBALL CONTEST WITH CARSON-NEWMAN

By the Associated Press.

DANVILLE, Ky., Oct. 11.—A "discrepancy in statements" by Carson-Newman College officials regarding the eligibility of members of the Tennessee school's team resulted in the Centre College athletic board of control calling off today's game here between Carson-Newman and Centre.

Following a two-hour session last night, at which Lake Russell, Carson-Newman coach, was present, the athletic board issued this statement:

"In view of a discrepancy in a statement of Dr. John D. Everett, dean of Carson-Newman College, to the effect that no Syracuse (N. Y.) players were enrolled in the school, and a statement of Russell that there were four Syracuse players, three of whom are with the team, two of whom are eligible, * * * which discrepancy, together with the interest of Syracuse newspapers in the team, is disturbing, and the consequent bad feeling as a result of the situation have made Centre College authorities feel justified in calling off the game."

Chairman of Campaign Committee Sees Increase of at Least Six.

Then who doubts the election of Senator Simmons of North Carolina, Heflin of Alabama, Harrison of Mississippi, Robinson of Arkansas, Harris of Georgia, Ransdell of Louisiana, Sheppard of Texas, Gass of Virginia, and of Cole Blease from South Carolina.

"The outlook in Delaware is most favorable to the election of James M. Tunnell, whose Republican opponent is former Senator Coleman Dupont. In Illinois there is another Republican factional fight. Senator McCormick lost out in the primary and the nomination went to former Gov. Deneen. The Democratic nominee Col. A. A. Sprague, looks a winner. In Iowa, with Daniel F. Steck, our nominee, the situation is confused, but there are hopes that the fight between the Republicans and the La Foleitte forces will carry Steck across the line. The chances for James Malone, Democratic nominee in Kansas, I regard as excellent.

Chance in Minnesota.

"In Minnesota, the Republicans are making a hard fight to defeat Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Labor, and the fighting is so fierce between these opposing forces that there is a fine chance for John J. Farrell, Democratic nominee, to win. Nebraska is good fighting ground. In New Mexico the fight appears to be going strong against Senator Bursum, one of the Republican reactionaries. In New Hampshire the swing is to George E. Ferrand, Democrat. From Michigan the news is good as to the outlook for Mortimer E. Cooley.

"New Jersey gives excellent promise of electing Frederick W. Donnelly, whose Republican opponent is Senator Edge. In Rhode Island, Democrats express confidence in the election of Gov. William S. Flynn. In West Virginia the Democratic nominee is former Senator William E. Chilton, who stands high with the people, and who will benefit by the 'home State' vote for John W. Davis for President. It looks like Wyoming will give the victory to Judge Robert R. Rose, whose Republican opponent is Senator Warren, old guard to the core, supporter of Newberry."

Prosecution of Leaders of Church Congress Ordered

As Result of Obregon's Decree Two Final Ceremonies Are Cancelled—Order Due to Decoration of Homes by Populace.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 11.—In consequence of President Obregon's demand for action by the Procurator-General of Justice against "those responsible for inducing" the inhabitants of Mexico City to decorate their homes for the Eucharistic Congress, in session here, the organizers of the congress have decided not to carry out the last two ceremonies in their program—a procession in a large private park, and a pilgrimage to the Guadaluppe Shrine a few miles from the city.

In his instructions to the Procurator-General, the President expressed the opinion that the decoration of the houses implied "manifestation of an external cult," which is explicitly forbidden by law and which he declared was inspired by the directors of the Eucharistic Congress. The President also ordered the Procurator-General to take note of the number of foreigners involved in violations, and demanded a list of their names and addresses.

The Archbishops and Bishops attending the congress have refused to comment on the case. News of the President's action created a sensation similar to that surrounding the expulsion from Mexico of the Papal Nuncio, Monsignor Filippi, in 1923, and gave rise to rumors of the possible expulsion of three foreign Bishops—a Texan, a Cuban and a Salvadorean. These rumors, however, are not credited in church circles.

BAKER SAYS ROAD ISSUE IS NOT A POLITICAL ONE

Republican Candidate for Governorship Declares Program in State Must Be Completed.

Proposition No. 5 is not a political question, Samuel A. Baker, Republican nominee for the governorship, told an audience of 300 at the St. Charles courthouse, where he spoke last night.

"I want to put particular stress upon that fact," he added. "The road program must be completed."

Baker said that he advocated pinciples of efficiency, economy, and a square deal in State Government and added: "If Sam's elected those principles will be put in practice." He also made a plea for education and equal school advantages to all Missouri boys and girls.

Baker was introduced by Dr. John L. Roemer, president of Lindenwood College, whose dinner guest he was, together with Henry Broeker, chairman of the St. Charles County Republican Central Committee and other committee members.

OBTAINS DIVORCE FROM MAN SHE RECENTLY SHOT

Mrs. Clara Stone Is at Liberty on Bond for Wounding Building Contractor.

Mrs. Clara Stone of East St. Louis was granted a divorce from Charles F. Stone, building contractor, in a sealed jury verdict returned in East St. Louis City Court yesterday, on allegations of cruelty. The case, tried before City Judge Cook, lasted three days and 41 witnesses were heard.

Mrs. Stone is at liberty on $1000 bond on a charge of shooting and slightly wounding her husband when he broke into their home, 1302 North Park Drive, the night of July 19, last. One day befor the shooting she brought suit for divorce, alleging cruelty and association with other women. On Aug. 30, last, he filed a cross bill charging her with association with men objectionable to him and with an attempt to kill in connection with the shooting. The jury verdict did not mention his charges or Mrs. Stone's allegations of his association with other women.

Testimony was that Stone had struck his wife on three different occasion. They were married in July, 1923, and separated June 20, last. Both had been married previously.

POLITICS IN FOUR COUNTIES UPSET BY K. K. K. ISSUE

Democrats and Republicans Troubled by Activities in Dunklin, Stoddard, Butler and Pemiscot.

SHARP DIVISION OVER THE KLAN

Where Members of Hooded Society Control Organizations, Parties Suffer in Southeast Missouri.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KENNETT, Mo., Oct. 11.—It is rather generally the opinion in Southeast Missouri that the Ku Klux Klan issue will have an important bearing on the November election. There is not much difference of opinion about that, but there is a considerable difference as to what the effect will be.

The present indications in Dunklin County, Butler County, Stoddard County and Pemiscot County are that as a result of klan activities, the politics of this section of the State is in a scrambled condition which prevents the reaching of any clear idea of just what will come out of it all.

Stoddard is freer than other counties of the klan influence and it appeared there that the usual Democratic majority of more than 1500 could be expected. The party organization is functioning well and an old-time crowd was out Friday night to attend the meeting addressed by four Democratic candidates for State offices at Bloomfield, but elsewhere conditions are very unsatisfactory from the standpoint of both the Republican and Democratic parties.

Committees Under Handicap.

In Butler County the party committees have been seriously handicapped by the lack of a spirit of co-operation among their members, a lack which is directly traceable to an intolerant division of klan and antiklan lines. Other counties, particularly Dunklin, reveal a similar condition. Where the klan has obtained control of the party organization, as it has in a number of Southeastern counties, the antiklan members are in the main refusing to co-operate with the organization. Where the antiklan forces are in control, the klan members of the party are doing little.

This has twice been apparent in Butler County within the last week. Senator Spencer was in Poplar Bluff a few days ago to deliver a Republican speech. There had been little organized effort to advertise his meeting and to get out a crowd and he didn't have much of a crowd.

A similar condition was apparent Friday, when Carter M. Buford, Elmer O. Jones, Mrs. Kate Morrow and George H. Middlekamp, candidates on the Democratic ticket, arrived in Poplar Bluff on their automobile tour of Southern Missouri.

Klan Controls Organization.

No preparations for their reception had been made and no effort was exerted to get a crowd for them. The Democratic County Committee is largely in klan hands, as it is said also is the Republican committee. Unless a voter is a klansman, he is taking little interest in organizations political. In Dunklin County, which probably has a larger klan membership among its population than any other county in the State, there is a condition which is not at all satisfactory from the standpoint of those interested in Democratic politics.

It was said here today by one well-informed Democrat, who is an antiklansman, that, in his opinion, Davis' electors would be scratched heavily by Democrats who were members of the klan. Some of them he said would vote for Coolidge electors, but the greater number would not vote for either. This Democrat was of the opinion the klan fight would not mean much scratching of the State ticket, though it has involved the local county ticket in much confusion.

Forecasts Full Party Vote.

A very opposite view was expressed by a klan Democrat, who said the full party vote would be polled by the Democrats. He said there was very little friction and that he expected a Democratic plurality of nearly 4000. The antiklan Democrats had estimated the Democratic plurality at about 1500. In 1920, the plurality was only 800. Dunklin County never has been carried by the Republicans, except occasionally by a Republican candidate for county office.

From this wide divergence of view it is really impossible to ascertain with any degree of assurance what may be expected from the county. It is probable that greatest effect of the division caused by the klan issue will be in a reduced vote, due to the absence of party solidarity in getting out the vote, rather than any particular scratching of candidates. In such counties as Dunklin and Pemiscot, this would mean a loss to the Democrats. In counties like Butler, which is strongly Republican, it would mean a loss to the Republicans.

Much La Follette Sentiment.

In the extreme corner of the State there apparently is quite a lot of La Follette sentiment among farmers and railroad employes. There are a number of railroad division points in the four or five counties and information obtained by party workers is that the La Follette sentiment is strong among them. In some of the counties the majority of this vote is Republican, and in others it is Democratic. In Republican counties the loss will be greatest to the Republicans and in Democratic counties to the Democrats.

Many party leaders have been unable to reach a conclusion as to just what strength La Follette will have. About all they will say is that they hope it will be no more than appears on the surface, but hey are very much afraid that there will be a considerable La Follette vote which will not be heard of in advance.

NUMBER OF JEWS JOIN DAVIS-FOR-PRESIDENT CLUB

Many, Who Have Voted Republican Ticket to Support Democrat, Harry Newman Says.

The registration of a number of Jews with the Davis-for-President Club, which is not affiliated with the State or City Democratic Committees, has resulted in a declaration by Harry Newman, an attorney and Republican, that many who have voted the Republican ticket will support Davis.

"The Jewish vote for Davis will be material in the Fourth, Fifth and Nineteenth Wards," Newman said. "Most of them have voted the Republican ticket for years, but the reticence of President Coolidge on the klan and veto of the postal salary bill will work against him. There is definite opposition also to the restriction of immigration."

Nat Goldstein, Nineteenth Ward Republican Committeeman, and A. Samuel Bender, committeeman from the Fifth Ward, denied that there was any material number of Jews who would desert the Republican party for Davis. Bender said that the number of Jews in the Fifth Ward who would vote for Davis would not exceed 100.

78 RECOMMENDATIONS OF PAROLE BOARD UP TO HYDE

Governor 15 Weeks Behind His Average Policy of Two Paroles or Commutations a Week.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 11. — Recent inactivity by Gov. Hyde in granting of paroles and commutations of sentence to convicts in the State Penitentiary, while the State Parole Board has continued to make recommendations of clemency, has resulted in 78 such recommendations for paroles or commutations piling up on the Governor's desk, to await final action by Hyde.

Comparatively few convicts have been freed by the Governor in the last three or four months, although Hyde, in the latter part of his administration, has followed a policy of granting an average of two paroles or commutations a week. He is now about 15 weeks behind this average, it was said.

The recent curtailment, Hyde said, was not due to the belief that a reduction in the number of paroles would cause a corresponding reduction in crime in the State. He said he had been too busy with other duties to pass on the recommendations by the parole board.

The State Parole Board will hold parole hearings Monday for six convicts, four of whom were sent to prison for statutory offenses. Among the convicts to be granted a hearing on eligibility for parole are William S. Deckard, serving 39 years from July 3, 1916 from Kansas City for a statutory offense; Glen A. Feld, four years for burglary, from McDonald County; Henry Godman, 10 years for robbery from Harrison County, escaped from State prison farme No. 3, in March, 1921, and later apprehended in North Dakota; George Hart, two years from April 14, last, from Carroll County, for attempted criminal assault; Charles Bruce, five years from September 27, 1923, from Putnam County, for statutory offense; Leonard Lowe, five years from March 5, last, from Howell County, for statutory offense.

EASTERN STAR JUBILEE HERE

Grand Chapter of Missouri to Meet This Week in Fiftieth Session.

Between 1500 and 2000 representatives of the 70,000 members of the Order of the Eastern Star in this State are expected to attend the fiftieth annual session of the Grand Chapter of Missouri, Tuesday to Thursday, in Scottish Rites Cathedral.

A golden jubilee celebration will be held tomorrow night in the Coliseum. The first Worthy Grand Matron, Miss Mattie P. Yost, still is "hale and hearty" and resides at 1119 North Union boulevard. "A forerunner of the order originated in France. In 1855 Robert Morris inaugurated degrees for women members of the families of Master Masons in this country, and the order assumed its present form 11 year later.

Back From Girls' World Camp.

Miss Margaret Shepley of 53 Portland Place, has returned from Foxlease, Eng., where she attended the International Girls' Scout Camp and Conference. Miss Shepley made a tour of England, inspecting the methods of the organization there. The aim of the world camp, according to Miss Shepley, is the establishment of international good will.

PRESIDENT GIVEN CHEERING REPORTS

Senator Tells Coolidge La Follette Started Stumping but Is Slumping.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-22 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—President Coolidge today talked politics behind closed doors with partisans who brought in cheering reports and pickles over the radio. This is part of the daily program for the Republican candidate for the presidency as outlined by his managers. He confers with spokesmen for the party and addresses various meetings on innocent subjects. His talk to the pickle makers was addressed to the fifty-fifth anniversary dinner at Pittsburg of the H. J. Heinz Co.

Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania told the President that the La Follette movement would actually add to the Coolidge vote in the East and North and that Senator La Follette was "weaker than he was two weeks ago."

"Those who placed high hopes on Mr. La Follette's nation-wide stumping tour must be terribly disappointed," he said. "He has simply slumped and I believe he will continue to slump the nearer we come to election day.

"As for the Democratic party," Reed reported, "it must be apparent to everyone who is in touch with conditions that this party has reached the point where it is facing extinction in the North and East. These are some of the factors on which I base my belief that the Coolidge pluralities will be increased."

Situation in Iowa.

Phases of the situation as regards the West were discussed with the President by Harvey Ingham, editor of the Des Moines Register. Ingham predicted that Iowa would give its electoral vote to President Coolidge by something like 100,000 majority.

"Whatever you hear about dissatisfaction and upheaval in the State, one thing is positively true," said he. "The push and the undercurrent in the State is for Coolidge, as far as the national ticket is concerned."

"Much of the talk about the Brookhart bolt misses the essential factor in the situation. Senator Brookhart did not actually bolt the Republican party. He is running on the Republican ticket."

Former Representative Phil Campbell of Kansas, another White House caller, who had just returned from a tour of New York and New Jersey, said: "I wouldn't undertake to predict what President Coolidge's majority will be in New York, but every indication points to a colossal vote for the President. I was greatly pleased over the strength that Col. Roosevelt is showing. He is making a splendid campaign. He is showing a marvelous knowledge of the affairs of the State and he has an excellent chance of defeating Gov. Smith. The latter is not so strong as he was. His promise of wine and beer in the last election and his failure to deliver has cost him a heavy toll in votes. Many thousands of Republicans who supported him on this issue are back in the fold."

Farming Industry.

Mr. Coolidge has been advised to hold up for a week or so appointment of the commission he has proposed to investigate agriculture lest its work become involved in politics. O. E. Bradfute, president of the Farm Bureau Federation, in expressing this view, at the same time agreed with Mr. Coolidge that the time was appropriate for a survey of farm conditions. Farmers, he said, generally are in a much improved state, but he declared that this was only comparative and there was much which could yet be done to place the industry soundly on its feet.

Mr. Coolidge has arranged to speak before a meeting here on Oct. 23 of the Eastern division of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. He will speak Wednesday at the unveiling of the statue here of Bishop Francis Asbury of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

AMERICAN KILLED BY MEXICANS IN HOLDUP

Auditor of Mining Company and Eight Others Shot to Death by Train Robbers.

By the Associated Press.

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 11.—B. F. Barker of El Paso, auditor of the Erupcion Mining Co., and eight other men were lined up and shot to death Thursday by bandits, who wrecked a freight train of the Chihuahua & Oriente Railway, 41 miles southwest of Juarez, in a $15,000 payroll holdup.

The train crew was included in the nine men killed. The amount taken in the robbery was estimated by military officials, but has not been yet verified.

A rail had been removed from a curve in the track where trains run slowly. The engine, tender and a box car loaded with dynamite left the track.

According to the story received here, the members of the train crew and Barker were marched to a point near the rear end of the train, where they were required to sit down with their backs against an embankment, their hands raised above their heads. Each was shot in the forehead with the exception of one Juan Medrano of Chihauhua, assistant roadmaster. The bandits used large-caliber rifles and explosive bullets, which mutilated the heads of the victims.

Medrano apparently leaped from the caboose of the train and connected up a field telephone set before the bandits saw him. A blood-stained note addressed to his wife, reading: "Go to your mother; I am about to die," was found along the right of way.

Military authorities, reconstructing the killing of Medrano, declared he apparently had dragged himself back to the telephone set and attempted to get Juarez on the wire after he had been mortally wounded.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 11.—B. F. Barker, shot to death by bandits who held up a freight train south of Juarez, Mexico, came from Lockport, La., it was learned today when his sister here was advised of his death.

Call for Bank Statements.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The Comptroller of the Currency today issued a call for statements of the condition of all national banks at the close of business on Friday, Oct. 10.

LOOKING back at the state of the public mind and the political mind a short 14 months ago, it seems strange indeed that Calvin Coolidge should now, by virtue of an almost unanimous nomination at Cleveland, be the candidate of the Republican party for the presidency.

The funeral of the late President had not been completed before lightning rods had been set up on behalf of various candidates for the nomination. The common political reaction to the President's death, after the first shock of it had worn off, was that the door had been opened wide to a flock of candidates whose ambitions had been held in check by the virtual certainty of Harding's renomination.

Hiram Johnson was a candidate, in fact though not in name, from the day of Harding's death. Frank O. Lowden cast covetous eyes at the nomination. Hoover and Hughes were rated high on the list of possibilities. Some thought that John W. Weeks would have a try for it on a beer-and-wine platform. Nearly every Republican Senator of the "regular" variety was a potential candidate. Senator Jim Watson of Indiana, notably, was in the running.

And Calvin Coolidge was also mentioned. Coolidge was mentioned not because of any inherent strength that he was believed to possess as a candidate, but only because he happened to be in possession of the presidency. In the ordinary course of events it is not conceivable that he would have been seriously considered as Harding's successor. Indeed, those who know political Washington know that there was a large possibility of his failure to receive a second vice presidential nomination. He had made no impress on the senate, none on the politicians of his party, none on the social life of the capital. He was utterly colorless.

The powers that be in the Republican party (or, rather, the powers that were, for New England has succeeded Ohio on the throne) wanted some colorful person, some one who could be labeled and sold as a progressive, in order to placate the growing demand of the insurgent West for recognition. Coolidge looked like a dead weight on the ticket, and they were ready to throw him overboard without compunction.

Climbing the Office Stepladder

BUT those who in August, 1923, dismissed President Calvin Coolidge with a mere mention reckoned without proper regard for the power and prestige—to say nothing of the "protection" described by Frank Kent in a recent much-quoted article in the American Mercury—that go with the presidency. They reckoned without attaching due weight to the immense advantage possessed by that candidate who lacks a sense of humor, or who, having such a sense, suppresses it in his public utterances. They could not foresee the support given the President by Henry Ford. They did not realize the potency of silence as a political weapon. They did not appreciate the skill of Coolidge as a politician.

President Coolidge—and the Coolidge Myth

A CAREFUL EXAMINATION OF THE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE'S OFFICIAL RECORD

How the Man Himself Appears When Divested of the Glamour of His High Office

How the Legend of "The Calm, Cool, Strong Man" Has Grown Up About Him and How He Has Fared in Tests of His Leadership at the Hands of a Congress of His Own Party.

By CHARLES G. ROSS
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.

I do not for a moment question his personal honesty. I do not in the least impugn his integrity of purpose. But as he is a public official standing for re-election, let us inquire what is his roster of achievements is to which with much pride our attention is invited.—From a speech by John W. Davis.

LOOKING back at the state of the public mind and the political mind a short 14 months ago, it seems strange indeed that Calvin Coolidge should now, by virtue of an almost unanimous nomination at Cleveland, be the candidate of the Republican party for the Presidency.

The funeral of the late President had not been completed before lightning rods had been set up on behalf of various candidates for the nomination. The common political reaction to the President's death, after the first shock of it had worn off, was that the door had been opened wide to a flock of candidates whose ambitions had been held in check by the virtual certainty of Harding's renomination.

Hiram Johnson was a candidate, in fact though not in name, from the day of Harding's death. Frank O. Lowden cast covetous eyes at the nomination. Hoover and Hughes were rated high on the list of possibilities. Some thought that John W. Weeks should have a try for it on a beer-and-wine platform. Nearly every Republican Senator of the "regular" variety was a potential candidate. Senator Jim Watson of Indiana, notably, was in the running.

And Calvin Coolidge was also mentioned. Coolidge was mentioned not because of any inherent strength that he was believed to possess as a candidate, but only because he happened to be in possession of the presidency. In the ordinary course of events it is not conceivable that he would have been seriously considered as Harding's successor. Indeed, those who know political Washington knew that there was a large possibility of his failure to receive a second vice presidential nomination. He had made no impress on the senate, none on the politicians of his party, none on the social life of the capital. He was utterly colorless.

The powers that be in the Republican party (or, rather, the powers that were, for New England has succeeded Ohio on the throne) wanted some colorful person, some one who could be labeled and sold as a progressive, in order to placate the growing demand of the insurgent West for recognition. Coolidge looked like a dead weight on the ticket, and they were ready to throw him overboard without compunction.

Climbing the Office Stepladder

BUT those who in August, 1923, dismissed President Calvin Coolidge with a mere mention reckoned without proper regard for the power and prestige—to say nothing of the "protection" described by Frank Kent in a recent much-quoted article in the American Mercury—that go with the presidency. They reckoned without attaching due weight to the immense advantage possessed by that candidate who lacks a sense of humor, or else, having such a sense, suppresses it in his public utterances. They could not foresee the support given the President by Henry Ford. They did not realize the potency of silence as a political weapon. They did not appreciate the skill of Coolidge as a politician.

One by one the prospective candidates for the Republican nomination fell by the wayside, till only Coolidge and Hiram Johnson were left. Johnson, who had alienated progressive support by his reactionary votes in the Senate, was beaten before he started. Calvin Coolidge, a small-town New England lawyer, reached a climax in his 25 years of almost continuous office-holding by becoming the nominee of the Republican party for the presidency.

You have only to look at the step-ladder engagement of Coolidge's office-holding record in the Republican Campaign Text-Book to see that it was inevitable that he should become a candidate. He began as City Councilman in 1899 and thence moved up a rung at a time to the governorship of Massachusetts, in 1919-20. The presidency is the twelfth public office he has held. To seek office is in his blood.

Events wholly outside his influence or control have aided him to a remarkable degree. Some call him, on that account, a "man of destiny"; others say he has merely been lucky. He owes his present eminence to the Boston police strike of 1919. To be more specific, he owes it to the popularized version of his part in the strike—a version which made him out a strong and courageous Governor, willing to stake his political future on a determined stand for "law and order."

You might say that Woodrow Wilson made Calvin Coolidge President. Accepting the then current account of the trouble in Boston, Wilson sent Coolidge a telegram of congratulation. This message put the hallmark of nonpartisan approval on Coolidge's action and made him a national hero.

Gets Credit Given to Another

IT has since been shown, by an official report of a Citizens Committee, including both Democrats and Republicans—which report has been made a public document by the city of Boston—that the main credit for restoring order in Boston belongs to Mayor Peters, who called out the State Guard after the Governor had declined to act, and that Coolidge did not take control of the situation till after the emergency had passed. It was then, and not till then, according to the report, that Coolidge issued his famous "law and order" proclamation, on which Wilson congratulated him.

The prominence that Coolidge got out of the strike caused him to be nominated for the vice presidency in 1920. There was no other reason for the nomination. Hiram Johnson, beaten for the first place on the ticket, could have had the lesser, but declined. Coolidge, who had figured but inconspicuously as a presidential aspirant, took the place, and fate made it a springboard to the presidency.

Though given an exceptional opportunity, through the Harding innovation which took him into the Cabinet councils, Coolidge was as obscure a figure as ever occupied the vice presidency. He spoke but seldom in the Cabinet meetings, and apparently had no part whatever in the determination of policy. Certainly he did not protest against the naval oil leases, though the record of the Senate oil hearings indicates they were the subject of discussion by the Cabinet. The men whom he met twice a week in these sessions, during the two and a half years of the Harding administration, knew little more about him than did the public.

There were several officials on the Harding Alaskan trip who had been brought into frequent contact with Coolidge. After the death of the President, newspaper men went to them for information about his successor. The officials knew virtually nothing beyond the fact that Coolidge was a man of astonishingly few words. Being themselves eager to get a line on the new boss, they became the interviewers and devoured avidly whatever scraps of information the reporters could provide. It was an amusing and an illuminating performance.

The "Strong, Silent Man" Legend

BUT Mr. Coolidge's vice presidential career is water over the dam. How he got to be Vice President or what his associates thought of him in that capacity is of small importance compared with the question of whether or not he should be continued in office as President.

So much has recently been said about the "Coolidge myth" that this question of the President's fitness has doubtless resolved itself, in the minds of many voters, into a question of the validity of the portrayal of the President as a man of rugged force and decision—"the strong, silent man of the White House."

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE.

We may safely dismiss that other picture of Mr. Coolidge as a farmer. His hay-pitching on his father's farm in Vermont was for photographic purposes only. It was a campaign stunt. If the purpose of the Coolidge managers—though, of course, there could have been no such purpose—was to "sell" Mr. Coolidge as a farmer through the medium of the picture pages and the movies, the effort fell dismally flat.

The Middle Western farmers needed no diagram when John W. Davis, in several of his speeches, disclaimed any right to the title of farmer, even of "pictorial farmer." The thrust was always good for a laugh. Yes, the representation of the President as a horny-handed son of toil may be left out of account, and attention centered on the authenticity of the "strong, silent man" portrayal.

Press Was Ultra Kind to Him

As Mr. Kent has pointed out in his magazine article, the reputation that Mr. Coolidge enjoys as a strong and silent man, a man who is a "platform in himself," a man better than his party, has been built up in two ways; first, by deliberate propaganda; second, by the "protection" which newspaper reporters, for the most part unconsciously, always throw about the occupant of the White House.

There is a tendency to "overplay" the good qualities of a President and to minimize his shortcomings. In this respect, the newspapers merely reflect the public's high esteem for the office of President—an esteem which immediately invests the occupant of that office, no matter what his previous record may have been, with attributes that we think a President, the highest officer in our Government, ought to possess.

Overnight, in the popular conception, the man inducted into the presidency is translated to a heroic plane. Yesterday he was Mr. Harding or Mr. Coolidge; today he is The President. We think of him in new and grander terms.

NOW, Mr. Coolidge had an exceptionally "good press," owing to the tragic circumstances under which he came into office. For weeks all criticism was suspended. There was a universal disposition, much more pronounced than that which normally attends the swearing in of a new executive, to "give the President a chance." Newspapers of all shades of political opinion reviewed his record in the most favorable light and wished him well.

The soil was made extremely fertile for the propagation of the idea that in Mr. Coolidge the country had not only a silent man in the White House, but a man whose silence betokened great force of character. It came to be believed that he possessed qualities of leadership, not leadership of his party alone, but of the whole country, and that he would be swayed to a lesser degree than his predecessor by considerations of purely partisan politics.

Two conversations come to the mind of the writer. One was with a Cabinet member after it had become apparent that Mr. Coolidge would be a candidate for the Republican nomination to succeed himself.

"It will be very easy," said the Cabinet man, "for the friends of Mr. Coolidge to create for him a reputation for courage and decision. This will be their line of attack in the fight for the nomination. Mr. Coolidge will win without difficulty."

The other conversation was with a Republican leader in South Dakota, some months later. Coolidge and Johnson were contesting for the State's delegates to the Republican national convention. There was small enthusiasm for either. Coolidge apparently had the better of the fight in the cities, Johnson in the country. The politician of this interview, a Johnson supporter, was asked how he accounted for the existence of any Coolidge sentiment at all in an insurgent State like South Dakota.

"You," he said, "are to blame for it. By that, I mean the newspapers. They have spread the impression that Mr. Coolidge is a man of strong personality, with a sympathetic grasp of the farmers' problems. Those of us out here who have seen him have a different picture.

Farmers Broke Up His Meeting

"WHEN he was Vice President he came out to the Minnesota State Fair and tried to make a speech on farming. He told of the joys of the rural life, how fine it was to live close to the soil and make it bring forth food for the nations. All that bunk. Somebody in the stand bawled out, 'Where in the hell have you been the last three years, anyway?' and that broke up the meeting. They walked out on him.

"He went to Sioux Falls and talked for an hour and a half without getting a chirp out of the audience. We thought we would entertain him by showing him a harvest scene in one of the big wheat fields. Everything had been arranged. But Mr. Coolidge, when the time came to go out there, said he had seen all the Western farming country he wanted to see on that trip, and went back to his hotel. They must have put an extra heating plant in the White House when he moved in."

Parenthetically, it may be remarked that Johnson carried South Dakota over Coolidge.

The two interviews epitomize the propaganda—its content, its method and its effect—which has set Mr. Coolidge up on a pedestal as a strong and silent man.

Let us examine the record to determine, first, whether or not he possesses those qualities of leadership that are implied by this reputation. The record shows him hopelessly at loggerheads with the congressional leaders of his party. He did not lead his party, and it showed no disposition to be led by him. The record of the session of Congress that began last December and ended in June is barren of any accomplishment attributable to the President. Not only this, but the recommendations of the President were repeatedly flouted or overridden, though Congress was Republican in born its branches.

His Failures as Party Leader

THE fate of the Mellon taxation plan offers the most conspicuous example of his failure as a party leader. The proposal went before Congress with the unqualified indorsement of the President. The House rejected it by a vote of 261 to 153. One of its strongest opponents was Congressman Green of Iowa, a regular, not an insurgent, Republican, the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee. The Mellon plan, despite an extensive propaganda in its favor, was doomed from the day of its proposal. Eventually, Congress passed a tax-reduction bill carrying rates fixed by the Democrats, and the President reluctantly signed it.

Over the strong objection of the President and Secretary of State Hughes, Congress wrote a Japanese exclusion section into the immigration bill. The vote on the bill in the House was 323 to 71 and in the Senate 62 to 6. The President signed it.

Again the President's impotence as a leader was demonstrated when the bonus bill was passed over his veto. The President showed no lack of courage in opposing the bonus, but he showed an utter inability to follow through. Could he have won three more votes to his side in the Senate, the veto would have been sustained.

Some of the most vocal of the orators who are now calling on the voters to "stand by the President" opposed him on the bonus issue. Spencer of Missouri was one of the Republican regulars who opposed him. Lodge, the Republican leader in the Senate, was another; Curtis of Kansas, the Republican whip, another.

Senate Ignores His Recommendations

CONCERNING the World Court proposal, the President said in his message at the opening of Congress: "As I wish to see a court established, and as the proposal presents the only practical plan on which many nations have ever agreed, though it may not meet every desire, I therefore commend it to the favorable consideration of the Senate."

Here was a chance for the President to function not only in his capacity as party leader, but as leader of a strong body of nonpartisan public opinion that desired to see the court proposal taken out of the Senate graveyard. But Mr. Coolidge contented himself with the mere recommendation. He made no fight to give it effect. The strength of personality attributed to him did not materialize.

What did the Senate do with the President's recommendation? The Senate ignored it utterly till strong pressure for favorable action was brought to bear, not by the President, but by unofficial organizations interested in world peace. Then two of the leading members of the President's party in the Senate—Lodge and Pepper—rose up with brand-new plans that completely befogged the issue. Nothing came of the President's proposal.

The World Court plan, it should be noted, was not Coolidge's. It was the Harding-Hughes plan, and the new President merely repeated the recommendation of his predecessor. Nor did he initiate the administration tax plan. That was Mellon's, all the way through. The opposition to the bonus was also, originally, Mellon's. The Japanese immigration policy espoused by the President was Hughes'. So also was, and is, whatever foreign policy the Coolidge administration may be credited with. Mr. Coolidge himself, during his 14 months as President, has initiated absolutely no constructive policy of any sort. His silence has been the reverse of creative.

His Own Party Wrecks His Program

WHAT was the attitude of Congress toward the other measures advocated by the President in his first message to Congress? He asked for legislation to encourage the voluntary consolidation of railroads. The recommendation was ignored. He urged the establishment of a department of education and welfare. No action was taken. He said it was "exceedingly urgent" that authority be given the President to appoint a commission to deal with emergencies in the coal industry. Nothing came of this proposal. He declared it "important that reorganization (of the Government departments and bureaus) be enacted into law at the present session." Nothing but futile talk resulted.

The President recommended a readjustment of the freight-rate structure, revision of the rules governing the Railroad Labor Board, the abolition of tax-exempt securities, revision of the Federal Trade Commission's procedure, the inclusion of prohibition agents in the Civil Service, and legislation to dispose of Muscle Shoals, but none of these proposals was enacted into law.

In short, virtually the entire program of domestic legislation laid down by the President was kicked into the discard by the Republican Congress.

Regarding the agricultural problem, the President said in his message that "simple and direct methods put into operation by the farmer himself are the only real sources for restoration." He did, nevertheless, favor the Norbeck-Burtness bill for the financing of farm-crop diversification, a measure which it was thought would appease the discontent of the Northwestern farmers. The measure was beaten in the Senate, Lodge being among its opponents.

The President's vetoes brought his difficulties with Congress into sharp relief. His veto of the bonus bill and subsequent failure to make the veto stick have been mentioned. He disapproved also the Bursum pension-increase bill, and in this instance the veto was sustained in the Senate by one vote, Senator Harreld of Oklahoma, who had originally favored the measure, coming to the rescue of the President at the eleventh hour.

The House passed the postal employes' pay increase bill by a vote of 361 to 6 and the Senate by a vote of 73 to 3. The President vetoed this on the last day of the session, when there was no chance to pass it over his veto.

So much for the record of the President in his dealings with Congress. He was turned down repeatedly, not only by the insurgent members of his party, but by wheelhorses like Lodge, Brandegee, Curtis, and even Spencer, to name but a few of those that opposed him on the bonus and other tests of his leadership. It is one of the ironies of the campaign that men who refused to be led by the President are now on the stump pointing with pride to the "achievements" of the party under the "strong, silent man in the White House." It is to laugh.

Senator Spencer has announced that he will make an extensive series of speeches in Missouri. There will therefore be ample opportunity to ask him how he voted on the Bursum pension bill, which the President opposed; how he voted on the motion to pass the Bursum bill over the President's veto; how he voted on the bonus bill; how he voted on the overriding of the bonus bill, and how he voted on the tax bill.

We come now to a consideration of the part that politics—not politics in the larger sense, but what may be called self-serving politics—has played in the career of Mr. Coolidge as President. Always there is the temptation, in writing of Mr. Coolidge, to fall into alliteration. He is advertised by his friends as cool, calm, courageous. As a politician he has shown himself canny.

The Appointment of Slemp

IF there was any doubt that Mr. Coolidge would be a candidate for a full term, it was completely dissolved when he named C. Bascom Slemp as his private secretary. This was his first important appointment. It was quite obvious to everybody that Mr. Slemp was named not for secretarial, but for political skill. Slemp had been a Congressman from Virginia. He was familiar with the ways of Congress and Congressmen, and also with the subtler ways by which Southern delegations are organized for the support of particular

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

A Democracy Not a Republic.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I WANT to call the attention of your great multitude of thoughtful and careful readers to a little book entitled "Back to the Republic," by Atwood, in which the author shows the difference in the three classes of government—"autocratic," "democratic" and "republican"—clearing up the situation that is so generally accepted that a republican form of government is necessarily a democratic form, or that a democratic government is necessarily republican.

When the late President Wilson promulgated his slogan "Make the world safe for democracy" he certainly made a misuse of terms, wise and brilliant as he was, for, no doubt, he intended to make the world safe for republicanism, which is a representative form of government, and which democracy is not, it being entirely a government of the will of the people, subject to change just as the mob is controlled at the time.

It may seem rather presumptuous in me to criticise the language of as able a scholar as the late President Wilson, but if anyone will read the book mentioned they will see exactly what I mean, and the reasons for it. There is no doubt we are fast getting away from the Constitution and the republican form of government, with its legislative, executive and judicial divisions of the Government, as provided by the Constitution. Mr. Atwood makes this position so clear and is so thoroughly convincing in his distinction between the republican and democratic forms of government that anyone carefully reading his book, and who has thought of the two forms as being the same will readily see their error. He takes the stand, and properly so, that there is only one real republic, with a republican form of government, in the world, and that is the United States of America; all other so-called republics are only so in name, and only partially republican. I hope your readers will get the book, which can be had from the public library, and carefully peruse it. CHAS. C. NICHOLLS.

Aluminum Prices and Wages.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WHILE Mellon's aluminum trust, wages, profits, etc., are being discussed, why not get exact figures from Bauxite, Ark., as to wages and working conditions? I was offered a job there August, 1922, at 20 cents per hour. Board was $7 per week. Thirty-five cents per hour was their maximum rate in 1920. I believe they are not paying now more than 25 cents the hour, and Mellon should be asked on how much less a man could afford to work as he indicates would have been necessary without the tariff. JNO. BURY.

Safety on the Streets.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WITH death constantly roaring in the streets, highways, roads and everywhere, the modern chariot, the auto, is rolling along.

It would be very proper, I think, that our safety councils and all other such organizations, whose sole existence is for the purpose of the supposed welfare of humanity, should give a thought to this matter and try their best in this direction.

What we need is education. The pedestrian as well as the motorist must be acquainted with the constant dangers existing in the midst of our social life. We cannot well change the magnitude of the things arising out of the human impulse that comprise the social life of our modern civilization, however injurious they may be. But we can be educated to the extent that no matter how dangerous one of our social functions may be, we could still protect ourselves within its boundaries. It may be a bit too late for the grownups, but why not educate our children for the future? We usually teach our children all the happenings of the past and all that is necessary to know—and probably a great deal that is not necessary. Why not teach our children the existing dangers of the present and that of the future with which they have to encounter every day going to and from school? Every branch of the present educational system is necessary for one reason or another, but the teaching of safety in our schools is an absolute necessity without which our children in the future will never be able to enjoy their existing self.

From the kindergarten and all the way up to the faculty, our children must be taught the lessons of safety. Whether a future pedestrian or a future motorist, the teachings of safety should be in a class for itself, and only then will we be able to counteract the growing dangers of the automobile. For if we don't, if our social workers and all other agencies and the public in general will not awake from their apathy as to the present situation, we will never be able to atone for the sin that we are committing now against our future generations.

Let St. Louis show the way.

D. WALLERSTEIN.

THE DUMB IDOL IN THE TEMPLE OF PRIVILEGE

George Harvey has become the howling dervish of the dumb idol in the temple of privilege. He is whirling and howling in a dust cloud of his own bald assumptions, inventions and conjectures, intended to prove that there is no hope for this country except in the election of Coolidge.

Mr. Harvey, following his "Coolidge or Chaos" article, is trying to make people believe that Mr. Davis is a mere catspaw of chaos, and is not in the running. He hopes to convince the people that Mr. Davis is not a factor in the presidential race, in order that he may induce them to save the Coolidge campaign from impending ruin. His "Coolidge or Chaos" plea and his supplementary efforts to ward off well deserved calamity from the party of privilege and pillage are confessions of despair. When he plays up La Follette as the menace and plays down Davis as hopeless, and Coolidge as the only chance, he means to say that Coolidge is lost unless a great many voters who do not intend to vote for him now are induced to come over and save him.

Nothing could be more ridiculous. It is sheer piffle, designed to catch the unthinking. What is the real situation? All of the so-called "dope," the calculations that have come out of the East mainly, have been based upon the Republican landslide of 1920, where there was a tremendous reaction against the Wilson administration and the Democratc party. This year the situation is reversed. The reaction is against the Harding-Coolidge administration and the Republican party as the party of organized privilege and corruption.

There never has been a more disgraceful administration than that of the Republican administration of the last four years, disgraceful under Mr. Harding on account of its utter subservience and surrender to organized greed, in the adoption of the tariff of abominations for the benefit of its plutocratic masters, in the sale of natural resources to profiteering interests, and in the appointment of tools of the political money power to high office. Disgraceful again under Mr. Coolidge in the effort to protect and defend official corruptionists and their allies, and to blacken those who exposed official corruption and attacked intrenched privilege.

In consequence the Republican party is split in the middle. It is not a new split; it is a survival of the split during the Taft administration, when Col. Roosevelt and his followers revolted against the plutocratic influences in control of Mr. Taft's administration and routed Mr. Taft and the Old Guard. The Roosevelt revolt elected Woodrow Wilson, who gave the country one of the best administrations it has known, and carried it triumphantly through the greatest war in history. Mr. Wilson placed the American people in the van of the movement for international justice and world peace.

It took only four years of Republican misrule under Mr. Harding and Mr. Coolidge to reverse all this, to take America wholly out of the international movement for the establishment of justice and law and of arbitration as a substitute for the sword among the nations of the earth, and to revive the saturnalia of organized privilege and pillage, far in excess of anything that happened in Mr. Taft's administration.

The result of these disgraceful four years is a revival of the progressive split under the leadership of Senator La Follette, the originator of the 1912 progressive movement, and a revolt of a great number of Republican voters who undoubtedly will carry out of the Republican party a group of Republican states and greatly weaken the party in every state above Mason and Dixon's line.

We are not predicting election results. In the present turmoil no one can say what will happen in this election. But intelligent men can draw logical probabilities from the existing conditions. While Mr. Coolidge has an apparent advantage over Mr. Davis in the calculations based upon 1920 and in surface indications, particularly in the pivotal states of the East, the better possibilities of the campaign lie on the side of Mr. Davis, and the indications in his favor are steadily improving.

Mr. Coolidge's party is split. It is conceded from Republican sources that Mr. La Follette has a first-class chance of carrying Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, Idaho and Washington, all rock-ribbed Republican states, with Montana, which is inclined to be Democratic, making a total of 50 electoral votes. It is now conceded, since Brookhart's bolt against Dawes, that La Follette has a good chance of carrying Iowa, or at least of defeating Coolidge, in that State. With Iowa he would have a total of 63 electoral votes.

Not only is the Republican party split in the middle, but it shows marked signs of further disintegration. Not only is there an utter lack of enthusiasm for Mr. Coolidge among the regular Republicans who accomplished his nomination, but Republican leaders, particularly in the West, are falling away from him. Brookhart, in Iowa, has rebelled against Dawes and demanded his removal from the ticket, declaring that the Dawes campaign is wrecking the Republican party in Iowa and the Northwest. It was practically wrecked already.

Senator Brookhart is now in open revolt against the Republican ticket. He has dubbed Mr. Dawes as a "plutogog" and condemned Mr. Coolidge as the servant of organized greed.

Senator Norris, running for re-election in Nebraska, asked as to the rumor that he intended to bolt the Coolidge-Dawes ticket, declared that he is making an individual campaign and is not interesting himself in the national ticket. In California Hiram Johnson is denouncing the action of the courts there in defeating the effort of La Follette's followers to place their electoral ticket in the field. California is in a turmoil of revolt.

There is a rebellion in Colorado, and in Kansas William Allen White, a lifelong leading Republican, is leading an independent movement against the regular Republican State ticket because the Republican candidate for Governor is tied up with the Ku Klux Klan. His influence will not help Mr. Coolidge's shaky chances, because Mr. Coolidge himself is tied up with the Ku Klux Klan.

The fight between Coolidge and La Follette is now bitter, but will become bitterer. The regular Republicans must defeat La Follette's plan, or their organization will be wrecked. La Follette must defeat Coolidge, or his whole progressive movement will be futile. He will be unable to reorganize the Republican party. It is a death grapple between the two wings of the party for supremacy. Either wing would prefer the election of Davis to the success of the other wing.

The Republican administration and the party's organization are so vulnerable to attack that there is not and cannot be any drift towards the Coolidge-Dawes ticket by independent voters. On the other hand, there is increasing evidence of a decided drift from Mr. Coolidge to Mr. Davis. The evidence of the drift is found in the repudiation of the Republican party by President Hibben of Princeton University, one of the 31 leading Republicans who misled the people into supporting Mr. Harding on the ground that he would take us into the International Court of Justice and establish co-operative relations for peace with other nations. Dr. Hibben chooses Mr. Davis as the only hope of accomplishing this end.

Others who have deserted the party are Dr. William C. Thompson, president of the Ohio State University; Ida Tarbell, Samuel Untermyer, Everett Colby, one of the Progressive leaders under Roosevelt; Theodore Marburg, Minister to Belgium under Taft, and Virginia C. Gildersleeve, dean of Barnard College, Columbia University.

These recruits, with the exception of Dr. Hibben, who rests his case wholly on foreign relations, give practically the same reasons for supporting John W. Davis, namely, the ability and equipment of the Democratic presidential candidate; corruption and privileged profiteering embodied in the tariff and other Republican measures under the Harding-Coolidge administration, and the promise of American participation in world peace co-operation by Mr. Davis' election.

The latest recruit from the Republican ranks to the support of Mr. Davis is the most important of all. Dr. Harry A. Garfield, himself a lifelong Republican, a son of a former Republican President, and now at the head of Williams College, repudiates the Republican party. Dr. Garfield says that he has not abandoned his party, but the party has abandoned its principles; that the hand of the administration is unclean.

The reasons he gives for condemning his party are official corruption under the administration, indifference of the administration leaders to corruption, the abominable tariff law which impairs our foreign trade and oppresses the farmer and the laborer for the benefit of the favored few, the narrow and selfish attitude and policy of the administration towards the International Court of Justice and the efforts to maintain world peace.

The reasons he gives for supporting Mr. Davis are his confidence in the ability and honesty of John W. Davis and in his purpose to remedy the evils in the present Government; and, finally, the soundness of Mr. Davis' views with regard to foreign relations and co-operation for world peace.

Mr. Coolidge himself is vulnerable. The Coolidge myth, which has been built up by persistent propaganda, that he is a silent, strong, courageous man, has been exploded. He has been revealed as a weak, hesitating politician, personally honest, but inclined to condone official corruption for political purposes and completely under the dominance of the barons of privilege. His silence does not arise from strength, but from weakness and political calculation. His selection of Bascom Slemp as his private secretary, his first official act, was discreditable. Slemp was convicted of the sale of postoffices for political funds.

The subsequent conduct of Mr. Coolidge, his reluctance to dismiss men involved in the oil scandal, and Daugherty, blackened by the revelations of corruption and abuse in the Department of Justice, are damning proofs of his unfitness for re-election.

When Mr. Coolidge is not silent on the subject of corruption, he glosses over the scandals of the administration, and belittles the issue of proven dishonesty and unfitness in high office. The best that could be wrung from his reluctant lips is the wretched statement in his speech to the Associated Press, at New York, April 22, when he said: "THE WONDER IS NOT THAT THERE WAS SO MUCH (CORRUPTION) AND SO MANY (CORRUPTIONISTS); RATHER THAT IT IS SO LITTLE AND SO FEW."

The evidence of the drift away from Mr. Coolidge is not confined to Republican progressive leaders. It is manifest in large groups of voters. The leaders of the German-American element have given public notice that a large percentage of German-American voters will desert Mr. Coolidge. The pledge of the heads of the Steuben Society, which has taken the place of the old German-American Alliance, to support Mr. La Follette, is supplemented by resolutions to the same effect by the Bavarian Society of St. Louis and other similar organizations.

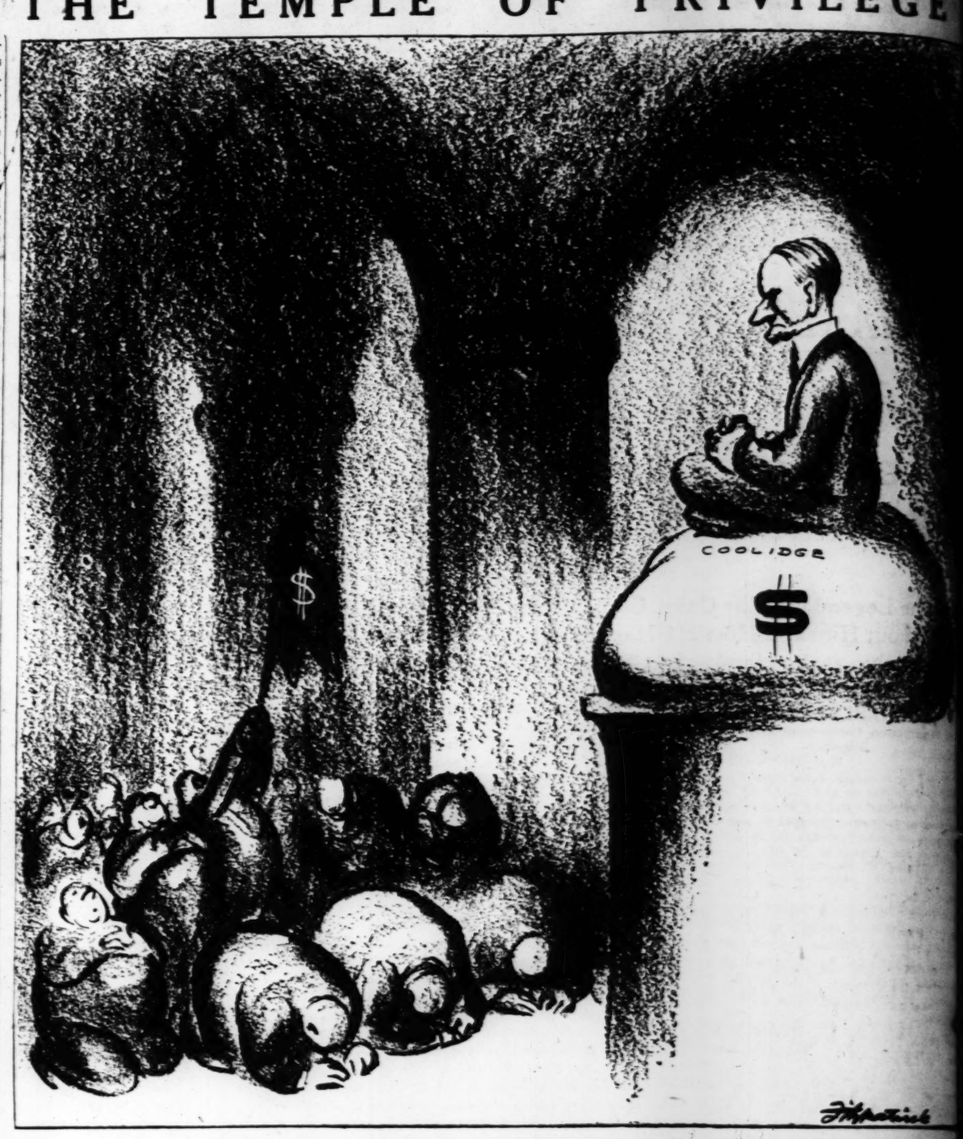
The immigration law, passed under the Republican administration and signed by Mr. Coolidge, has aroused the indignation of all American citizens of foreign birth or origin whose peoples live on the continent of Europe. They are indignant not because immigration has been checked, but because the law is grossly discriminatory. Professing to give preference to agriculturists, it discriminates against the Germans, and the Scandinavians, who have contributed enormously to the development of agriculture in this country and are the best possible material for American citizenship. It discriminates against the peoples of Southern Europe, and all these people feel insulted and humiliated that there should be a reflection in the law on the blood and quality of their races.

Labor is in revolt against both old parties, but the evidence points to the greater percentage of loss in the Republican party.

Certainly with Mr. Coolidge's silence on the Ku Klux Klan issue, in contrast with Mr. Davis' outspoken repudiation of the klan and all similar organizations, Mr. Coolidge cannot hope to win any recruits from the Catholics, the Jews and the foreign born, or any other anti-klan elements. Both principle and self-protection will incline all of these elements to vote against Mr. Coolidge, and in the aggregate they are a tremendous factor in elections.

There are signs of a defection even in the hitherto solid phalanx of the negro vote. Prominent individual negro leaders and influential negro papers are repudiating the Coolidge ticket.

How will the great masses of people who, through such organizations as the Federation of Churches, the women's organizations, the nonpartisan Association for the League of Nations, have protested and petitioned in vain for the International Court of Justice and the League of Nations, vote? How can they support Mr. Coolidge, who has utterly failed to make any progress in assuring American participation in the court, and who declared the League of Nations to be "a closed incident." His candidacy offers not one ray of hope for American participation in the great movement for world peace which America inaugurated and once led.



Forty-seven nations have signed the protocol outlawing war, pledging themselves to support arbitration, international law and peace, while America stands idly by, an apostate to the principles, the mission and the policy in which she had been up to 1920 the leader and exemplar. How can the friends of the International Court and the movement for world peace support either Mr. Coolidge or Mr. La Follette, who are pledged against any participation in the International Court or the League? They logically must follow Dr. Hibben.

Progressive Republicans who cannot go so far as Mr. La Follette's radical program, but who oppose Mr. Coolidge's reactionary program, cannot choose but stay at home or support Mr. Davis, the liberal opponent of the Coolidge-Dawes combination.

On the other hand, John W. Davis, the Democratic presidential candidate, is leading a united party. Whatever may have been the differences of party leaders in convention, his nomination was hailed as a triumph of reason and justice by all the party leaders and by the press generally. There is no evidence of party differences.

Mr. Davis is admitted, by men of all parties, to be one of the best equipped men for the great office of President that the American people have had the privilege to support. In ability, in experience and training, in understanding of the principles of free constitutional government, in soundness and vigor of opinion on public questions, in clarity and felicity of expression, in personality and character, he is distinguished among the public men of our time.

Mr. Davis is a liberal, standing between the extremes of radicalism represented by the La Follette candidacy and reactionism represented by the Coolidge candidacy.

Mr. Davis stands for progress under constitutional government. He stands for justice, equality under the laws, personal liberty and popular sovereignty as the foundation of progress.

He is opposed to privilege, particularly exemplified in the tariff of abominations which is exploiting the American people for the benefit of a few rich, powerful profiteers. He believes that prosperity should not filter down from the privileged few, but should be fairly distributed, through the freedom of opportunity for all the people.

The people have just begun to learn what manner of man Mr. Davis is. They have just begun to learn what he stands for, in opposition to the evils of privileged plutocracy and corruption which have flourished in Washington, and in favor of a restoration of equality and liberty and popular control of government. He is for the square deal. Whatever doubt may have existed as to his honesty and sincerity of purpose is rapidly disappearing.

No one can tell what will be the effect of a vigorous campaign for honesty and just government against the recognized and admitted evils of privilege and pillage under the party now in power until the votes are cast in November. We know that Mr. Davis' candidacy has grown and is still growing. We know that the factors that are working against Mr. Coolidge and Mr. La Follette will help Mr. Davis.

The propaganda of assumption and bluff which claims for Mr. Coolidge every doubtful state that Mr. La Follette does not actually capture ought not to deceive any intelligent man.

The outlook in New York may be bad. We do not know about New York, but the claim was made that New York is going for Coolidge before the stage was set for the campaign by the nomination of Gov. Smith, and is made now, when the campaign has just begun in the State. So with claims with regard to all the Northern states except those conceded to Mr. La Follette. These lightning calculators overlook the fact that La Follette will not only carry some Republican states, but will seriously reduce the Republican vote in all the Middle Western and Western states, just as Roosevelt did in 1912, when his candidacy gave Wilson rock-ribbed Republican states by pluralities and thus elected him.

Conceding La Follette's chances to gain 50, and possibly 63, electoral votes, Mr. Davis has practically assured, with the solid South, that is, those states which supported Cox in the Republican landslide of 1920, with the border states, including West Virginia and taking in Arizona, Maryland, Missouri, Nevada, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Tennessee, 200 electoral votes. With Mr. La Follette's 50, not counting Iowa or any of the other doubtful states outside the list already given as probably La Follette's, there will be against Mr. Coolidge 250 electoral votes. This low-down estimate in favor of Mr. Davis and Mr. La Follette gives Mr. Coolidge a majority in the electoral college of 16.

If Mr. Coolidge should lose New York he would not be elected. If he should lose Iowa and another state he would not be elected. If he should lose Indiana and New Jersey, he would not be elected. If he should lose Colorado, Nebraska, Rhode Island and either Indiana or New Jersey, he would not be elected.

If La Follette should carry Iowa and Davis should carry Indiana or New Jersey, Coolidge would be defeated.

The possibilities, nay the probabilities, of Mr. Coolidge's defeat are many. And every possibility of Mr. Coolidge's defeat is a possibility of Mr. Davis' election, through the split in the Republican party and the inevitable drift from Coolidge to Davis. We do not know the conditions in these doubtful states outside of Missouri.

We do know that Mr. Davis, through the split in the Republican party and the gains he will make in the independent votes, stands a chance to carry by election day quite a number of them.

We do know about Missouri. We know that unless every sign fails, Mr. Davis will carry Missouri. We know the factors that are contributing to the Missouri result. These factors are the defections from the Republican party of large groups of voters which are found in all the states. The forces that are working for Mr. Davis in Missouri will work [illegible] in all the states west of New [illegible] least, that will not be carried by Mr. [illegible] lette.

We must take note not only of [illegible] calculations and the material and [illegible] ical factors which are based on the [illegible] 1920, we must take note of the moral [illegible] itual forces that are working in the [illegible] people against Mr. Coolidge and the [illegible] lican party, and for Mr. Davis and the [illegible] causes he represents. These are the [illegible] bles, the moral forces that make for [illegible] public opinion and for the [illegible] righteousness in government.

Never has the Democratic party [illegible] greater issue of honesty and capacity [illegible] ernment, and of equality and liberty [illegible] the laws. It has a high mission [illegible] masterful leadership of John W. Davis [illegible] the American people from the [illegible] ficial dishonesty and official [illegible] corruption, and from the oppression [illegible] ganized greed in alliance with the [illegible] lican party.

We do not believe that the American [illegible] are dead to moral issues. We do not [illegible] that their sense of political honesty [illegible] and blunted as the Republican leaders [illegible] to think.

We believe that the people need only [illegible] aroused to the necessity of rebuking [illegible] tion, incapacity and pluto-democracy [illegible] ercising power in Washington, and of [illegible] ing integrity, capacity, vision and [illegible] democracy to the Government.

The issue is not Coolidge or Chaos, [illegible] howling dervish of the plutocratic [illegible] claims, but Coolidge and Chaos.

The true slogan for Americans who [illegible] their institutions and the perpetuity [illegible] constitutional freedom is Davis and [illegible] Government.

BOB'S BIG PROBLEM.

Mark Sullivan in the World's Work for tober.

NOT only must La Follette carry [illegible] tain number of states himself; [illegible] tion—and this is important—the [illegible] he gets in those states that he [illegible] carry must work out in minute ways [illegible] no one can control or forecast. [illegible] get just enough votes in each State [illegible] both Davis and Coolidge to have [illegible] 266 electoral votes. It might not be [illegible] cult to manage this as to one of them [illegible] to manage it as to both Davis and Coolidge would call for an almost miraculous [illegible] political legerdemain—or else for the [illegible] est whim of fate. La Follette must get [illegible] enough votes in Democratic states to [illegible] vent Davis from having 266 electoral votes. He must get just enough and no more; [illegible] if he gets too many votes in too [illegible] number of Democratic states, the [illegible] would be to cause Davis to have no [illegible] less than 266 electoral votes that Coolidge would have many more. Similarly, La Follette must get just enough votes, and [illegible] too many, in Republican states, to [illegible] Coolidge to have less than 266 electoral votes. He must get just enough and no more. For if La Follette runs too [illegible] in too large a number of Republican states the outcome would be to cause one of these Republican states to be deserted, [illegible] to result in Davis having more than the required 266 electoral votes.

PRESIDENT COOLI[illegible]

[illegible]tates in Republican national conven-

[illegible]y's skill in certain directions had been [illegible]d by the insertion in the Congressional [illegible]d, Dec. 15, 1922, of a series of letters revealed him as an active broker in [illegible]ern patronage. Money was collected [illegible]mpaign funds by the sale of postmaster-[illegible]appointments. Congressman Harrison [illegible]ginia, who brought the correspondence [illegible], exhibited a number of checks used [illegible]ions transactions. These were payable [illegible]ndorsed by Slemp or L. B. Howard, his [illegible]ary.

[illegible] letters have become widely known as [illegible]ear Ben" correspondence. One of [illegible]igned by Slemp, read as follows:

[illegible] letters in regard to the collection of [illegible] for postoffices. One must be very cure-[illegible]ful about this. It will bring the party into dis-[illegible] which would be bad for everyone. We [illegible] preserve our standing with the people and [illegible] the administration.

[illegible]n there was the case of Joseph W. Tol-[illegible] dispenser of Republican patronage in [illegible] Carolina. He is the national committee[illegible]n for that State. On the showing that [illegible]y years ago he had been convicted of lar-[illegible] after trust, while Postmaster at Ninety-[illegible]. C., the Senate twice refused to confirm [illegible]ppointment given him by President Har-[illegible] as United States Marshal.

[illegible]Then Coolidge came in, Tolbert was serv-[illegible]nder a recess appointment. In Novem-[illegible] 1923, Tolbert resigned. President Cool-[illegible] promptly named a friend of Tolbert as [illegible]eral Judge in South Carolina and a [illegible]ew of Tolbert as District Attorney. Tol-[illegible]t was entrenched as Republican boss of [illegible] State.

[illegible]The pardoning of Philip Grossman, the [illegible]icago saloonkeeper, is another illustration [illegible] the amenability of the President to po-[illegible]ical influences. The President "plays the [illegible]me." Grossman, a notorious bootlegger, [illegible]d been sentenced to a year in jail by Fed-[illegible]al Judge Landis for contempt of court in [illegible]ntinuing to sell liquor in the face of an [illegible]junction closing his place. President Har-[illegible]ng had twice refused to consider a commu-[illegible]cation "until some part of the sentence is [illegible]erved." President Coolidge granted the com-[illegible]utation.

[illegible]It developed from testimony by Judge Lan-[illegible]s before the Brookhart-Wheeler committee [illegible]at Grossman escaped without serving a [illegible]y of his sentence. The Judge sharply criti-[illegible]ed the activity of certain "political gentle-[illegible]en" in helping to bring about his release. [illegible]e named, among others, Fred Upham, then [illegible]easurer of the Republican National Com-[illegible]ittee.

[illegible]Records of the Department of Justice [illegible]owed also the names of Senators McKinley [illegible]and McCormick of Illinois on a letter bringing [illegible]e Grossman appeal for clemency to the at-[illegible]ention of the President. Two Federal Judges [illegible]ave since ruled that the President exceeded [illegible]s powers in granting a pardon in a contempt [illegible]ase.

[illegible]John W. Davis has said that the President [illegible]as not aroused to any "creative indigna-[illegible]on" over the oil exposures. Certainly he [illegible] did not show any reaction of that sort to the [illegible]evelation that Edward B. McLean, the Wash-[illegible]gton newspaper publisher, had lied to the [illegible] Investigating Committee about his $100,-[illegible]00 "loan" to Fall.

[illegible]On the day after McLean admitted his story [illegible]was a myth, the President in the White House [illegible]ired to McLean at Palm Beach, asking him [illegible]to "advise Slemp with whom I shall confer." [illegible]Slemp was also at Palm Beach at that time.

His Connection With McLean

[illegible]The President's message meant, as subse-[illegible]quently shown by a White House explanation, [illegible]that he wanted McLean to refer him to some-[illegible]one with whom he might confer "regarding [illegible]district matters." In other words, McLean, [illegible]despite his admission of the day before, was [illegible]still in excellent standing at the White House. [illegible]He was still a man to be consulted on the [illegible]politics, which means the patronage, of the [illegible]District of Columbia.

[illegible]The good relations existing between the [illegible]President and the publisher were further evi-[illegible]denced by a telegram to McLean under date [illegible]of Feb. 12 last. This read: "Thank you for [illegible]your message. You have always been most [illegible]considerate. Mrs. Coolidge joins me in kindest [illegible]regards to you and Mrs. McLean.—Calvin [illegible]Coolidge."

[illegible]This telegram was prompted by congratu-[illegible]lations from McLean on the President's state-[illegible]ment refusing to fire Denby.

[illegible]It is not to be believed that a man who [illegible]ught, as McLean did, to thwart the effort [illegible]of an official investigating committee to ex-[illegible]pose corruption in the Government service [illegible]ould have remained persona grata at the [illegible]White House during the tenancy of a Roose-[illegible]velt or a Wilson.

[illegible]It has been hinted by political enemies of [illegible]the President that there was some ulterior [illegible]connection between a call paid to the Presi-[illegible]dent by Henry Ford on Dec. 3 last, the Presi-[illegible]dent's Muscle Shoals recommendation in his [illegible]message to Congress on Dec. 6, and Ford's [illegible]statement that he would not run for the Presi-[illegible]dency, but would support Coolidge, on Dec. [illegible]

[illegible]The President has been accused of try-[illegible]ing to "deliver" Muscle Shoals to Henry Ford [illegible]in return for the latter's support of his can-[illegible]didacy.

[illegible]The present writer does not believe for a [illegible]minute that there is any ground for an as-[illegible]sumption that there was a "deal" between the [illegible]two men.

[illegible]In advocating the sale of Muscle Shoals, [illegible]to the end that the farmer might be supplied [illegible]with cheaper fertilizer, the President espoused [illegible]a policy that a great many people, regardless [illegible]of party, had been advocating. It was his [illegible]good fortune that this action [illegible]won the good opinion of his friend Ford.

It was his ...ical good fortune that this action ...ished the good opinion of him which Ford had been forming.

But what is to be said of the complacent attitude of the President in the face of the oil scandal and the Department of Justice scandal? Secretary Wilbur made a significant reference to the former in the speech he wrote for delivery, but was choked off from delivering, at Denver. He called it the "so-called oil scandal."

The oil investigation was conducted virtually single-handed by Senator Walsh, without any aid whatever from the administration. As has been shown, the President continued to advise with Ned McLean after the latter was shown to have lied to shield former Secretary Fall. Neither in ferreting out wrong-doing nor in getting rid of the offenders was the initiative ever with the President. On the contrary, the forces of the administration, all along the line, seemed far more intent on discrediting the investigators than in punishing the guilty. The President promised that the public interest would be protected and the guilty prosecuted, but in his words was none of the flaming indignation that the exposures warranted. He kept cool.

The President also kept cool as the evidence mounted up to show the unfitness of Daugherty for the office of Attorney-General. Daugherty wrote, in reply to the President's belated request for his resignation: "Twice since you became President, and when I could have done so without criticism, I have offered to retire from your Cabinet, and you have in each case requested me to remain, because, as you were kind enough to say, of your entire satisfaction with the splendid accomplishments of the Department of Justice under my administration. . . . In conclusion, Mr. President, please accept my thanks for your statement that you do not question my fairness or integrity."

The President called for Daugherty's resignation only after he had been urged by leaders of his party in the Senate, including Lodge and Pepper, to get rid of the Attorney-General for political reasons. The disclosures of the Brookhart Committee had made Daugherty a heavy incumbrance, and the Republican Senators, who had troubles enough already, were unwilling to carry him into the campaign.

His Attitude on Daugherty

For a time the President hesitated between Daugherty on the one hand and the Senators on the other. Each side thought that it had the sympathy of the White House. When the President could no longer evade the issue, he asked for Daugherty's resignation on the narrow pretext that the Attorney-General, being an interested party, was not competent to pass upon the Brookhart Committee's demand for certain records of his office.

He did not call on Daugherty to get out because of his alleged misconduct in office. On the contrary he wrote that he did not question his "fairness or integrity."

There were four principal figures in the three major scandals of the Harding-Coolidge administration—Forbes of the Veterans' Bureau, Fall, Daugherty and Denby. From the eulogies of Mr. Coolidge in Republican campaign literature, a person not familiar with the facts might conclude that the President rose up in righteous wrath and drove them all out of office.

Some such inference might also be drawn from the brave words of the President's acceptance speech: "The people of this country know my position. They know the law will be enforced. This Government, under my direction, is doing the best it can to detect and punish any and all wrongdoing. I propose to use every possible effort to resist corruption in office. The American Government must be clean."

But the Government—"under my direction"—did no "detecting" of the oil scandal, notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Coolidge sat in the Senate as Vice President and heard the speech of April 28, 1922, in which Senator La Follette foreshadowed the disclosures. Mr. Coolidge did not fire Secretary Fall; he had gone out, of his own volition, before the death of Harding.

Mr. Coolidge did no "detecting" whatever of the circumstances that led to the public demand for Daugherty's resignation. The "detecting" done by the Department of Justice in connection with the senatorial investigations was devoted to "getting something on" the investigators. And Daugherty, as we have seen, was not the object of any towering indignation on the part of the President because of his sordid official record, but was made a sacrifice to political expediency.

Forbes, another of the quartet, had been forced out of office by Harding.

In the case of neither Fall, Daugherty nor Forbes can any credit be assigned to Mr. Coolidge for getting rid of the offender. What of the man who, under the expert tutelage of Fall, signed the oil lease on the dotted line with only a faint comprehension of what he was doing, and who said, in the face of the disclosures by the Senate Oil Committee, that he would do the same thing over again?

What of Mr. Coolidge's attitude toward Edwin Denby, his Secretary of the Navy?

By a vote of 47 to 34, the Senate called on the President to demand the resignation of Denby. No corruption was imputed to him, but his ignorance of the oil leases, as shown by his testimony, and his continued approval of these leases, which the Senate declared to have been made "in defiance of the settled policy of the Government," were held to have conclusively demonstrated his unfitness.

The President immediately replied to the Senate that he would pay no attention to the ouster resolution. Denby hung on for a week and then resigned, to save the President, as he said, from embarrassment.

In an official farewell, Mr. Coolidge wrote to Denby: "It is with regret that I am to part with you. You will go with the knowledge that your honesty and integrity have not been impugned. I treasure and reciprocate your expressions of friendship."

In the field of international relations Mr. Coolidge steps softly. Once he was suspected of the horrendous crime of looking with favor on the League of Nations. It was recalled that when, as Governor of Massachusetts he welcomed President Wilson back from Europe, he said that Massachusetts would support the President in the future as it had supported him in the past.

When Mr. Coolidge came to make his first address to Congress he took the occasion to remove the misgivings of the anti-leaguers. He said the league, so far as the United States was concerned, was a "closed incident." At the same time, he endeavored to satisfy the demand for American participation in world peace efforts by recommending adherence to the World Court. But his championship of the court proposal, as has been shown, ended with the recommendation.

This passivity was typical. Mr. Coolidge seems to think that it is enough for him to state that this or that thing ought to be done. The news goes out from the White House that he is for something that Congress is against, and friendly editorial writers leap to the conclusion that he is a "strong" man in a "fight" with Congress. The actuality is different. The record shows of his position—and the statement itself, as the President makes it, is apt to be much less vigorous than the editorial interpretation of it.

Mr. Coolidge has given no indication of an ability to translate fair words into action against a determined opposition.

The gumshoe foreign policy of the administration was epitomized in the specific White House disclaimer of any responsibility for the American experts who sought to solve the reparations problem. Yet when the Dawes plan blossomed forth and met with popular favor, the administration was quick to take the credit.

The administration attitude in this matter recalls the coal situation that developed early in Mr. Coolidge' administration. The best that the President could offer, in the face of the then impending strike of anthracite coal miners, was a suggestion that substitutes for coal would be found.

Then along came Gov. Pinchot with a plan for the settlement of the trouble. The White House gladly passed the buck to the Governor. After the Pinchot plan had averted the threatened strike, the President congratulated the Governor "on the success of the operation in which you co-operated." The whole incident furnishes a striking parallel to the administration's course in relation to the Dawes report.

Mr. Coolidge has not lived up to the promise of sturdy independence that he gave when he freed the political prisoners—an act of simple justice urged upon him by petitions with thousands of signatures—or when, resisting the blandishments of Senator Spencer, he made a highly creditable appointment, that of Judge Davis, to the St. Louis Federal bench.

Latterly he has become more than ever a man of silence. The whole of his campaign philosophy is in the words that "what you don't say can't hurt you."

A Pledge That Means Nothing.

Thus he is silent on the klan, and by his silence, in contrast with the specific denunciations of the klan by the two other candidates for the presidency, he has permitted the klan to remain a rancor-breeding issue in States like Colorado, Indiana and Kansas.

He is silent on sugar. Since the first of August he has had before him two reports from the Tariff Commission, one recommending no change in the tariff, the other a reduction. The standpat report was signed by two members of the commission, the other by three. It has been charged that the sugar rate was fixed at an exorbitant figure in the Fordney-McCumber bill, and apparently that is the conclusion of the majority of the members of the commission qualified to sit as judges. (There are six members, but one was disqualified on account of his sugar connections.)

Mr. Coolidge took the reports with him to Plymouth on his vacation and he has had them ever since, but no action one way or the other has resulted. Discussing the elastic provisions of the tariff law, he said in his first address to Congress: "They will be so administered that whenever the required investigation shows that inequalities of sufficient importance exist in any schedule, the power to change them should and will be applied."

Silence and strong?

Silence, yes.

Strong?

The record of his impotency as a leader, of his lack of burning zeal to wipe out the stain placed on the party and the national honor by the oil disclosures, of his indecision and evasion in the Daugherty affair, speaks for itself.

As this is written, a headline in an Administration paper strikes the eye. Talking platitudes to a convention of druggists, Mr. Coolidge "PLEDGES TAX REDUCTION."

There may be tax reduction, but for Mr. Coolidge to "pledge" it means precisely nothing. The next Congress will be even more anti-Coolidge than the last. The idea that Mr. Coolidge, with any surety of performance, can pledge anything requiring the co-operation of Congress is preposterous.

HOSPITAL FUND TO WIPE OUT DEFICIT

Sisters of Saint Mary Will Clear Debt for First Time in 52 Years.

When the $1,500,000 fund now being collected by the Sisters of Saint Mary is completed, it will mean that the order for the first time in its history of 52 years will be free of debt. According to a history issued by the campaign committee, the order formed in 1872 by five Bavarian sisters has each year met steadily increasing demand for its services always slightly beyond its means. As a result each year the Sisters found a deficit in their accounts.

Hope to Complete Fund.

However, on this occasion, the committee hopes to complete a fund which will raise a $1,000,000 debt on the new St. Mary's Hospital on Clayton road, and permit of the expenditure of $500,000 for the improvement of St. Mary's Infirmary, as well as clear all debts against the order.

The five Sisters who came to St. Louis in November, 1872, had served in the Franco-Prussian war, and soon became known as "The Smallpox Sisters" because of their work in fighting a smallpox epidemic. Established in a storeroom on South Second street, the Sisters constructed a three-story building at Third and Gratiot streets in 1873. Here one of the first convents in the United States was established.

The rapidly growing number of nurses who were admitted to the order and the growing demands of the poor for help, caused the Sisters in 1883 to solicit funds and purchase for $16,000 a plot at Fifteenth and Papin streets and a building in which Carl Schurz, later Secretary of State, had lived. Later the buildings which now constitute St. Mary's Infirmary were constructed as an addition.

Erect Sanitarium.

In 1901 the Sisters, through the efforts of Sister M. Helen, erected Mount St. Rose Sanitarium, the first hospital for the exclusive treatment of tuberculars to be erected in the Mississippi Valley. At this institution approximately 7500 patients have been treated, of which about 50 per cent could not pay.

When the new St. Mary's hospital was opened July 11, it was decided that the old infirmary be converted into a social service hospital. Records of the order show that since 1877, 62,243 persons have been treated at the infirmary, of which number 28,490, or almost half, have been unable to pay. So far, at the new hospital, 700 patients have been treated of which number 24 were absolute'y charity patients and 11 were those who could pay in part.

ST. LOUIS UNIVERSITY'S LIBRARY HAS 105,444 VOLUMES

Larger Quarters at Institution Assigned to the Catholic Free Library.

The annual report of the Rev. Henry H. Regnet, librarian of St. Louis University, shows there are 105,444 bound volumes in the various sections of the library, an increase of 5349 in the past year.

The largest increase was in the library of the medical school, which added 1750 volumes, as well as the Dr. M. L. Fleisher loan collection of 670 volumes.

The donors of important acquisitions in the year were Mrs. E. C. Clark, Miss Margaret Stark, John B. Quinn and E. Schneiderhahn of St. Louis, and Miss Barbara Ziegler of Ste. Genevieve, Mo.

The library of the new high school, Oakland avenue, near Kingshighway boulevard, was strengthened by the acquisition of the former Loyola and St. Louis Academy libraries, giving it a total of 14,000 bound volumes.

The Catholic Free Library, administered as a branch by the public library and located at the university since last December, has been assigned larger quarters. There is every prospect that evening service will be inaugurated in a few weeks, and that morning service will be given before many months.

REAL WEDDING TO DISPLAY LATEST STYLE FOR BRIDES

Bride Will Serve as Model in Nuptials to Be Held as Feature of Style Show.

A wedding, designed to display the latest styles for brides with a real bride as a model, will be one of the features of the annual Style Show to be given by the St. Louis branch of the American Cosmeticians' Association at the Hotel Statler Roof Garden Nov. 6 and 7. The principals in the nuptials will be Miss Lowanda Ludlow of Louisville, Ky., and George Kankar of St. Louis.

According to Mrs. Mary E. Wood, secretary of the local organization of beauty experts, the show will surpass all previous exhibitions of the kind given in the city. Firms of London, New York, Chicago and other large cities will be among the exhibitors. Several thousand persons attended the show last year. The purpose of the Cosmeticians' Association, according to Mrs. Wood, is to keep up the highest standards in the art of obtaining and maintaining feminine beauty by use of scientific methods.

UNUSUAL SALE OF CHINESE RUGS

—With Irregularities Which You Will Overlook, in View of the Absurdly Low Prices

9x12-Ft. Room-Size Rugs —Offered at the Very Special Price of $108

The Lowest Price That We Ever Heard of for 9x12 Chinese Rugs

This opportunity to secure genuine Chinese Rugs is so far out of the ordinary that everyone who reads this announcement will immediately realize the advantage of selecting from the collection. In fact, every Rug is such an extraordinary value that many will want to be here when the store opens at 9 o'clock. We imported several hundred Rugs direct from China and in going through the lot very carefully we selected those which did not measure up to our usual standard of merchandise and are now offering them at about half price. There is no doubt but that these Rugs will give years of satisfactory service, but we are selling them without our usual guarantee.

We urge you to see for yourself how decorative are the various antique patterns of these Rugs—how much they will add to the beauty of your home. They are suitable for many rooms of the home, all hand-woven, their glowing designs carried out on lustrous grounds of taupe, blue or mulberry shades—Rugs that it may never be possible for us to offer again at the remarkably special prices featured.

GIRL CONFESSES BEING DECOY IN A HOLDUP

Youth Who Had Her Lure Escort on Automobile Ride Into Alley Also Admits Crime.

Coburn Simpson, 22 years old, and Miss Eva Dye, 20, of 1103 Morrison avenue, confessed to Capt. Patrick Kirk of the Soulard Street Station yesterday that they engineered the holdup of Sam Pecoraro Jr. of 1713 North Thirteenth street, Friday evening.

Miss Dye confessed that, out of work and without funds, she agreed to act as a decoy so that Simpson could effect an "easy stickup." She said she met Pecoraro, at a street carnival Monday night and made an engagement to go riding in his automobile Friday evening. She told Simpson of this and he suggested that she steer Pecoraro into an alley.

Simpson confessed to making a diagram of the alley between Seventh and Eighth streets from Rutger street to Park avenue. He waited in the alley at a selected point until Pecoraro and the girl drove in. She had told Pecoraro she wanted to get her hat from the home of a friend and suggested the short cut through the alley.

As Simpson held the revolver Miss Dye searched their victim at Simpson's order, taking $10 in cash and a stickpin valued at $25. Simpson fled and the girl, acting the part of innocence, went to the police station with Pecoraro. The police were suspicious. They took the girl to her room at the Morrison avenue address. Search of the room revealed Pecoraro's money and the diagram hid under a carpet. Simpson, who was at the house, and Miss Dye were arrested. They first protested innocence, but finally told Capt. Kirk the story.

Simpson said he was married, but that his wife had gone back to her home in Arkansas, taking their child. He had known Miss Dye for two weeks. The girl said she formerly resided with her parents at 2123 South Seventh boulevard.

WHITELAW ESTATE DIVIDED BETWEEN WIDOW AND SON

Specific Bequest Gives Mrs. Whitelaw $50,000 Before Division of Residue Is Made.

The will of Charles W. Whitelaw, who died Sept. 27, was filed yesterday. He made a specific bequest of $50,000 to his widow, Mrs. Jennie Whitelaw, and divided the residue of the estate equally between her and their son, George P. Whitelaw, 5291 Westminster place, who was appointed executor. The will directs the executor to seek advice from the St. Louis Union Trust Co. in relation to handling the property.

Mrs. Whitelaw was requested by her husband in his will to bequeath $10,000 to the endowment fund of Christ Church Cathedral when she makes her will. He was a vestryman of that church.

Whitelaw died on his sixty-fourth birthday after an illness of more than six months. He had served as president of the Polar Wave Ice & Fuel Co. and at the time of his death was a member of the Board of Directors of the St. Louis Union Trust Co.

BURGLARY WARRANT ON THUMB PRINT EVIDENCE

Impression on Bit of Broken Glass Said to Coincide With Prisoner's.

Warrants charging burglary were issued yesterday against James Michaels, 18 years old, of 909 South Ninth street, and Fred Nesser, 21, of 917 Hickory street, on the evidence of a night watchman's story and a thumb print found on a piece of glass from a broken window pane.

The night watchman, Homer Lanz, employed by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. at its building, 1410 South Jefferson avenue, telephoned police last Tuesday evening that burglars had entered the company offices during his temporary absence to see the Veiled Prophet parade. Detectives responded and picked up Lanz, who said that three men had just fled the scene in an automobile. Lanz said he recognized one of the men as a loiterer on the street corner who had whistled a warning as he approached.

The police started in pursuit and came upon an automobile stalled on Rutger street near Jefferson avenue. Nesser and Michaels were standing beside it. Lanz identified Nesser as the lookout. In making their escape the burglars broke a window. On a piece of glass from this pane detectives found a finger print which, they say, coincided with Michaels'. The men deny any connection with the attempted robbery.

WANTED PLAYMATE TO HAVE HAIR CUT LIKE HERS

One Good Bob Deserves Another, but Mary Stuntz Lacked Skill.

Mary Stuntz, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Stuntz, 314 South Virginia avenue, Belleville, was given a shingle bob the other day and liked it so well she wanted her chum, Betty Daley, 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Daley, to have one, too.

She invited Betty to the garage and tucked an apron around her neck and went to work with her mother's scissors. She snipped away at Betty's curls, as the barber had done to hers. Her intentions were good, but instead of a single bob she gave Betty a stair-step job.

When Betty went home there was consternation. Betty was not very specific, but the transaction was traced to Mary. She, tearfully contrite when she saw what a botch she had made of Betty's bob, was forgiven and a barber was called in to repair the damage.

WOMAN BURNED AND INJURED IN COLLISION WITH ICEMAN

Latter Was Carrying Bucket of Burning Gasoline from Kitchen of Neighbor of Victim of Accident.

Mrs. Audrey Weathersby, 34 years old, 4417A Virginia avenue, suffered burns of both legs and scalp wounds yesterday morning, when her clothing became ignited and she was knocked from a porch six feet to the ground, in a collision with an iceman who was carrying a bucket of burning gasoline from the home of Mrs. Frieda Feuser at 4411 Virginia avenue.

After cleaning some clothes in a bucket of gasoline Mrs. Feuser placed the vessel on the kitchen sink. She lighted a gas stove and tossed the match behind her into the bucket containing the gasoline, instead of into the sink as she intended. When the gasoline ignited she screamed. The iceman, delivering ice at the time, grabbed the bucket and darted for the back door.

Mrs. Weathersby had heard the screams and reached the back door as the iceman ran out, colliding with him. Her dress caught fire and the force of the impact threw her off the porch. The iceman put out the flames and a passing physician took Mrs. Weathersby to his office and later to her home.

FILLING STATION OPPONENTS FILE SECOND INJUNCTION SUIT

Permits for Place on Newstead and McPherson Avenues Granted and Excavation Begun.

A second lawsuit has been filed by property owners in the vicinity of Newstead and McPherson avenues to prevent the erection of a gasoline filling station there. It is a suit to enjoin the Lubrite Refining Co. and the McKelvey Construction Co. from erecting a station at the southwest corner of Newstead and McPherson, alleging that this would constitute a nuisance. Circuit Judge Pearcy issued a temporary restraining order, returnable tomorrow.

W. Scott Hancock, attorney for the plaintiffs, stated that a permit for erection of the station had been obtained yesterday, before the suit was filed, and excavations had been begun.

The same plaintiffs previously sued to enjoin the Board of Public Service from issuing a permit for the station. Circuit Judge Grimm, deciding against them, indicated their recourse might lie in suing the gasoline and construction companies. The first case is pending in the courts.

In the suit filed yesterday it is alleged that the filling station would increase fire risks, cause traffic congestion, disturb residents at night with glaring lights, constitute a menace to life and property and depreciate value of surrounding property by more than $20,000. The plaintiffs claim to represent 240 property owners of the neighborhood.

Sale of GRAND PIANOS
and
REPRODUCING GRAND PIANOS
at 20% Discount

We are discontinuing the agencies of five well-known makes of Grand Pianos and Reproducing Grand Pianos.

The names and models of these fine instruments, together with our regular price and special sale price, are listed below.

The Kieselhorst guarantee and the Manufacturer's guarantee accompanies each Piano.

Our reason for discontinuing these agencies is this: we have been appointed St. Louis representatives for the celebrated AMPICO in Mason & Hamlin Pianos and Haines Brothers Pianos, and will soon receive large shipments of both the MASON & HAMLIN AMPICO and the HAINES BROTHERS AMPICO.

Our floor space, even in this five-story building, is limited; therefore, as the AMPICO is the best-known reproducing instrument in the world and possesses the largest catalogue of music, played by the greatest number of world-famous pianists, we feel we can best serve the music-loving people of St. Louis by discontinuing these five makes and devote the floor space to the display of the MASON & HAMLIN AMPICO and the HAINES BROTHERS AMPICO.

It is a well known fact that THE KIESELHORST PLAN of merchandising is that ideal combination of volume sales of high-grade Pianos at a small profit per Piano. Therefore, you will appreciate these high-grade Pianos, listed below, are real, genuine bargains.

WIDOW'S SAVINGS ARE CAUSE OF LAWSUIT

Bank Brings Action to Determine if $17,000 Account Goes to Joint Depositor.

A controversy over $17,550.32, on deposit in a savings account in the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., caused the trust company to file suit yesterday to determine to whom the money shall be paid. It was deposited in the names of "S. S. Smith and Mrs. Caroline B. L. Frank, either or survivor to draw," but was not to be paid to either in the absence of a pass-book.

Mrs. Frank, an elderly widow, died Aug. 26 last. For years she kept a rooming house at 1508 Pine street. Smith, a Vandalia Railroad conductor, who lives in Indianapolis, was one of her roomers on his stopovers in St. Louis. She did not leave a will, and Public Administratro Hampe took charge of her estate. He found the pass-book with the savings notations among her effects, and is claiming the whole fund in behalf of heirs of Mrs. Frank. On the other hand Smith also claims the whole fund.

Mrs. Frank had been totally blind for 12 years and is said to have relied on Smith to attend to her banking business. It was stated that he contends that some of the money in the account was his personally; also that he and Mrs. Frank agreed that in event he survived her he was to have the full amount.

So far the Public Administrator has found three cousins who are the closest living heirs of Mrs. Frank. Besides the bank account Mrs. Frank left a $250 Liberty Bond and jewelry valued at $675. She was the widow of Jacob M. Frank.

The suit of the trust company is directed against Public Administrator Hampe and Smith. Circuit Judge Pearcy authorized the petitioner to place the fund under the jurisdiction of the court until the question of ownership is settled. Mrs. Frank started the account 15 years ago.

Constipation
—the penalty of civilization

THE Vikings of old could indulge in huge feasts of heavy foods without dread of constipation. Strenuous physical activity was their safeguard.

Conditions are changed today. Intestines clog, and half-measures such as overnight cathartics, when they work at all, often interrupt sleep or interfere with business or social duties in the daytime.

JUDGE ORDERS DEED TO SUBURBAN LOT SET ASIDE

Decision Given in Equity Suit in Which Presiding Judge of County Court Is Defendant.

A deed to a lot in Midland Heights, St. Charles road, St. Louis County, given by Mrs. Emma Olson of Home Heights, has been ordered set aside by Circuit Judge McElhinney, for the second time, in an equity suit by Mrs. Olson against Presiding Judge Smiley of the County Court, John S. Sidebotham, real estate man, and C. I. Gerling, trustee for T. L. Niemoeller.

The suit was filed two years ago, when Judge Smiley was a candidate for election, and charged that Smiley and Sidebotham had induced her to give a second deed of trust, subject to a prior deed for $4000, without her knowledge. Mrs. Olson said she had employed them to sell the lot for $8000 and that she signed a contract to sell it to a man they introduced to her as "Abbington," but that the agents had her sign a deed of trust in Smileys' name because, "Abbington" didn't want his purchase to become known. She said that Gerling and Niemoeller signed notes to pay her for the lot.

Judge McElhinney ordered the first deed of trust, as well as the warranty deed, set aside, and assessed the costs against the defendants, but refused judgment for return of the $700 commission paid by Mrs. Olson or the $500 damages she asked. A motion for a new trial has been filed in behalf of Smiley.

The case previously was heard by Circuit Judge Wurdeman, who rendered a similar decision, but the plaintiffs obtained a new trial and change of venue.

Edwardsville Hotel Man Dies.

Rudolph Teufort, 67 years old, proprietor of the Leland Hotel, Edwardsville, Ill., and owner of the building, died suddenly Friday night. He had seemed to be in his usual health, but complained to members of his family of not feeling well and in a few minutes was dead. He had conducted the hotel for the past year. He owned considerable property, including a soda water factory at Staunton, Ill., his former home.

WILL HAYES ACQUITTED IN DECK MURDER CASE

Youth Accused of Slaying Dry Informer Got Life Term at First Trial.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

IRONTON, Mo., Oct. 11.—After more than three and a half years another man was acquitted here yesterday in the murder of Andrew Deck, volunteer prohibition informer, which occurred at Herculaneum, Mo., Feb. 26, 1921.

This man is Will Hayes, 20 years old, of Herculaneum. He was tried here for the first time nearly three years ago, when a youth. That jury stood 11 to 1 for hanging him, for some time, but finally returned a verdict of life imprisonment. The Supreme Court of Missouri reversed and remanded the case.

Father Also Was Cleared.

Hayes' father, Ernest, was acquitted in the murder at Hillsboro, in June, 1923, after having been sentenced to hang at a previous trial, a verdict reversed by the Supreme Court. His second trial marked a turning point in the defense.

His lawyer, Albert S. Ennis of Festus, demonstrated that the revolver the State contended was used in the murder was of such great penetrating power that its bullet would have passed through Deck's body, instead of lodging there, as the fatal bullet did. This evidence and a new deposition by B. T. Mattingly of Bardstown, Ky., formerly of Herculaneum, were used in the Will Hayes defense.

State's Witness Died.

Mattingly swore that on the rainy night of the murder he saw Elvie Thomas, a former Deputy Constable at Herculaneum, in the alley behind Deck's home, where Deck was killed a few minutes later. Elvie Thomas was one of the seven men indicted for the murder but he returned State's evidence. He died Sept. 25, last, and the transcript of his testimony in the first Will Hayes trial was read in this one.

The State's contention has been that James Seward of St. Louis, who is in the penitentiary, having been convicted, murdered Deck at the instance of the other defendants, who were alleged to have paid him $35 to beat Deck. The jury yesterday was instructed it must acquit Will Hayes if it failed to believe beyond reasonable doubt that Seward killed Deck. Eugene Hayes, a brother of Will, who twice was sentenced to hang, but won reversals, will be tried again at Hillsboro, Oct. 27, after which the evidence about the weapon will be laid before the State Pardon Board in an effort to have Seward pardoned or paroled. Two other defendants were acquitted.

MANY ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS IN RUSSIA HAVE BEEN CLOSED

Teachers Get $5 to $10 a Month and Efforts Is Made to Raise Salaries to $15.

MOSCOW, Oct. 11.—The number of elementary schools in Russia is greatly diminished, the Central Executive of the soviets was informed in an address yesterday by the Peoples' Commissar of Education, M. Lunacharsky. He said that in 1916 there were in Russia 61,000 elementary schools, which provided education for 4,500,000 children. During the early years of the revolution this number was brought up to 76,000, with an attendance of 6,000,000 children, but from 1922 the number of schools began to decline and there now are only 49,000, serving slightly more than 3,500,000 children.

Teachers this year received an average of $10 a month, while in certain districts the figure is less than $5. Last year the Government assigned to education $40,000,000 and this year $60,000,000. Before the war the local Zemstvos spent on education $100,000,000 in addition to the sums assigned by Government and included in the budget.

The Commissar of Education drew a sad picture of the state of the children in the rural schools and the position of the teaching staffs, which he characterized as most deplorable.

JEWELRY VALUED AT $12,000 STOLEN FROM WEALTHY WIDOW

Burglars Frightened From Bardstown (Ky.) Home When Mrs. Estelle Shaunty Screams.

By the Associated Press.

BARDSTOWN, Ky., Oct. 11.—A well-dressed burglar entered the home of Mrs. Estelle Shaunty, widow of Bardstown's millionaire distiller, John Shaunty, early today and escaped with a bag of diamond rings and other jewelry valued at $12,000. The intruder was frightened by Mrs. Shaunty's screams, which aroused servants and neighbors.

Mrs. Shaunty, reported to be near a nervous collapse, was awakened when a silver hand mirror slipped to the floor while the thief worked in her room. Apparently no other part of the house had been searched when the victim's screams brought two servants to her room as the burglar descended a large colonial stairway and escaped. A bloodhound twice trailed a scent over a route from the house to a nearby road, where the robber is believed to have entered a motor car for Louisville.

HEARING ON OCEAN FREIGHTS

Entire Shipping Board to Listen to Arguments for Lower Rates.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Decision to have the entire Shipping Board, in addition to Examiner Manghum, hear oral arguments at a date yet to be fixed, on the plea of Southern and Gulf ports for authority to lower ocean freight export rates in order to compete with North Atlantic ports, was announced today by Commissioner Frederick I. Thompson.

Wedding of Miss Dorothy Simmons and Walter J. Hock, Oct. 18, Will Draw a Number of Persons From Other Places; Many Out-of-Town Girls Being Entertained.

THE pleasant warmth of Indian summer in the Middle South, or the lure of our very own Veiled Prophet ball, or perhaps just an innate affection for St. Louis hospitality, has crowded the city with visitors. Some have been here a fortnight, and others came for the festivities of Wednesday night, while still others are to arrive this week for the many important weddings still scheduled for early fall. Each is identified with his or her special set, and all are being much entertained.

The wedding of Miss Dorothy Simmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Simmons of the Hanley road, and Walter J. Miss Roberta Lewis of Chicago is expected today, and will visit Miss Elizabeth Luyties; Miss Eleanor Jewett of Detroit, who also is to be with Miss Luyties, will be here Wednesday; Misses Katherine and Marian Lewis of Chicago will arrive soon, the former to visit Miss Catherine Louise Crunden, and the latter, Mrs. Ira E. Wight of Westmoreland place. Miss Estelle Manville of New York will be the guest of Miss Eleanor Simmons, Mrs. George Welch Simmons, although only a visitor, has come from New York, and is with her sister, Mrs. Charles Parsons Jettus, as is her daughter, Miss Virginia Simmons. Miss Simmons is to remain for the debutante season.

The parties planned for Miss Simmons, Mr. Hock and the bridal group include a dinner by Miss Audrey Faust Wednesday evening; dinner and kitchen shower by Mr. and Mrs. Bureau Weld the following evening, at their new home on the Litzinger road, when Miss Faust and her fiance, Mahlon G. Wallace Jr., will share honors; and a dinner for Mr. Hock by his groomsmen the same evening at the St. Louis Country Club. Miss Luyties will entertain the Simmons-Hock party at dinner Friday night.

City Crowded With Society Visitors and Many Still to Come

Wedding of Miss Dorothy Simmons and Walter J. Hock, Oct. 18, Will Draw a Number of Persons From Other Places; Many Out-of-Town Girls Being Entertained.

THE pleasant warmth of Indian summer in the Middle South, or the lure of our very own Veiled Prophet ball, or perhaps just an innate affection for St. Louis hospitality, has crowded the city with visitors. Wallace Jr., will share honors; and a dinner for Mr. Hock by his groomsmen the same evening at the St. Louis Country Club. Miss Luyties will entertain the Simmons-Hock party at dinner Friday night.

Tomorrow Miss Lela Edwards of Pittsburg will arrive to be the guest of Miss Grace Wallace, the Veiled Prophet's retiring Queen. Miss Edwards and her father were with Miss Wallace on her trip to Europe last summer. She will be here two weeks.

Miss Dorothy Claggett, one of the season's attractive debutantes, is entertaining Miss Jane Walden of Rye, N. Y. Informal parties will be given for Miss Walden, who will be here only a week. She is en route from Louisville, where she served as a bridesmaid at a recent wedding, to Atlanta, to perform a similar office for another friend.

In addition to another group of young women whose photographs are shown on this page, there is Miss Barbara Brownlee of Connecticut, who is sharing honors with the newly crowned queen, Miss Mary Virginia Collins; Miss Marie Frances Filer of Sharon, Pa., the guest of Miss Ruth Muckerman; Miss Tallulah Cudd of Atlanta, Ga., visiting Miss Frances Bradshaw; Miss Glory Huchins of Oklahoma City, visiting Miss Elizabeth Tupper; Misses Madeline Couzens, daughter of United States Senator James A. Couzens, and Miss Marjorie Dwyer, both of Detroit, guests at the home of Miss Ruth Cornet, and Henry Allen Burton, who recently returned from South America, where he has spent the past three years, and is visiting his mother, Mrs. John Allen Burton of Page boulevard. Miss Huchins has visited in St. Louis before, and last season shared honors with her hostess, then a debutante, at a number of parties.

A number of young matrons also have augmented the social circles. Mrs. Godfrey McDonald of Atlanta, Ga., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Boeckeler. She formerly was Miss Elizabeth Boeckeler. Mrs. Festus J. Wade will give a luncheon bridge Oct. 16 for Mrs. Ben Givens of Pasadena, Cal., formerly of St. Louis. Mrs. Givens now is with her sister-in-law, Mrs. John Wallace Fristoe, and will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart McDonald before returning to her home. Mrs. Clarence Kelly Canelo of San Jose, Cal., and her small daughter are the guests of Mrs. Canelo's father, Leo G. Hadley of Longfellow boulevard. Her sisters, Miss Alice Hadley and Mrs. Fred Forshey, will be hostesses at a tea in her honor Oct. 15.

Miss Margaret Moffat Her engagement to Charles Burford Coxhead of Buffalo was announced Monday.

Miss Margaret Severance of Chicago, who is the guest of Miss Lois Engel.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sullivan of Providence, R. I., will be here today to see Mrs. Sullivan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James G. Cahill. They are en route from Chicago and will remain a week. Mrs. Cahill's sister, Mrs. William P. Burke, and William Jr. have just departed for their home in New Orleans after a visit here.

Mrs. Mary Howell Betts, attractive debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Frederick Betts of Westminster place, was the guest of honor at a dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gordon of 38 Westmoreland place. Twelve covers were laid.

Miss Helen Reyburn, daughter of Mrs. Amadee Valle Reyburn of 4634 Lindell boulevard, has joined the ranks of the debutantes. She was maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball, and will be presented at a tea to be given by Mrs. George Clayes of Maryland avenue, the afternoon of Oct. 15. Invitations have been sent to 50 young women, including the debutantes and some of the second year girls. Miss Reyburn is a graduate of the Sacred Heart Convent.

Miss Katherine Burlingame, daughter of I. L. Burlingame of 5655 Bartmer avenue, became the bride at 11 o'clock yesterday morning of William George Funck, in a quiet home ceremony at which only members of the two families were guests. The Rev. Dr. John W. MacIvor of the Second Presbyterian Church officiated. Mrs. Funck wore an ensemble suit of grey duvetyn trimmed with bands of o'possum at the collar, cuffs and around the bottom of the coat. The gown itself was of self-toned crepe de chine, with the grey duvetyn appliqued on the skirt. A tailored black hat completed the costume. Their wedding trip will be by motor, and they will reside at 4953 McPherson avenue.

As a debutante several seasons ago, the bride was very popular, and during the war her Red Cross activities made her a notable figure. She was in charge of the storage and distribution of surgical supplies for the Southwest division.

An out-of-town wedding of interest here is that of Miss Annalee Hagerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hagerman of Cleveland Park, Washington, D. C., and Heyward Siddons, son of Justice Siddons of the Supreme Court for the District of Columbia, which will take place Oct. 28 at the home of the bride's parents. Miss Peggy Hagerman will be her sister's maid of honor and only attendant.

The Hagerman family formerly resided in St. Louis, and Miss Hagerman was invited last year to be a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball, but debutante activities in Washington did not permit her being here. She was graduated from Mary Institute and moved to Washington with her parents about five years ago.

Arrangements are complete for the marriage of Miss Ruth Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Rodgers Harris of Webster Groves, and James Waterman Porteous, which will take place the evening of Oct. 14 at the Presbyterian Church of Webster Groves. Mrs. Nelson Howe will serve the bride as matron of honor and her other attendants will be Miss Harriet Bronson Manter, Miss Katherine Hall and Mrs. Alfred Booth. Allen Porteous will be his brother's best man and Nelson Howe, Lucien Brigham and George Jehle of Kansas City, groomsmen.

The pre-nuptial parties as now planned include a dinner at Hotel Chase given by Mr. Allen Porteous Thursday, a bridge party the following evening by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Alt of the Old Country Club grounds, and a buffet supper for the bridal party by Miss Hall, Oct. 13. Miss Manter gave a dinner for them at her home in Webster Groves Saturday night.

The out-of-town guests will be Mr. and Mrs. William Porteous, parents of the bridegroom who recently returned from Europe; Mr. and Mrs. John Porteous of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stewart of New York and Dr. and Mrs. M. E. Clark of Indianapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rutherford Stocker have invited their friends to an informal tea from 5 to 7 o'clock this afternoon at their new apartment, 517 Adelaide avenue, University City. The affair will be in the nature of a house warming. Autumn colors will prevail, and the table will have for its centerpiece yellow chrysanthemums arranged in a large holder. Mrs. Stocker was, before her marriage last summer, Miss Janice Feldman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Feldman of Kingsbury place.

Gala Week Closes With Two Weddings In Social Circle

Miss Mary Caroline Wyles Weds Dr. Anthony B. Day and Miss Grace Taylor Becomes Bride of Rowe Garesche.

A GALA week in society ended yesterday with the marriage of four of its prominent members. At a brilliant ceremony last night in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Russell Wyles, 431 North Sheridan road, Chicago, Miss Mary Caroline Wyles was married to Dr. Anthony B. Day of St. Louis. Miss Grace Taylor, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Daniel G. Taylor of 4907 Pershing avenue, became the bride of Rowe Garesche at the Taylor home, at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The household being saddened by the recent death of Mrs. Taylor's brother, Mr. Whitelaw.

Dr. Day's bride will not come to St. Louis a stranger, for she was presented to society here last season by her aunt, Mrs. Robert McKittrick Jones, and became a member of the Imperial. The Rev. Dr. John W. Day of the Church of the Messiah, officiated at the marriage of his son, assisted by the Rev. Peter Wolcott of Highland Park, and a reception followed at the Exmoor Country Club.

The bride wore white chiffon, trimmed with pearl and orange blossoms. The train was fashioned from her grandmother's wedding gown, and the veil with its point lace bandeau was worn by her mother. Miss Anne Trickett Wyles was her sister's maid of honor, and with the exception of her cousin Miss Florence Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McKittrick Jones of St. Louis, and Mrs. Leonard Charles Kline of Kansas City, the matron of honor, the attendants were Chicago and Eastern young women. Their gowns were crepe satin with contrasting bands of velvet at the hem. The maid of honor wore pale blue, the matron of honor her own satin wedding gown, while the bridesmaids were in pastel shades, two in peachblow, two in orchid and two in pale corn color. They carried old-fashioned bouquets.

Dr. Day's attendants from St. Louis included Dudley French, best man, and John C. Talbot, Humphrey A. Gifford, Dr. Elliot K. Dixon and Hilgard F. Tittman. They, with a large contingent from this city, departed Friday for the ceremony. Included in the group were Mrs. Robert McKittrick Jones, Mrs. Humphrey Birge of Santa Barbara, Cal., and Mrs. Charles Claflin Allen, aunt of the bride; Mrs. Birge's daughter, Miss Caroline Birge; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McK. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley French, and the Misses Mary Lemon Sipple, Margaret Chandler and Margaret Turner.

Only members of the immediate families attended the Taylor-Garesche nuptials, although a large wedding originally had been planned, and the young women who were to have been bridesmaids were present at the dinner following. Mrs. Edward Gillet Hotchkiss attended her sister as maid of honor, and Barney Maloy was best man. The bride wore white satin and duchesse lace, and her tulle veil fell over a satin court train. She carried lilies of the valley. Mr. and Mrs. Garesche have departed for a two weeks' honeymoon in the South and will make their home temporarily with Judge and Mrs. Taylor.

The bride is a graduate of the Sacred Heart Convent and Miss Wright's School in Bryn Mawr, Pa. She is a member of the Imperial, and is closely identified with Junior League work. She has served several times as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball. Mrs. Hotchkiss was crowned queen in 1912. Mr. Garesche is the son of Judge and Mrs. Vital W. Garesche. He is a graduate of the St. Louis University Law School, and is a member of the St. Louis and University Clubs. He was a Lieutenant in the air service during the war.

The Tyler Place Presbyterian Church was the setting for the wedding of Miss Gertrude Anne Aufderheide, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William D. Aufderheide of Magnolia avenue, and Harold E. Jamieson, which took place last night at 8 o'clock, with the Rev. R. C. Williamson officiating. Six hundred guests were present at the ceremony, which was performed under an arch of roses, and later a reception for 100 guests was given by Dr. and Mrs. Aufderheide at their home.

It was a rose wedding, with the gowns of the bride's attendants carrying out the color scheme. The matron of honor, Mrs. Smith J. Duringer, wore an American beauty color chiffon, veiled in a delicate peachblow shade of chiffon. Rhinestones were appliqued in designs on the bodice, and the skirt was circular. There was a side train of chiffon. The bridesmaids were Misses Aufderheide, a cousin, and Elinor Luedinghaus. Miss Aufderheide was gowned in shaded pink chiffon, and Miss Luedinghaus in shaded yellow chiffon. Silver ribbons made into loops fell from one shoulder to the hems of the gowns.

They wore silver wreaths in their hair and carried roses to match their frocks. Mary Anne Gewinner and Florence Martinek were flower girls, and Little Oscar Gewinner Jr., ring bearer.

The bride's gown was satin with a draped skirt embellished in imported lace, caught into the drapery. There was a train of satin and tulle veil of lace. She carried lilies of the valley.

The best man was Smith J. Duringer and Fred Aufderheide Jr. of Omaha, Neb., a cousin, and Anson W. Veazey were groomsmen.

Mr. and Mrs. Jamieson will take an extended honeymoon through the East and Canada, and will live in St. Louis. The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute. Mr. Jamieson is the son of George E. Jamieson of New York. He was graduated from St. Lawrence University at Canton, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Slawson, 4201 Westminster place, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Leona Marie, to Kenneth Charles Schreiner, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Schreiner of Julian avenue. The ceremony was performed Oct. 8 at the home of the bride's parents, and was followed by a reception for relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Schreiner have departed for Galveston on their honeymoon nad will make their home in Dallas.

Mrs. H. T. Hanley of 960 Beach avenue has as her guest, Mrs. Hugh L. Anderson of Beaumont, Tex.

Mrs. Enrique Ornelas, wife of the Mexican Consul at Cincinnati, is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Walsh, of 3766 Juniata street. Mrs. Ornelas will remain here a fortnight visiting relatives and friends.

An appeal has been sent out by the Catholic Woman's League for rummage for the annual sale which the league will hold Oct. 22 and 25 at 918 Morgan street for the purpose of raising funds to help finance the organization's welfare work.

Mrs. Raymond F. McNally is chairman of the sale; Mrs. Amadee V. Reyburn treasurer and Mrs. John Scherer secretary. Castoff clothing, household goods and furniture and books are acceptable for the sale. Persons having such articles to contribute to the sale are asked to telephone Mrs. John C. A Peep Behind the Scenes by Shirley Dennis

I have been wanting to share with you some of the interesting things I have been learning about the conduct of a big business. And I find that so many people ask me whether there really are "bargains" at big "Sales," that I think I will talk to you about "Sales."

I can assure you that Sales at Sonnenfeld's do really offer wonderful savings opportunities.

There are many Special-Purchase Sales when a buyer, who has bought at a concession, shares his savings with the public. Such a sale is extremely worth while.

Then there are Sales that occur ever so often merely to increase the volume of business for the day. They offer great reductions for the day only, and the articles are marked back to their original prices when the Sale is over.

You must not gauge the importance of a sale by the size of the display in the paper, but rather by the message in the ad itself. For instance, the Coats described at the left offer values quite out of the ordinary, and you may have complete confidence in the modest statement made, and come down expecting to find real "bargains."

A Wonderful Group of New Coats

Reveals Sonnenfeld's Supremacy in Supplying Quality at Low Prices

Fur-trimmed Coats of the new soft, suede fabrics as well as the popular lustrous piles, choose unerringly the slender silhouette. With many smart touches that distinguish them as tailored with patience and precision, they present the proud appearance that is associated with garments much higher in price.

Beaver, squirrel, Jap mink, fox, marmink, wolf and muskrat generously adorn them, sometimes as collar and cuffs, and again in wide bands and revers. All are crepe-lined in matching shades.

(Coat Shop—Third Floor.)

The "Meadowbrook"

Needs No Introduction

$12 to $22

The Meadowbrook Hat brings the woodland to life, not only in warm, rich hues, which are painted on its crown and brim, but in leaf, bird, flower, and rustic scenes which are patterned across its surface in kid, velvet and felt and silk appliques.

More moderately priced than ever before, and in sizes and shapes for matron and miss.

(Sport Hat Shop—Second Floor.)

Rich Caracul Furs

Are as Supple as Cloth

$325

With modes as slim as a string, the suppleness of rich fur pelts lends itself to the slender line. The Caracul Coat illustrated reveals a warm cocoa hue, reinforcing its effect through luxurious fox fur collar, cuffs and banding.

Long Coats and Jacquettes In All the Popular Pelts Range From $95 to $1500.

(Fur Shop—Third Floor.)

Dainty Negligees Exquisitely Feminine

$14.75 and $25

In many attractive styles, some rivaling the mode of the evening gown, these softly clinging Negligees present themselves for your delightful choosing. Georgettes in ombre shades, brocaded chiffons in rich, colorful hues, lustrous satins, crepes de chines, with lace and ribbon and ostrich trimmings, and flowing sleeves, make an irresistible appeal to feminine fancies.

ENGAGEMENTS AND WEDDINGS OF INTEREST

Miss Elizabeth Donaldson Hodgman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Hodgman of 5379 Waterman avenue, became the bride of William M. B. Freeman of Newton Center, Mass., at one of the most interesting of society's autumn weddings. The bride, whose family has long been a part of St. Louis' exclusive circles, was graduated at Mary Institute, and Miss Porter's School at Farmington, Conn. She came out several seasons ago and is a member of the Imperial and the Junior League. The wedding took place at St. Michael and All Angels' Church, the Rev. Dr. McFetridge officiating, Thursday afternoon at 6 o'clock. Simplicity marked the decorations. Tall standards, hung with smilax and filled with calla lilies were used at the altar, while clusters of roses embellished the receiving rooms of the house where a reception was held.

The bridal party comprised Miss Eunice Hodgman, who was her sister's maid of honor; Miss Margaret Chandler, Mrs. John Hill McKinney, Mrs. Peyton T. Carr Jr. and Mrs. Freemont Chandler of Chicago; Dr. Henry Waters of Boston, best man, and Peyton T. Carr Jr., George Fleming of Indianapolis, Waldo Adams of Dubuque, Ia., and Warren Chandler, groomsman.

The young women wore poudre blue romaine crepe made on straight lines, with self toned velvet flowers appliqued at the lowered waist line. Long scarfs of the material were fastened at the shoulders and fell almost to the hem in the back. Their hats were blue crepe with pastel shaded plumes at the back, and their flowers in keeping with the color scheme were yellow roses and blue delphinium. Virginia Randolph, a cousin of the bride, as flower girl, wore a pink georgette and white hat and carried an old-fashioned bouquet.

The bride's gown was white stain trimmed with wide bands of silver. A silver-edged court train depended from the shoulder, and fastened to it with orange blossoms was the filmy tulle veil which she wore caught to her coiffure with a pearl coronet. She carried lilies of the valley.

The table for the bridal party was adorned with the wedding cake and silver candelabra, with tulle trimmings. Additional guests were Mr. McKinney and Dr. Freemont Chandler. Mr. and Mrs. Freeman will make their home on the Cheswick road in Boston after a wedding trip. The out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Freeman of Boston, the bridegroom's parents; Mr. and Mrs. George Arnold Randolph of Virginia, and Mrs. Louis Chauvenet of Boston, with her son, Louis Chauvenet.

The engagement of Miss Elizabeth Jewett, daughter of Mrs. Frank Jewett, 5618 Cabanne avenue, and Douglas M. Bryden, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Bryden, 823 Clara avenue, was announced yesterday at an informal bridge party given by Miss Jewett's sister, Miss Mary, at their home. The prospective bride is a graduate of Hosmer Hall, and Mr. Bryden of Washington University. He is a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity and the University Club. The wedding will take place in the early spring.

The guests were Misses Virginia Patterson, Helen and Mildred Johnson, Dorothy White, Eleanor Dodson, Ruth Dunham, Lucy and Edith Kelly, Esther Moody, Martha and Mary Humphrey and Mrs. Elmer Schewe.

Miss Herma Rombauer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Rombauer, 3646 Flora place, has chosen Oct. 18 as the date of her wedding to Thomas E. McCary Jr. of Lee's Summit, Mo. The ceremony will be in the evening at the Rombauer home, and the guests will be limited to the families. Miss Rombauer has not announced the personnel of her bridal party.

The marriage of Miss Ruth Eloise Williams and Earl Willard Hopper, took place Saturday evening, Oct. 4, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Williams, 6300 Rosebury drive. Mrs. Errol E. Williams, as matron of honor, wore a gown of yellow chiffon, and Miss Laura Lincoln of Syracuse, in yellow satin, was bridesmaid. They carried yellow chrysanthemums.

The bride was in white satin trimmed with pearls and duchess lace, and a veil fastened to her hair with orange blossoms. She carried roses and lilies of the valley. A wedding supper followed at the Forest Park Hotel, after which Mr. and Mrs. Hopper departed for a trip East.

CLEARED OF BANK ROBBERY, IS HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

James A. Lunsford, Released at Belleville, Is Taken to Sedalia.

A charge of highway robbery issued in connection with the holdup of the First National Bank in Freeburg, Ill., Aug. 23 last, against James A. Lunsford of Sedalia, Mo., was dismissed Friday at Belleville after a preliminary hearing before a Justice of the Peace, and Lunsford was turned over to the Sheriff of Pettis County, Mo., where he is under indictment for murder.

Lack of evidence caused the dismissal of the case. Evidence was submitted to show that Lunsford was in Sedalia at the time of the holdup. Another man, who gave his name as J. W. Roach, also of Sedalia, was released shortly after having been arrested on suspicion of being implicated in the holdup. Seven bandits held up the bank and escaped with $10,550. Two others are still held in jail at Belleville in connection with this holdup.

WALLACE ESTILL DIES AT 75

FAYETTE, Mo., Oct. 11.—Wallace Estill, 75 years old, one of Howard County's most prominent farmers, died yesterday at his home near Estill. He had been ill only a few days. He for many years was one of the leading breeders of Aberdeen-Angus cattle. Some of his farm has been in cultivation since 1816, but is said to be as productive now as when first broken. Estill was born in Howard County, April 6, 1849, and spent his entire life in this county. He is survived by four children. Fuperal services will be held Monday.

Beneath Those Extra Pounds Are Lovely Lines—Bring Them Out With the

Stylish Stout Rubber Reducing Girdle

THIS girdle induces comfort such as you have rarely known—and slenderness, too. It would be physically impossible to exercise all day long, but you can attain the same result by wearing this remarkable garment.

The fine rubber of the girdle will melt your pounds away. Whether you work, play or just rest—no matter what you do—while wearing it you will reduce—gently, comfortably, imperceptibly but surely. Your figure assumes the fashionable straight lines, and before very long you find you are really slender.

You will be surprised to see what an attractive garment it is—surprised that such very durable rubber could be made so beautiful. There are styles for every figure type—and our corsetieres will recommend for you the particular model you require.

WITH MISSOURIANS IN SOCIETY AT THE CAPITAL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—President and Mrs. Coolidge took another day off Thursday from the cares of state and joined the rest of Washington official society at the world series baseball game. Postmaster-General and Mrs. New were their guests. With them also were the assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Davis.

During much of the game Mrs. Coolidge was deep in conversation with Mrs. Davis, who was Miss Helen Brooks of St. Louis, and has been deterred by illness until now from taking an active part in Washington society. The Davises have a charming house at 1520 Eighteenth street N. W., in the heart of the fashionable northwest. With them are their daughters, subdebs, the Misses Alice B. and Cynthia Davis and Dwight F. Davis Jr., who is a prep school boy.

Many old friends in Washington greeted the Minister of Sweden and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, who are spending the early fall in Washington, as they held an impromptu reception in their box at Thursday's ball game. Mr. and Mrs. Bliss, former St. Louisans, came here to open their $1,000,000 show place in Georgetown and have been entertaining steadily since their arrival. Last week they spent some time in New York. They will leave Washington early in November for a brief visit in St. Louis, returning to New York to sail for Sweden in time to reach the American legation before Christmas.

Missourians abroad now include Gen. Pershing, who made a hurried trip overseas to visit his son, Warren, who is in school in Switzerland. The General decided to make the ocean journey and see the lad in his school before he settles down seriously to the active work of preparing his war memoires and the official history of the A. E. F.

Major and Mrs. Arthur Haldane Doig, of St. Louis, spent last week in Washington en route to their home from New York.

Mrs. Charles Hoyle, another of the Missouri colony in Washington, re-opened her attractive home in R street N. W., this week. With her are the Misses Mary C. and Ella C. Hoyle.

One of the most interesting debutantes of the Washington season will be Miss Beatrice Henderson, granddaughter of Mrs. John B. Henderson, who can lay claim to a heritage in the residential set and official circles as well. Her grandfather was the late Senator John B. Henderson of Missouri. Mrs. Henderson occupies an unique position in Washington and is often called the "Fairy Godmother of the National Capital," because of her efforts in time and money for civic improvement and development. The young Henderson debutante, who is the daughter of Mrs. Henderson's son, John B. Henderson Jr., a popular clubman, who died last year, is the sole heir to all the Henderson fortunes and estates.

Miss Virginia Selden entertained at luncheon Thursday when Miss Beatrice Henderson was among the guests.

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair headed the receiving line at the reception given by the Women's Democratic Club of Washington in honor of Mrs. James McMillan Adams, daughter of John W. Davis. Mrs. Adams is well remembered in Washington when, as Miss Julia McDonald Davis, she was a subdebutante.

Mrs. Beulah Amidon, chairman of the Employes' Compensation Commission, is among those who will attend the meeting of the League of Women Voters next week, when a representative woman from each political party will speak on the three candidates.

Mrs. Selden Spencer, wife of Senator Spencer of Missouri, will be one of the guests of honor at the Christmas party to be given by the Business Women's Council, of which Miss Ethel Bagley, sister-in-law of former Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, is president.

HUGHES STAYS ILLINOIS ARRESTS OF MEXICANS

Action Follows Complaints of Raids at Fairmont City After Killings.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Acting upon the complaint of the Mexican Embassy that officials had illegally raided the homes of 10 Mexicans at Fairmont City, Ill., a suburb of East St. Louis, in connection with the killing of a Mexican and a policeman last week, Secretary of State Hughes Wednesday sent a peremptory telegram to Gov. Small of Illinois, instructing him to stay arrests until the police activities had been investigated.

At the Mexican Embassy today it was explained that the complaint had been made to the State Department upon receipt of telegrams from Mexican residents in Fairmont City, and from the Mexican Consul in St. Louis, Alfredo Serratos. Instructions went to Consul Serratos to make personal investigation of alleged raids in Fairmont for a report to Washington. As yet that report has not been received here.

The Mexican officials stated that their information regarding the alleged raids was meager, consisting merely of the plea for protection and the statement that officials had raided without search warrants the homes of 10 Mexicans after killing of a Mexican by a policeman and the subsequent killing of the policeman by Mexicans or others.

The embassy officials stated that they had no information as to what caused the original affray, as their complaints merely stated that after the killing the police started wholesale raids on the homes of the Mexicans in an effort to locate the murderers.

State Department officials said Secretary Hughes had acted immediately upon the information filed by the Mexican embassy and that no further report of the affair had been received.

Officer's Death Followed Fusillade.

Assistant Marshal Weber of Fairmont City was found dying and a Mexican was found dead early last Sunday after residents heard a fusillade of revolver shots following the turning off of lights in the town. An eyewitness said that firing began as Weber started away from his front gate, where he had been left a few minutes before by Marshal Charles Artinger, and that the flashes in the darkness came from several directions.

Marshal Artinger, who had turned off the lights from the city hall, two blocks distant, and had driven about 100 feet when he heard the reports, drove back, pausing only to turn on the lights, and saw three men run into a boarding house a short distance past the scene of the shooting.

Four men were arrested in a search of the place that night and these are those now held as accomplices to the Mexican named in the inquest, who had mentioned Weber threateningly in beating an employe of Weber earlier that night. Five other men, who had been seen with the dead Mexican and the other prisoners at a pool hall, also were arrested and their homes searched, but later were released.

Mrs. Hadley to Make Report.

Mrs. Herbert Hadley will give a report of the biennial conference of the International Federation of University Women, which she attended as a delegate of the American Association of University Women, at the regular meeting of the College Club, Tuesday. The conference met at Christiana, Norway, in July.

RECEIVER FOR MID-CONTINENT FINANCE CORPORATION IS ASKED

Stockholders Allege Some of Stock Sales Money Went in Realty Company Treasury.

A suit for receivership for the Mid-Continent Finance Corporation, 705 Central National Bank Building, was filed in Circuit Court Friday by William Preston Hill Nesbit Rochester and Robert S. Mitchell, stockholders, who allege C. J. Gonterman, president, has been dominating the corporation's affairs in a way detrimental to the business. They also charge that more than $400,000 of the company's stock has been sold and not all of the proceeds have been put in its treasury, Gonterman depositing some of the money with the C. J. Gonterman Realty and Development Co., which is in the same office with the Finance Corporation.

Judge Frey issued an order restraining Gonterman from removing canceled checks of the corporation from the jurisdiction of the Court, pending a hearing of the petition.

The Mid-Continent corporation's permit to sell its own stock was suspended by the State Finance Corporation, Oct. 3, when it was learned that more than $300,000 had been from stock sales had been loaned on notes indorsed by the Gonterman company.

COMMITTEE WORKING ON PLAN FOR POLICE PENSION FUND

May Ask Pay Increase to Somewhere Between $145 and $225 a Month.

A special committee, recently named by members of the Police Department, is working on a plan for a pension fund which will provide retirement pay for policemen too old to remain in active service.

The tentative plan is to ask the next Legislature for an increase in patrolmen's salaries to a point somewhere between the $145 St. Louis pay and the $225 a month which New York pays its patrolmen. It will be stipulated that part of the increase is to go toward the pension fund.

The committee is composed of Capt. Patrick Kirk, Lieut. James Moran, Sergt. James Mackin and a policeman to be named. At present the only provision for needy policemen and their families is the Police Relief Association. The association cares for policemen unable by sickness or old age to remain at their posts, but it is charitable in its functions rather than an enterprise supported entirely by the department. It raises a fund annually by a circus.

The committee expects that after matters have shaped themselves, a way will be found to co-ordinate the pension idea with the Relief Association work.

C. OF C. URGES SUPPORT FOR PROPOSAL NO. 7

Letter Is Sent to Every Commercial Organization in Missouri Explaining Proposition.

PURELY LOCAL ASPECT IS EMPHASIZED

Amendment Would Not Change Any Boundaries Nor Increase Taxes, It Is Pointed Out.

A letter urging support of proposed constitutional amendment No. 7, which would enable appointment of a board of freeholders to draft a plan of whole or partial merger of St. Louis and St. Louis County, has been sent to every commercial organization in Missouri.

It was signed by W. Palmer Clarkson, president, and Paul V. Bunn, general secretary, of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce. There will be a State-wide vote on the amendment Nov. 4. The letter, which emphasizes the purely local aspect of the proposition, follows:

"The St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, representing business and professional interests of St. Louis, appeals to your organization for help. We need votes for amendment No. 7, and if the voters can be advised of the facts they will vote for it. This applies not only to voters in the city and county, but especially to the out-State voter, who, having little interest in a question that is purely local, and not being informed of the facts, may just vote "no" on general principles.

"Amendment No. 7 is simply an enabling act. If adopted it will not change any boundaries nor increase any taxes. It merely confers upon a majority of the city and of the county the right to appoint a board of freeholders, and the right for this board to select one of three plans (which are specified in the amendment) to be submitted to both sets of voters. In case a majority of either set of voters shall turn it down, that settles it; and no other proposition may be put up to them within five years.

"Both party platforms, Democratic and Republican, contain a plank indorsing amendment No. 7, and urging the voters to support it. The Missouri Press Association unanimously indorsed amendment No. 7. Over 100,000 people earning their living in St. Louis reside outside the city limits, which we have not been able to extend since our present Constitution was adopted in 1876. The voters directly interested in this question can take no action unless amendment No. 7 is adopted.

"We will heartily appreciate it if your organization will take official action favoring the support of amendment No. 7, and will advise your members of such action through the publication of a suitable resolution, and this Chamber will also appreciate it if you will send us a copy of any such resolution that may be adopted. When the opportunity arises, we shall be glad to reciprocate in any way possible."

SON OF PREMIER MACDONALD WILL SPEAK AT WASHINGTON U.

To Be One of Oxford Representatives in Debate with Local Team Wednesday Night.

Malcolm MacDonald, son of Premier MacDonald of England, will represent Oxford University in a debate Wednesday night in Graham Memorial Chapel, Washington University.

Malcolm MacDonald himself was defeated for Parliament in the general election of 1923. His captain on the debating team is J. D. Woodruff, former president of the Oxford Liberal Club, and the third member is M. C. Hollis, president of the Oxford debaters last year and a contributor to English newspapers and The Outlook. The team will meet 10 universities on this tour, under the Oxford plan of two Oxford and one opposing man taking the affirmative and the other members of the teams arguing in the negative. Victor Pachman, Monroe Oppenheimer and Robert Rosenwald are the local team. The question is, "Resolved, that the extension of State interference with the individual is a chief evil of the times."

TURKS REPLY TO BRITISH

By the Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 11.— Replying to the British notes regarding Turkish incursions into the Mosul Vilayet, the Turkish Government denies the alleged incursions and declares it is not concentrating troops in the status quo zoe agreed upon while the Irak boundary matter is pending before the League of Nations.

The Government undertakes not to pass the Djesse-Binchehab Tchoukameri line, which, however, marks practically the extreme point of the Turkish incursions.

CITY OFFICES TO BE CLOSED MONDAY

Annual Columbus Day Observance Tonight With Decoration of Statue.

The St. Louis Stock Exchange, the Merchants' Exchange and all of the municipal offices will be closed tomorrow in observance of Columbus day, in keeping with statutes which provide that celebration of a holiday may take place on the Monday following when the holiday falls on Sunday. The banks, however, and most other business establishments will remain open.

Silver jubilee week, observed by the Knights of Columbus in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization of the St. Louis Council, the first west of the Mississippi, will end today with the decoration of the statue of Columbus, at the Grand boulevard entrance to Tower Grove Park, and the annual Columbus day banquet. The Italian societies of St. Louis, comprising about 2500 members, will unite with the Knights of Columbus in ceremonies at the decoration of the statue at 3 p. m. Addresses will be delivered by John S. Leahy and John Pensa, the latter representing the Italian societies. John E. Riley, representing the Knights of Columbus, will preside.

The Columbus day banquet will be at the Hotel Statler at 7 p. m. The speakers will be former Gov. Frederick D. Gardner and former United States Senator Xenophon P. Wilfley, president of the Missouri Bar Association. The address of welcome will be by Paul E. Cautler, deputy of the Knights of Columbus in Missouri. Dr. R. Emmett Kane will be toastmaster. Archbishop Glennon will be a guest of honor.

FRENCH MARINE MINISTER PLANS ENLARGED NAVY

Trying to Establish Balance Between Surface, Underwater and Aerial Divisions.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 11.—Minister of Marine Dumesnil plans to give France a fleet such as he believes is required by her geographic position and that of her colonies. He has drafted a program which he will explain before the Budget Commission of the Chamber next week.

"I am going to strive to restore to the country the navy it no longer possesses," said the Minister to Le Matin.

"It needs before all a defensive navy, not an armada which might be a danger to world peace.

"That fleet would be kept strictly within the limits of the recent treaties. To begin with I am trying to establish a balance between the surface, underwater and aerial divisions. With that object in view I shall submit to Parliament a building program spread over a large number of years.

"Besides building new ships I intend modernizing the ships still useful, but I will not sacrifice men or money in keeping up out-of-date units. We want no ships out of commission, rusting in the far corners of the harbors. France needs a navy relatively small in numbers but of the best in quality, with crews well trained and facilities for keeping them at the highest pitch of efficiency.

"It also is my hope next year to reduce the number of men serving ashore to a maximum of 20 per cent."

Hay, president of the St. Louis Federation, making the response to addresses of welcome. Among other speakers will be Roy A. Haynes, Federal Prohibition Director; Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt of Washington, assistant United States Attorney-General; Herman P. Faris, nominee for President on the Prohibition party ticket; Dr. A. H. Post of St. Louis, Missouri superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League; Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith of Des Moines, Ia., national W. C. FUNDS NEEDED TO PUSH ROAD PROPOSAL

Association Officers Say Local Business Men Are Not Showing Much Interest.

Reports to the Executive Committee of the local division of the Missouri State-Wide Good Roads Association, Friday, indicated St. Louis business interests are not concerned sufficiently in passage of the proposed constitutional amendment to levy a State tax on gasoline and increase automobile license fees, for the benefit of good roads, officers announced.

"Aid from the commercial and financial interests of St. Louis must be forthcoming at once if the educational campaign planned by the committee it to be made effective," the announcement said, 'and the committee agreed that efforts to create a campaign fund to meet necessary expenses must be, redoubled."

John M. Malang, director of the Good Roads Bureau, Automobile Club of Missouri, will address Central Trades & Labor Union on the proposition this afternoon. E. A. Ferrenbach explained it to the National Association of Letter Carriers at Glennon Hall last night.

CHARLES HUMANN OF PARIS DIVORCED BY WIFE HERE

She Testified He Gambled for High Stakes on Money Furnished by Her.

Mrs. Grace Gale Humann, 340 South Maple avenue, Webster Groves, obtained a divorce by default at Clayton Friday from Charles Humann of Paris, France. Her maiden name, Grace Gale, was restored. She charged general indignities.

She testified they were married June 5, 1905, and separated March 30, 1919, in Paris, where they spent their entire married life. After she returned to Webster Groves to visit her parents in 1919, she testified, she received a letter from Humann telling her she need not return to France.

Humann gambled for high stakes and she furnished the money, she testified. He never gave her any of his winnings, she said. She also testified her husband was of a fault-finding disposition, quarreled continually and had a violent temper. She is the daughter of Arthur H. Gale, a wholesale grocer.

MAN BURNED TO DEATH IN BROOKLYN STEAMSHIP FIRE

Hundred Chinese Members of Crew Driven Into Frenzy by Blaze.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—One man was burned to death in the fire which destroyed a saloon and part of the main deck of the steamship President Polk of the Dollar Steamship Line at the Bush Terminal in Brooklyn early today.

The body of Louis Johnson, a former stevedore, of West New York, N. J., was found by firemen who put out the blaze. Damage was estimated at $75,000.

One hundred Chinese members of the crew were driven into a frenzy by the fire. They streamed from the ship to the pier and attempted to flee into the adjoining streets, but were captured by police, who herded them into an improvised pen. Eight of the Chinese broke from this pen and jumped overboard. They were rescued by policemen and firemen.

Chief Officer Jones F. Devlin, of the President Polk, risked his life to go into the smoke-filled forecastle to rescue two Chinese cooks, who had been trapped in their bunks.

Cyrano de Bergerac Of History Sketched In Rostand's Comedy

Seventeenth Century Dramatist, Freethinker and Seer Is Hero of Work Which Walter Hampden Presents Tomorrow Night at Shubert-Jefferson.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

STUDENTS beholding Walter Hampden's production of "Cyrano de Bergerac," which begins a week's engagement at 8 o'clock tomorrow night at the Shubert-Jefferson, will be inveigled by a problem which confronts each portraitist of Edmond Rostand's hero. Will Mr. Hampden stress the sentimentalized and fictitious Cyrano who constitutes himself the martyr of a spurious romance? Or will he emphasize the historical Cyrano—the dramatist from whom Moliere borrowed a situation and from whom Moliere did not hesitate to loot an entire scene; the freethinker who broke ground for Voltaire and Swift; and the seer whose visions foreshadowed the airplane, the phonograph and the Wagnerian tone-drama? Both personages are in Rostand's heroic comedy—the former painted at full length, the latter merely sketched.

Savinien Cyrano de Bergerac was born in 1619. He was neither peasant nor noble, as the drama proclaims; but the descendant of a well-to-do bourgeois family settled near Paris. The family was eventually ruined by heavy fines imposed because of its pertinacity in usurping the particle of nobility, "de." The founder of the clan was notary.

At the age of seven, Cyrano was placed in charge of a country cure, from his pupil later described as "an Aristotelic ass." Here began a friendship with Henri Lebret, a character prominent in the play, who became Cyrano's biographer and life-long intimate.

"What's He Doing in That Galley?"

THE legend that Cyrano was a fellow pupil of Moliere at the College of Beauvais has been fully disproved. It was based only on the fact that Bergerac knew Granger, its principal, the character of his comedy, "Le Pedant Joue." But, a recent biographer remarks, "as Granger's poverty and avarice were bywords in the student world of Paris, there was no need of a closer acquaintance to pillory him in a play."

In addition, scholars jealous for Moliere's good name have fancied he and Cyrano collaborated in schoolboys in composing "Le Pedant Joue," thus hoping to clear Moliere of a charge of plagiarizing a scene of the galley, in "Les Fourberies de Scapin," from Bergerac's comedy. But Moliere's defense was: "I take my goods where I find them." In this scene, Cyrano seems to have invented the familiar catch-phrase, "What the devil is he doing in that galley?"

At the age of 19, Cyrano was persuaded by Lebret to enter service with him under Carbon de Castel-Jaloux, in the garde-nobles, a company composed almost exclusively of Gascons, with a reputation for brawling and boasting. In a short time Cyrano earned among them the name of "demon of bravery," a reputation gained mostly by dueling. In these encounters, however, he nearly always took the part of second, for, as Lebret relates, "he never had a quarrel on his own account."

He Meets Moliere.

TAKING part in the Thirty Years' War, Bergerac was twice wounded—by a shot through the body at the siege of Mouzon, and a sword thrust in the neck, at the siege of Arras. Owing to these casualties, Bergerac resigned from the army at the age of 21, and began his period of study. A philosopher named Gassendi, mentioned in the play, had set up in Paris; Moliere was one of his pupils. Cyrano, a fiery and turbulent youth, also wished to associate himself with the disciples of Gassendi, and they were obliged, willy-nilly, to admit him, after he had intimidated, by his threats,

De Pachmann Will Chat and Play at Odeon

THE music season opens Tuesday night at the Odeon with a recital by Vladimir de Pachmann, whimsical pianist, who owes his fame partly to his inspired interpretations of Chopin, and partly to his habit of accompanying his performance with a monologue regarding his own perfections as an artist. He was born 76 years ago at Odessa, Russia, and has had a career of more than half a century as a concert pianist.

His last appearance here, as soloist with the Symphony Orchestra during the regime of the late Max Zach, gave rise to a split in the Symphony Society, and brought the director to the verge of resignation. The pianist surpassed himself in eccentricity at the second of the pair of concerts. Zach, to prevent encores, and to save the soloist from what seemed to the director a further exhibition of himself, ordered the pianoforte closed, while the audience roared its protest in vain.

First Civic League Concert.

THIS concert will be the first of a series of five under the auspices of the new Civic Music League. The pianist's fee is said to be $1500. The program, as announced, is as follows:

Concerto (in the Italian style), F major ..... J. S. Bach
Fantasia, C minor ..... Bach
Nocturne, op. 72 (Oeuvre Posthume), E minor ..... Chopin
Valse, op. 64, No. 2, C sharp minor ..... Chopin

'The Fool' Called 'Bad Art' in London

LONDON, Oct. 11.

Too Many Goddesses of Passion in "Bewitched"

By HEYWOOD BROUN,
Drama Critic of the New York World.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.

THE theory that actors and actresses live their parts has never been convincing to me. After the first night of "Bewitched," at the National, I believe it still less. "Bewitched" is a play of magic and of temptation, by Edward Sheldon and Sidney Howard. An evil sorcerer wagers for the soul of a young man who is in love with the sorcerer's daughter. The evil necromancer bets that the young man will kiss some other woman before dawn. The conditions having been met, the wizard proceeds to assail the young man with temptations.

The heroine herself is put under a horrid spell by her grandfather and compelled, without her knowledge or consent, to be a sort of protean production number. It becomes her task to enact before the man she loves all the great courtesans of history.

That Elusive Shoulder Strap.

THE final temptation is a composite role. In this scene the heroine, played by Miss Florence Eldredge, must be Venus, Astarte, the spirit of carnality, the

What They Are Doing in Movie Studios

THE story of how misery and distress is converted into happiness; how opportunity for useful citizenship is provided, and how helpless individuals are converted into community assets, all through the charitable and philanthropic organizations that make up the Community Fund, is soon to be presented to St. Louis through a feature motion picture, "Out of the Shadows," according to a recent announcement from Community Fund headquarters. The scenes for "Out of the Shadows" are laid in St. Louis and are taken from actual life. The production is in three reels and it was completed about 10 days ago. It will receive its first showing at Vandervoort's Auditorium at 4 p. m. Friday, Oct. 17. This showing is to be private and admission will be by invitation only. The picture will be ready for general distribution several days after the initial showing.

James Forbes' play "The Chorus Lady" has been adapted for the screen. Margaret Livingston makes her initial appearance as a star in this story.

William Haines, Kate Lester and Kate Price have joined the cast of "The wife of the Centaur," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production which King Vidor is now making from the Cyril Hume novel. Betty Francisco is another addition to the cast. Others appearing in this picture are William Orlamund, Carrie Clark Ward, Aileen Manning, Frank Norcross, Caroline Erwin and James McElbern.

Milton Sills to Desert Screen.

Milton Sills has decided to quit movie acting and to take up directing upon conclusion of his present contract with First National Pictures.

Ben Lyon, First National screen juvenile, is enjoying the rare spectacle of watching himself grow up. Ben is sitting on the sidelines waiting until he grows old enough to start playing Colleen Moore's son in her picturization of Edna Ferber's novel, "So Big." Colleen, as the wife of a Dutch farmer in the early days of Chicago, is shown from early girlhood to middle-aged motherhood. Ben Lyon is her son, but in the ages of 3 and 7 he is personified, respectively, by Dorothy Brock and Frankie Darro.

Although the entire motion picture industry made elaborate plans to participate in the numerous public celebrations and testimonials arranged for the round-the-world flyers upon the occasion of their arrival in the film capitol it remained for Priscilla Dean to steal the hearts of the air heroes by entertaining them at a quiet, informal dinner at her Beverly Hills home upon the evening of their arrival at Clover Field, Santa Monica.

J. Stuart Blackton, who is producing pictures for Vitagraph, is about to start work on a floorless studio, the first ever built. It will be used for exterior "shooting" exclusively, so that companies "out on location" really will be doing their stuff indoors. An elaborate electrical equipment will bring

"The Alaskan" And "Yolanda" Picture Features

Zane Grey's "The Border Legion" and "K, the Unknown," Based on a Mary Roberts Rinehart Story, Are Also on Local Screens.

Thomas Meighan in "The Alaskan" is featured at the Grand Central, West End Lyric and Capitol Theaters this week. The picture is a Paramount adaptation of the James Oliver Curwood novel and is Meighan's first strong dramatic role since "Manslaughter."

Estelle Taylor, Anna May Wong, Frank Campeau and John Sainpolis are in the cast.

The added attractions include Larry Semon's latest comedy, "Her Boy Friend," in which Larry has discarded his clown makeup. Max Steindel, Symphony Orchestra cello soloist, appears on the stage at the Grand Central. That theater also features a novelty overture conceived by Larry Conley with Eva Olivotti and Grace Brinkley doing vocal selections.

"The Alaskan" is a drama that divides its backgrounds between society drawing rooms and the rugged country from which it takes its name, dealing with the experiences of a young man known as "Alaska's best friend." The plot and drama is supplied when "big business" comes into Alaska to shut out the natives of the country and the efforts of the hero to prevent this before Congress. Big business is represented by the villain of the story and the triangular romance involves him and his wife and the hero, the wife having been forced to marry him against her will. In the duel between her husband and "The Alaskan" she sides with the latter.

Zane Grey's "The Border Legion" is the photoplay attraction at the Missouri Theater this week. It is a story of the great West with its romances, rides, fights and loves. Some of the scenes were taken in Arizona, others in Utah and Idaho, where the action of the story originally took place. The theme deals with the gold rush to Utah and Idaho in the latter part of 1869. This strike caused a mad stampede from all parts of the country and attracted all kinds of people, some good and some bad, willing to fight and die for the yellow dust. Zane Grey wrote the story based upon a true incident which is well known to the survivors of those days now living in and around Salt Lake, Utah. The title "The Border Legion" was given to a pack of outlaws and bandits containing the bad element from most every country on the globe, who had drifted into the border country and became part of this notorious band. This lawless element terrorized the desert country, killing and plundering for booty of any kind. Learning of the gold strike in Utah and Idaho this notorious horde swept up from the border country to despoil the victors of their justly gotten gains. There are many thrilling situations. In the cast are Antonio Moreno, Helene Chadwick, Rockcliffe Fellows and Raymond Nye.

On the stage Paul Whiteman's Collegians are presented for a return engagement. The opening number is a radium effect on a dark stage. There is an eccentric fox trot number with a quartette of singers, a string ensemble, and novelty effects.

Joseph Littau and his Symphony Orchestra will present for their second Sunday concert at 4 p. m. today the following numbers: "Second Hungarian Rhapsody," "A Musical Snuff Box," Kamennoi-Ostrow. Selections from "The Prince of Pilsen," "Traumerei," and "William Tell." An interpolation in the program will be an organ solo by Milton Slosser, March from "Aida" by Verdi.

The week's offering at the Kings and the Rivoli is the photoplay "K, the Unknown," based on a novel by Mary Roberts Rinehart.

Percy Marmont has the lead and Virginia Valli plays opposite him. She is the small-town girl, studying to be a nurse. He is the mystery man who comes into the small town, and into her heart. In the hospital where the girl is an apprentice is Dr. Max Wilson, protege of the well-known Dr. Edwardes, who disappeared following his indictment on a charge of manslaughter growing out of an unsuccessful operation. With Dr. Wilson is a pretty nurse, in love with him. Dr. Wilson falls in love with the apprentice, and she believes herself in love with him. Then one of her former suitors shoots Wilson and the mystery man is forced to play his hand.

The principal picture attraction for the week at the Delmonte and Loew's State Theaters is "Yolanda," featuring Marion Davies. The story is from the novel of the same name by Charles Major and deals with youthful ingenuity and feminine strategy in the days of Charles XI of France.

The Versatile Sextette Orchestra, a novelty musical and dance act, is the week's stage presentation at Loew's State. The Loew's State Symphony Orchestra plays the original score written especially for "Yolanda," by Victor Herbert.

"The Ten Commandments" continues at the American Theater.

Alec Francis was initiated in the motion picture business as a director with the old Eclair company in New York. He started Robert Frazer with many other prominent players on their way to fame. After directing a number of short features he quit directing and signed a contract as a featured player with the company. Since that time he has remained an actor.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

Jeanne d'Arc and 'Bluebeard' in German Play

BERLIN, Oct. 11.

THE original of the character of "Bluebeard," a young nobleman named Gilles de Rais, and Joan of Arc are the principal figures in a new drama, entitled "Gilles and Jeanne," by Georg Kaiser. De Rais was burned by the Inquisition on the charge of horrible cruelties. The play is produced by a new enterprise, the Dramatic Theater Co., at an old East-end theater.

The work was written two years ago, and has already been the subject of wild attacks in the provinces. But the faith of the Kaiser enthusiasts has been justified by the interest Berlin has shown in this interpretation of Joan of Arc, untouched as a literary figure on the German stage since Schiller's classic "Jungfrau von Orleans."

Unfortunately, for any comparison between Georg Kaiser and Bernard Shaw, whose disciple he is said to be, this is Gilles' play and not Jeanne's. Act I sees the maid, already before the tribunal, after an impassioned scene on a hill just off the battlefield with Gilles de Rais, who has financed the King of France's troops for love of her and claims his reward. On Jeanne's refusal, he gives the order for the troops to retreat. Jeanne smiles—she would rather lose a battle than lose Gilles' soul.

Calls Up Six Joans.

THIS is the burden of her sole explanation to the red-robed judges who are inquiring into her dealings with the devil: "I had a victory to win!" They would even have acquitted her after the English evidence. Kaiser's Englishmen come out well: "She is a woman and I am an Englishman," say common soldier and officer alike, when pressed for reasons why they took this enemy alive. It is Gilles de Rais who rushes in at the last moment and swears that he saw her on that very hill consorting dreadfully with the devil and his satellites.

In Act II he suffers the terrible penalty of false witness and repressed desire. His alchemist calls up Jeanne—six Jeannes, one after another, stout peasant maids, one hears, whom Gilles strangles in a fit of baffled fury. There remains nothing to do but to burn their bodies in the oven. This happens "off," while the audience listens patiently to the very long outpourings of wrath and delirium between the alchemist and Gilles.

Broken, He Confesses.

IN act III Kaiser justifies himself. Another tribunal—with Gilles as accused. Fathers seek their daughters, brothers their sisters—there is no proof. If one only of the missing women will return and give evidence Gilles can go free. The spirit of Jeanne returns as one of them, knowing, it seems, that Gilles, penitent, can save his soul. The longed-for sight of her wrings confession from him. Broken, he is acquitted. Among the listeners the foolish boy who is King of France throws his crown from him and swears he will become a crossing-sweeper. Jeanne's spiritual victory is won indeed.

Georg Kaiser is at present engaged upon the libretto for an operetta. He is easily the most baffling personality writing for the German stage at the present moment. His violent love of sensational contrast was never so scandalously given rein to as in the juxtaposition of (historically) the purest and the blackest figures of fifteenth century France.

WHAT THEY ARE DOING IN THE MOVIE STUDIOS

sunshine within the producer's reach, even when Old Sol himself is hidden behind the clouds, while the absence of floors will permit a few hundred wild horses to charge through the studio without causing the walls to vibrate.

Alice Joyce has found a new thrill. In "White Man," B. P. Schulberg's Preferred picture, which Louis Gasnier is directing, she hunts elephants. With the aid of Kenneth Harlan, his gatling gun and tribe of African natives, Miss Joyce invades darkest Africa as required in the picturization of George Agnew Chamberlain's novel.

Frank Keenan has started work under the direction of Reginald Parker in the screen version of Gerald Beaumont's "Dixie," which is being made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. "Dixie" is a story of an impoverished old Southern Judge, his beautiful daughter and a race track tout. Claire Windsor, Lew Cody and Otis Harlan have featured roles in the production.

Colleen Moore is suffering from her first attack of "Klieg Eyes" as a result of her continuous work under the powerful arc lamps in her initial starring vehicle, "So Big." Miss Moore was compelled to leave the studio in the midst of a big scene when her eyes became inflamed.

Antonio Moreno has been selected by Bartolme de Mako, noted Argentine artist, to represent Spain in a series of paintings of representative characters from every country. The artist is now making a tour of the world in the creation of these paintings which will be placed on permanent exhibition in one of the foremost art museums of South America. Moreno, attired in the costume of a Spanish outlaw, is posing several hours daily for de Mako's portrait, "The Bandit."

Paul Whiteman Here Saturday.

MATINEE and evening concerts will be given by Paul Whiteman and his band, Saturday, at the Odeon, this being the second visit of this organization to St. Louis. Whiteman will conduct both programs. As on the previous occasion, the music will be divided between jazz adaptations of classic music and more or less original pieces in that form.

Ernestine Schumann-Heink, contralto, now in her forty-fifth year of public service, will give a recital at the Odeon on Oct. 31. One of her numbers will be "Humoreske," by Albert Stoessel, the young St. Louisan who is director of the Oratorio Society in New York. John Philip Sousa will celebrate his seventieth birthday with two band concerts on election day, Nov. 4.

Five Concerts for Children.

FINAL arrangements for five children's concerts to be given by the Symphony Orchestra under the management of the Board of Education were made last week. The concerts will be played at Community Center Hall, Grand boulevard and Park avenue, which has a seating capacity of 2000. The programs have been made part of the school curriculum, and credits will be allowed for attendance.

The opening concert, on Nov. 19, will be for children in the elementary grades and members of the various school orchestras. The program will include a demonstration of all the instruments in a full-size orchestra.

The second concert, on Dec. 17, will be of interest for members of the different school choral clubs. The third, on Jan. 14, will be for negro children. The fourth, on Feb. 18, will be for high school students, and the fifth, on March 11, will embody a memory contest as its chief feature, introducing compositions which the children will be expected to identify from their school work.

And Five Others, Besides.

IN ADDITION, the Symphony Society itself will offer a series of five concerts for children, to be given on Thursday afternoons at the Odeon. Season tickets will be sold for these affairs, at a rate per concert of $1 for box seats, and 50 and 25 cents for chairs in parquet and balcony.

Songs by Schubert, Haydn and Morley to poems of Shakspeare will be sung by Mrs. Frank E. Howard at a meeting of the St. Louis Tercentenary Society Tuesday afternoon at Vandervoort Music Hall. Robert Hall Atchinson will lecture on "Macbeth." The Morning Etude Music Club will hold its first regular meeting at Vandervoort Hall on Oct. 22. Mrs. Fred A. Niemoeller has been elected president.

The Paderewski Singing Society left last night for Chicago, to take part in a choral competition attending the thirty-fifth anniversary of the Polish Singing Alliance of America. Mrs. Marion Wachowiak is director of the local chorus.

As in previous years, the Ladies' Friday Musical Club will distribute free symphony concert tickets to deserving students. Applications may be made to Mrs. David Kriegshaber, 4933 Washington boulevard.

TOO MANY GODDESSES OF PASSION IN "BEWITCHED"

sum and substance of all the wicked passion in the world. At any rate, the lines assigned to the character in the play make some such claim.

Miss Eldredge began the scene with much zest and abandon, but half way through the right shoulder strap of her costume slipped not a little. There followed a performance mixed in mood. "I am temptation," cried the actress wildly and tugged at the straying strap. "I am the incarnation of lust," she declaimed and tugged again to adjust her dress to greater propriety. "I am all evil and all sex appeal and all loose living and thinking and abandoned behavior," said Miss Eldredge in a singing, seductive whisper, and as she came to "abandoned behavior" her nervous fingers got hold of the strap. And now Venus was her wholesome, discreetly clad self again, and the scene proceeded to a tumultuous curtain.

The words here quoted, I may add, are not precisely the lines of the play, which I have forgotten, but I trust I have not been unfaithful to the spirit of the manuscript.

The sorcerer who arranged the various tableaux by which he hoped to win his wager and achieve the downfall of the young man seemed to me not very well versed in psychology. The hero of the play was presented as an average young man, and I think that the average young man would be embarrassed rather than tempted by any spirit made up of all the erotic urge of the world. It would seem to him a little overdone, I should think. He might well cling to the ropes for fear of the heavy surfeit.

"Sacred and Profane Love."

IF I had been that sorcerer (and I will assume for the moment that I could so far forget my principles as to engage upon any such nefarious wager) nothing so sweeping would have been presented to the young man. My plan would be to show him one or two famous, flagrant and somewhat florid beauties and then, by power of my magic, I would introduce to the young man a girl somewhat plain and ordinary. She would have no airs of seduction. The materials of her costume would be good but plain.

Naturally she would have a snub nose and blue eyes. Her mouth would be a bit too large and slightly crooked when she smiled, with a great many white teeth something less than precisely regular.

There would be nothing of a bold and aggressive manner. Instead of conversation about old goddesses and disturbing words such as "lust" or "passion," this young girl would talk of the world's series, the music of Irving Berlin, and the funny blackface team in "The Greenwich Village Follies." And the superb 40-piece orchestra, conjured up by a little spell of mine, would play nothing faintly suggesting "Parsifal." No, indeed, if the wager were mine the tune would certainly be "What'll I Do?" By reason of the enchantment put upon her the snub-nosed girl with the wide mouth could not smile for the space of 30 minutes.

That would probably be enough to convince the wagerer that here there was no threat against his share of the wager. "A darn nice girl even if she is homely," would be the reaction aimed at, according to my plan. And then as the orchestra played them around the floor for the second time, the puppet of my necromancy would smile her wide crooked smile at the young man and I would win the wager.

About "What Price Glory?"

THE tumult and the tribulation about "What Price Glory?" have now subsided. The net result of the agitation of the Admiral and the Mayor seems to be that a sure success has been made still more certain. A certain number of oaths which once employed two words now consist of one and morality has again been preserved and the city of New York saved from destruction.

As a matter of fact, it is known by now that the marines themselves from top to bottom enjoyed the show. Admiral Plunkett was quoted as saying that the play tended to hurt recruiting. This seems unlikely, for after all this was a play which said, in effect: "The United States marines are a hard-boiled lot. For the most part they are absolutely fearless. When they are night fighting it is their custom to drink heavily, swear a little and court French girls with marked success." I beg leave to ask in just what part of the United States would such a picture tend to discourage young men from enlisting in the marines.

The New Lonsdale Play.

IN writing "The Fake," the brilliant and prolific Frederick Lonsdale was content to set out alone, fingering his nose at the counsel of either God or man. The light and witty pen which in the last two seasons has brought us "Aren't We All?" and "Spring Cleaning," now scratches out a sober problem play. It was presented Monday night at the Hudson.

"I have discovered," chortles the author, "a means for taking care of the dope fiend who marries into your family." And then he murders the poor devil before your very eyes. His remedy is oblivion.

This is, in fact, the heart of the play, although in the end there is the long expected dramatic last kick. The real fake, we are shown, is not the crazed and broken victim of drugs, rank as his life has proved to be, but the grasping and mercenary Lord Stanton who had forced his daughter to marry the titled wretch.

Six Years of Terror.

HOVERING over the six years of terror through which Mavis Stanton passes as the wife of this raving drug addict there is Geoffrey Sands (Mr. Tearle), whose interest in the girl is purely one of friendly affection. It is into his hands the author has given over the problem of solving for mankind this grim and ever-present social riddle.

Geoffrey Sands, the master mind, goes deliberately and light-heartedly out upon his mission. Playing upon the confidence in which the fiend holds him, Sands hurries him away to a resort, ostensibly for rest. And there he dopes him into death, establishing an alibi, covering his prints and pronouncing it suicide.

Acting Fine Throughout.

IT is then, as the final curtain is about to descend, that Sands confesses his deed to the father of the girl and pronounces upon him a solemn and windy damnation.

But by now a life has been sacrificed in order that a fool might be rassed. Under the fear that he may be accused of acting as an accomplice in the crime, the father refuses to divulge the secret to Scotland Yard. And there is much applause in the theater.

Of the acting not much need be said. It is fine throughout. Godfrey Tearle, as Sands, is a commanding, authoritative figure, and Frank Conroy acts the dope in vigorous and, no doubt, realistic fashion. One of the best performances of the play is a brief and comic one by Una O'Connor, a waitress.

Ed Wynn in "The Grab Bag."

AFTER perfecting himself as a fool for the edification of farther and wider sections of the country through months and months of touring, Ed Wynn is home again. The event was properly signalized by a thickly thronged theater at the Globe. Unless the signs fail he will be snatching tricks out of his Grab Bag through the rest of the season.

There were, of course, a couple of production numbers. Or maybe there were three. In these Mr. Wynn was away changing his clothes. People danced and sang, and chorus girls came out in curious attire that showed where the money went. These were the between chuckles number to give the audience opportunity to sober up.

Implements for Easier Eating.

AS IS his custom, Mr. Wynn told long anecdotes entirely devoid of reason, displayed his latest inventions for easier eating and did an acrobatic act. He told a lot of new stories and one or two that were not so new. In addition he wrote the show, book, music and lyrics and directed most of it. He did all these things exactly as he was expected to do them. Accordingly the assembly was audibly contented.

Among the assistants note must be made of Shaw and Lee, who caught a few laughs on their own account; Janet Velie, who sang the songs, and Marion Fairbanks for her dancing. The best of all the sideshows was a presumably Russian group labeled the Volga Boys who obliged with Moscow melodies. But it was the big tent that counted. And that was a one man top.

Cyrano de Bergerac of History in Rostand Comedy

both master and pupils.

A portrait of this period shows him as a good-looking fellow, with a glance full of life and dash, and a shade of irony playing about his lips. It also reveals the famous nose as a sober historical fact—not the knobby peninsula of cartilage affected by Coquelin and Mansfield, but a beak of monumental Roman architecture. The slightest allusion to the size of his nose was a matter for crossed swords. However, he pretended to prize this feature highly, arguing in one of his letters that the length of one's proboscis is a measure of valor, wit, passion and cleverness. "The nose," he affirmed, "is the seat of the soul."

Example of Cyrano's Style.

THE opening scene of Rostand's play, in which Cyrano drives the actor Montfleury from the stage, has as its basis of fact a scurrilous epistle which Bergerac addressed to the thespian under the title, "Letter to a Fat Man." It appears indisputable that fear kept Montfleury off the stage for a month afterwards.

"Nature, which set a head on your shoulders," Cyrano had written, "expressly left out the neck, so as to shelter it from the malign influences of your horoscope." The pamphleteer concluded: "Do you think, because a man could not beat you all over in 24 hours, and could not in one day skin one of your shoulder blades, that I am going to rely for your death on the common executioner?"

Love for Roxane Poet's Fiction.

OF any acknowledged love affair not a trace remains; Cyrano's passion for his cousin, Magdaleine Robin, a precieuse who had taken the name of Roxane, one of the wives of Alexander the Great, is the downright invention of Rostand. As a youth, gossip says that Cyrano was a rake; in his later years, Lebret hints, he became a woman-hater.

The incident of the play, in which Cyrano, single-handed, routs 100 assassins who have set an ambush for his friend, Ligniere, is derived from an authentic anecdote, but the number of the enemy has no doubt multiplied itself many times in the re-telling.

The decade beginning about 1643 formed the period of Cyrano's travels and literary activity. His tragedy, "The Death of Agrippina," was hounded off the stage by the public censor, on account of its sceptical tone. His comedy, "The Pedant Mocked," though published in 1654, appears never to have seen the boards until it was produced in 1899 by the Cercle Francais of Harvard University.

His most famous satire, "The Comic History of the States and Empires of the Moon," was published in the year of his death, and was followed posthumously by "The Comic History of the States and Empires of the Sun." In the play, Cyrano pretends to have fallen from the moon in order to distract the attention of the Comte de Guiche until Roxane and Christian have time to be married. These two novels are thought to have aided Swift in devising "Gulliver's Travels," and to have given hints to Jules Verne and Edgar Allan Poe.

Arrested as a Sorcerer.

ON account of his writings, Cyrano was accused of sorcery, which, only a few years after the burning of Urbain Grandier, was no jesting matter. One day while riding in the country he was seized by a score of peasants, "who came from behind a hedge, walking on their knees and singing the 'Kyrie Eleison' at the top of their voices." He was sewed up in a sheet and thrust into a rustic prison, from which he escaped by bribing the jailer.

The manner of Cyrano's death is faithfully reported by Rostand. One evening in May, 1654, Bergerac was struck on the head by a block of wood let fall on him as he was going home to the Hotel des Marais, in Paris. That this assassination was the work of his enemies is generally accepted. He did not succumb on the same evening, as represented in the drama, but lingered for 14 months. He died in September, 1655, at the age of 36.

"THE FOOL" IS CALLED "BAD ART" IN LONDON

ligion." A typical review is the following from the Express:

"IF THE FOOL' were a crime, and I a barrister, I should refuse a brief for the defense and accept, from a sense of duty, a brief for the prosecution. This does not mean that I would fain supplant the Judge, nor does it mean that I should win my case. All it can convey to my readers is that 'The Fool' is deeply objectionable to me, as one who loves the theater and is jealous of its credit among the sister arts.

"The play opens in a New York church on Christmas Eve. Rich members of the congregation complain bitterly to the vicar that his curate, a Mr. Gilchrist, has been preaching against the rich. One of them says he will leave the church if Gilchrist does not.

"Enter Gilchrist, in the brilliant and most acceptable personality of Mr. Henry Ainley. The vicar warns him about his sermons. Gilchrist is ready with New Testament retorts, but Wadham tells him that he must reform or go.

Lovers Bicker Before Altar.

"NOW, at the foot of the altar we have a sort of lovers' quarrel scene between Gilchrist and a certain Clare Jewett (Mary Merrall). Clare is engaged to Gilchrist, but when she finds out that he is giving his all to the poor she gives him back his ring, deciding to marry a rich scamp called Jerry Goodkind.

"To Gilchrist comes a poor man, wanting help, and, oh, most amazing, willing to give help. 'In what way?' The poor man tells. 'What good can a man do?' • • • 'Why don't you try?' • • • He tried and they crucified him'—'In God's name who are you?'—'I am a Jew.'

"The poor man vanishes. Christ has appeared and gone from the stage of the Apollo Theater, Shaftesbury-avenue, London, W. 1. Choir sings, 'Hark the Herald Angels Sing.'

"In the second act we are mercifully spared the nauseating religiosity of the first. Gilchrist, after being freed from his church, has accepted a job with the Goodkind firm, and is acting for them in a labor dispute in the coal mines. The capitalists wrongly think he is serving them admirably, but the truth, that he is really working for the strikers, comes out, and Gilchrist resigns his job.

"Act III is set in 'Overcoat Hall,' because in this place Gilchrist gives away overcoats to the poor. He also harbors the poor and the hunted, and has a great and loyal following, among them a crippled girl. Jerry Goodkind (now a drunkard) is on Gilchrist's track, because Clare, his wife, has confessed that she loves Gilchrist. So also are others with imaginary grievances.

Riot in Overcoat Hall.

THERE is a riot in Overcoat Hall. At the height of the trouble the crippled girl kneels down to pray for her benefactor. The mob howls insults at Gilchrist. 'Didn't you say you was a Son of God?' • • • 'I am.' 'He admits it. And I'm Mary Magdalene, Son of God!' • • • 'If you're the Son of God, give us a sign!'

"They fall on Gilchrist. As he lies under their hoofs the crippled girl drops her crutches and • • • walks! 'I can walk! I can walk! You wanted a sign? Down on your knees. God's in this room!'

"The last act, from a technical point of view, is beneath contempt. The dramatist has left nothing over. We see Gilchrist in his room in the slums once more on Christmas eve, giving and receiving presents, and we learn that Clare is now 'wonderful' to the egregious Jerry. Finally—you can believe me or not, as you wish—chimes in the distance once more give us 'Hark, the Herald Angels Sing,' and the girl who used to be a cripple points to a property spark and says, 'Is that the Star of Bethlehem?'

"Gilchrist, with complete candor, answers, 'I wonder.'

This mixture of bad art and artificial religion was received with cheers mildly qualified by hoots. The friendliness of the audience may be ascribed almost entirely to the superb acting of Mr. Ainley and a brilliant English company, best of whom were Mr. Edmund Willard, Miss Mary Merrall, Mr. Franklyn Bellamy and Miss Olga Lindo.

NITROGEN FOAM PUTS OUT FIRE

Blaze in Oil and Asphalt Extinguished in 3 Minutes.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

FLUSHING, Netherlands, Sept. 21.—A single fire hose spraying nitrogenous foam recently accomplished in three minutes what several fire departments were unable to do in 24 hours.

A fire in the yards of an oil and asphalt company continued more than 24 hours despite the combined efforts of the local department reinforced by the firemen of neighboring towns. The nitrogenous foam, sprayed from a distance of 300 yards extinguished the blaze in three minutes.

AGED ENGLISH SOCIALIST PRAISES MODERN GIRL

Edward Carpenter Believes She "Will Put World Straight Again."

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The modern girl, whose ways not infrequently shock her elders nowadays, has a staunch defender in Edward Carpenter, poet and philosopher, who renounced wealth and position 50 years ago to become a socialistic pioneer.

Four score years have given Carpenter ample opportunities for observing the ways of women, and he now celebrates his eightieth birthday with praise of the girl of the twentieth century. "While I am overwhelmed at the incapacity of the average man, I have nothing but admiration for the modern woman," said Carpenter. "She is a marvelous product of the age.

"I remember the women of the last generation and their limited lives. Dabbling with water colors, doing a little embroidery, and having no opinions whatever used to be considered not only a suitable, but the only life for a girl. In those days, if a girl had opinions on anything more important than her dresses, she was considered a freak by the other girls, and heavily sat on by the married women.

"The war offered the opportunity at the psychological moment for woman to find her freedom. Now all the problems that she has to face arise from the fact that she still is obliged to conform to certain standards that were intended for a totally different creature, the woman of yesterday.

"One of the most striking differences between this generation and the last is the way in which women say what they mean with what used to be masculine directness. They once seemed to make a point of saying what they did not mean. I never knew why this was so.

"Altogether this is a hopeful age. Things are moving in the right direction, towards more freedom and a more sensible outlook. The curse of the age is lack of seriousness. I believe women will do much toward putting the world straight again."

ONE AUTOMOBILE FOR EVERY SIX PERSONS IN ILLINOIS

More Than Nine and a Half Million Pleasure Cars in State on Oct. 1.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 11.—There is approximately one automobile for every six persons in Illinois, according to figures obtained today from Louis C. Emmerson, Secretary of State. On Oct. 1, 9,611,924 pleasure automobiles were registered.

The State at this time had collected a total of $11,218,780.12 in fees.

Almost 7 per cent of all automobiles in the United States are in Illinois, additional figures revealed. Automobiles registered in United States during the first six months of 1924 amounted ot 15,552,077, said a report made by the American Automobile Association. Of this number, 13,645,726 were pleasure or passenger cars.

The total number of passenger cars, trucks and dealers' cars in Illinois on Oct. 1 was 1,103,232. The report of the American Automobile Association, complete to July 1, showed New York had $1,233,362 cars, California 1,184,015, Ohio 1,160,000 and Pennsylvania 1,085,285.

All records in the number of cars in the State will be broken this year, the official figures indicate. In 1923, 847,005 passenger cars and 122,087 trucks were registered. There are now 137,580 registered trucks in the State. The total number of registered motor cycles on Oct. 1 was 6675.

HAGERTY'S BARN IS WELL KNOWN AS HOBO REFUGE

Structure Burned by Tramps and Replaced by Owner Still Open to "Travelers."

By the Associated Press.

ALTOONA, Pa., Oct. 11.—Although it's only an old barn, it has a reputation throughout the United States. It is known as Hagerty's Barn and is on the outskirts of Altoona.

Years ago a man named Hagerty, who lived just outside the limits of this city, owned the barn, which became a favorite stopping place for the knights of the road traveling along the route of the present Lincoln highway. Mr. Hagerty never objected to the hoboes stopping in his barn, even after fire, believed to have been started by them, destroyed the original building. Hagerty built a new barn and when he died enjoined his heirs never to close the building's doors to tramps. The heirs have done his bidding.

Every night from two or three to a dozen hoboes stopped there. Meals are cooked nearby. Frequently the visitors do their laundry, and string the clothes on ropes near the barn.

A resident of this city, traveling in the West this summer, was asked by a man from California if he knew where Hagerty's Barn was located. The Altoonan replied in the affirmative, and the Western man said he and many "traveling friends" had stopped at this place.

The Easiest Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely, and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly; and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

AUSTRIAN RULER GOT HIS FACTS FROM PRESS

Old Letters of Francis Joseph Show He Acted on Newspaper Information.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

VIENNA, Sept. 30.—Intimate details of the methods of Francis Joseph, Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary, in running the dual monarchy 35 years ago, have been given by the publication in a local newspaper of a collection of letters and orders from the imperial hand. The autocratic ruler was not slow to see what he wanted done, and to give orders to that effect.

In 1888 Francis Joseph learned that Vienna planned to honor the German emperor with a torchlight procession. This did not please him, so from Budapest he telegraphed his Prime Minister as follows:

"I learn from the papers that an agitation is afoot for a torchlight procession for the German emperor. As such a thing is entirely out of the question, it will be well to set one's face against it decisively at once; moreover to keep one's eyes open.—F. J."

The Emperor evidently depended largely upon the newspapers of his realm for information, for in 1889 he read in Budapest of certain projected Slav activities in Vienna, in which Slav parliamentarians were to participate. Beginning his telegram "I see in the papers," he said to his Minister, "I leave it to you to reflect whether, in view of the diverse provocative occurrences of the last few days, this celebration could not be prohibited, provided it is legally practicable.—F. J."

Polish students in Lemberg in 1889 adopted some resolutions, possibly reflecting hopes for ultimate independence, which the Emperor did not like. He must have been reading the newspapers again, for his message shows he was awaiting confirmation from the Governor of the province. In the meantime he telegraphed his Premier: "Decisive steps appear necessary against the students who, in disregard of their rector's prohibition, met and adopted impertinent resolutions. Unless we are prepared to witness like excesses at all our universities, the Government must exhibit determination.—F. J."

Francis Joseph made known his royal intentions to Hungary as well as to Austria, for he sent this message to Herr von Bitto, the Prime Minister at Budapest: "Having learnt that the civil marriage bill has been placed on the order of the day, I once more draw your attention to the fact that I shall not approve a bill which is untimely and so destined to lead to perfectly unnecessary complications."—F. J."

PRINCE TO REOPEN ENGLISH ROAD ONCE TROD BY ANCIENT ROMANS

Watling Street Is Today Best Route From London to Channel.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—The announcement that the Prince of Wales, upon returning from his American and Canadian trip, will on Nov. 19 formally open the reconstructed road between Dartford and Strood, draws attention to one of the oldest and most celebrated highways in Europe.

This patch of road is in reality part of Watling street, a thoroughfare of great antiquity which still traverses the heart of London and, just back of St. Paul's Cathedral, to this day bears its ancient name. No one knows how old Watling street is, but it had been long established when the Romans came to Britain 2000 years ago.

The automobilist who today comes up to London from Canterbury traverses the same road, the famous Watling street, which Roman soldiers took, when, on conquest bent, they marched through England. Jutish marauders in their day burned and plundered the countryside which it served. Traders from Gaul trudged over its stones long before the medieval age, in fact, the whole panorama of English history would be unrolled if this ancient way could speak.

And this old road which the Prince of Wales will again throw open to the public in November is today what it has ever been, the most convenient route between London and the ports of France.

An Important Letter To the Public

On September 17, 1906, the house of WERNER & WERNER opened its doors to an expectant public, who had watched the progress of the construction of the new building, expressly designed to meet the needs of the new establishment, at the corner of Locust Street at Sixth—it was to be known henceforth as QUALITY CORNER.

The sobriquet of QUALITY CORNER was not a mere play upon words, it was the dedication of a fixed principle of a new firm establishing quality standard not to be sacrificed or varied to meet price competition. Throughout the years which have followed, this establishment has been true to the ideals of its founders in maintaining its quality standard and the name WERNER & WERNER has become synonymous of the term QUALITY.

The equipment of the new firm was far in advance of the day and most favorably commented upon with pride by St. Louisans generally, and was of sufficient importance to have been widely written up by trade journals throughout the country.

The elegance and refinement of its appointment are an outstanding example of finest store construction, and its facilities have seldom been equaled.

The ideals of the founders as to its merchandising policies and principles in the conduct of the business has been based upon the rule of "Giving rather than Getting," together with a liberality of sincere service, and we are grateful that we have received from the public a just recompense for our faithful performances which have established this house as being entirely trustworthy.

After these many years of active service in this business the senior members are now about to turn over the active management and control of the business to the junior members, and a reorganization of the business is now in process upon plans of far greater expansion and further importance.

The members of this firm are under obligation and are deeply grateful to their friends and patrons for their good-will and confidence and the future of the business is bright with this inheritance in the hands of the new executives.

The establishment of WERNER & WERNER will take a step forward in a very substantial way to occupy a commanding position of greater consequences in the activities and in the interest of a Greater St. Louis.

Faithfully and sincerely,

FRENCH POLICE ANXIOUS FOR SAFETY OF NOBILITY

More Than 25 Titled Persons Living in Paris; Spaniard Recently Attacked.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 11.—The French Government and the prefecture of police are anxious about the safety of royal personages and exiled Princes who are visiting or temporarily residing in Paris. There are now between 25 and 30 such persons of higher or lesser degree in the capital, among them former King Manuel of Portugal; the Shah of Persia, the Aga Khan, spiritual head of the Mohammedans in India, East Africa and Central Asia, and the Maharajah of Capurthala. An attack the other evening on one of the Spanish Bourbons, who went unattended to a low quarter of Paris, has caused a great deal of talk.

"Paris is dangerous only to those who make it so," said Leon Leoni, former chief inspector of the Paris criminal police, who some times is called the "Pinkerton of Europe."

"Most Princes who come to Paris," Leoni continued, "enjoy all the pleasures of the city without exposing themselves to the least inconvenience. Only now and then some adventurous young man thinks he would like to do the more doubtful side of Paris alone. Then he evades the care of those assigned by the prefecture to look after him and, either quite by himself or with a friend, undertakes to explore the after-midnight cabarets and questionable cafes where he is exposed to misadventure."

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS TO HOLD ANNUAL SESSION THIS WEEK

Fifty-Third Annual Meeting of Order Will Begin Monday in City.

The fifty-third annual session of the Knights of Pythias of Missouri will be held at the Coronada Hotel, Lindell boulevard and Spring avenue, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, and the Grand Temple session of the Pythian Sisters will be held at the American Annex at the same time. The Pythian Sisters will hold a banquet and drill contest Monday evening, and the Knights of Pythias will give a "Grand Military Ball" at Swiss Hall, Iowa avenue and Arsenal street.

To Dedicate Y. W. C. A. Buildings.

The formal opening and dedication of the new Y. W. C. A. buildings will take place Oct. 18, at Camp Monte Bello, near Kimmswick, Mo. The new edifices are the gift of Edwin Gould of New York. It is anticipated that they will form the nucleus of one of the finest camps for girls in the United States.

Sage Tea Turns Gray Hair Dark

GRANDMOTHER kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied, with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through the hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color, and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

Home-Made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever used. A family supply easily and quickly made. Saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for healing the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

A Home Recipe For Removing Wrinkles

Who will blame the modern woman for trying to look as young and attractive as she reasonably can? Why should she be placed at a disadvantage in numerous ways by wearing wrinkles, if she can avoid these hateful marks of advancing age. Few women, however, know what to do to effectually rid themselves of wrinkles or sagginess. Most of the advertised preparations are unsatisfactory and very expensive. But a very simple and harmless home remedy, which any woman can make will work wonders where all the patent preparations fail.

Buy an ounce of powdered saxolite at any drug store. Dissolve the whole ounce in a half pint of witch hazel and use as a wash lotion. The results are almost instantaneous. Marked improvement is noticed immediately after the very first trial. Wrinkles and sagginess are corrected and the face looks as refreshed and smooth-

U. S. CEMENT MAKERS HONOR JOS. ASPDIN

Discovery of Modern Building Material 100 Years Ago Marked by Tablet.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—To Joseph Aspdin, an unsung stonemason of Leeds, the world pays honor this year for his discovery which literally cements the foundation stones of civilization. The one-hundredth anniversary of Joseph Aspdin's experiment producing artificial rock, yellow like the rock from the quarries of Portland, is marked by the erection in Leeds by the American cement manufacturers of a memorial tablet to one "who made the whole world his debtor."

"Greater tribute to the vision of Joseph Aspdin are endless white ribbons of concrete highways, the annual increase of which in the United States alone would build three continuous Lincoln highways from New York to San Francisco," says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters here.

"Cheops' great pyramid at Gizeh covering 13 acres and towering 481 feet, is still considered the world's most colossal man-made structure, yet the little lump of stone made by Joseph Aspdin in 1824 has grown so great that the United States is estimated to have poured in a recent year sufficient concrete to erect 30 pyramids like Cheops.' The 90,000,000 cubic feet of the pyramid represent only three-fifths of the concrete in the Panama Canal.

Discovered Rome's Secret.

"Aspdin must share with Imperial Rome the honor for giving the world liquid stone. Rome used hydraulic cement in her famous aqueducts and it was in search of Rome's secret, lost for 10 centuries, that Aspdin and others worked their way toward modern concrete. Roman masons found that by mixing lime with volcanic ash from Pozzuoli near Naples a mortar impervious to water resulted.

On this discovery rested much of Rome's glory, for the magnificence and extent of the city was physically impossible without a water system. Unconsciously Aspdin imitated nature; the volcano was nature's kiln. The stonemason, by baking his materials in a heat which approximated the volcano's heat, created the principle found in Pozzuoli ash, a substance which hardens on contact with water.

"Although Portland cement is produced in 27 states, the Lehigh Valley of Pennsylvania is the Pozzuoli of the United States. Silicia, calcium and alumina are the necessary cement ingredients which are contained in rock formations 'made to order' in this valley. The cement industry is the fourth largest user of coal and this fuel is also convenient. Often cement manufacturers use slag from blast furnaces also nearby, so the setting of the Lehigh Valley is quite as ideal as the iron ore and coal seam union of Birmingham, Ala. Freight rates on the heavy natural weight of cement tend to spread out the industry somewhat.

Blown Into Furnace.

"Crushers in the Lehigh Valley take blasted rocks as large as five feet wide, three feet high and ten feet long, and munch them readily into bits. Other teeth grind the stone to powder which is mixed with water to form a sloppy 'slurry.' Under air pressure this is blown into the man-made volcano, a cement kiln, the largest of which is half as long as an average city block and has a diameter of ten feet. This tube is lined with fire brick to withstand the terrific heat resulting from the burning of coal dust blown into the kiln from the other end.

"In the throat of this volcano a reaction occurs, transforming a third of the stone into the active principle of cement. An endless belt brings candescent nodules out of the kiln to more grinders which crush them to the fineness of flour. Six hundred pounds of raw materials and fuel are required for every 376-pound barrel of cement.

"Cement has itself created a separate industry which has important bearing on the prosperity of the Southern States. Annually it requires 30,000,000 new cement sacks of finely woven cotton. To make these, 60,000 acres of cotton must be grown and 1800 looms operated every day of the year. Woven in one piece, 30 inches wide, the cloth that goes into these sacks would unroll for 17,000 miles.

"Much as the Roman aqueducts were the necessity that mothered the invention of the first hydraulic cement, canals have produced modern cement. Aspdin's Portland cement was first used extensively in the Thames Tunnel. Early American cement factories can be traced by early American canals, notably the Erie Canal which popularized the product in the United States.

Saves Power on Roads.

"Aside from its irreplaceable value for a thousand uses, Portland cement is saving millions of dollars to civilization by cutting down the requirements for power. Scientific tests show that it requires nearly three times more power to move a ton over a gravel road, and two times more over a macadam road, compared with that necessary on a level stretch of concrete.

"A French gardener's flowerpot with inbedded metal parts was the simple origin of reinforced concrete whose vast possibilities are sounded scarcely more than the mysteries of the heavens. Steel and cement, experts find, are happily mated. As in all good families the qualities one lacks the other has. Concrete is noted for resisting compression and does not easily break down under the batterings of weather. Steel protected by cement will not rust away and its elasticity makes possible an ideal building material, strong, light, permanent, fireproof and yet not brittle.

"The highest monument to concrete's value is a great chimney in Japan, fifteen feet higher than the Washington monument. It withstands frequent earthquakes. Lorado Taft's towering statue to 'Black Hawk' above Oregon, Illinois, is a true monument to concrete. The material is used for levees on the Mississippi. It is shot from guns for broad surfaces. Ships and barges have been made with it. Skyscrapers find it a stout foundation.

"Farm alone use nearly one-fourth of the United States' cement for innumerable purposes. In 1914 it went into the front line trenches, and much of it is still in the front line trenches, to the sorrow of french farmers. But the most romantic incident of all occurred when the old British ships with cargoes of dry concrete sailed into hte harbors of Zeebrugge and Ostend and were sunk to make a concrete stopper to bottle up German submarines."

Modern Englishman Beef Eaters.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

He Is Looking 'Em Over Again

"Eight years of stomach and liver trouble reduced me to a walking skeleton. My skin was dried up and as yellow as a twenty-dollar goldpiece. I was filled with gas and had severe pains in my right side. I could not think and had lost all ambition to do anything. Doctor's medicine did not touch me. My cousin advised Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, which snatched me from the grave. I have gained sixty pounds, eat like a hired man and am looking 'em over again. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. THE setting is along the shores of the Beautiful, Crystal Clear Atlantic Ocean and Biscayne Bay, among the Cocoanuts, Royal Palm, Orange and Grapefruit Groves. Plenty of ocean with everybody bathing in it—six hundred kinds of fish—butterfly yachts and swift motor craft dancing on it.

Eight golf courses, in tropical environment, supply as many different opportunities to diversify your game. Your tennis attainments will not lack for need of courts—they're everywhere. Polo fields. Aviation (express cruisers of the air). Motoring without jar, rattle or dust through multi-hued tropical scenery.

"ARTHUR PRYOR'S FAMOUS BAND"
twice daily in Royal Palm Park
(Eighteen weeks starting December 7th)

Horseracing will be inaugurated at Miami this season on the new Million Dollar Track.

Miami is also a city of homes where the retired business man finds harmonious surroundings and congenial companionship. Thousands have selected Miami for their residence after inspecting the rest of the world.

Passenger transportation facilities greatly increased—Florida East Coast Railway System being double tracked; Clyde Line Steamers from New York direct to Miami by December; through trains from Chicago; through sleeping cars from Chicago, Cincinnati and Washington city; Baltimore-Carolina Passenger Steamship service from Baltimore.

DRUGS EXCITE THE KIDNEYS, DRINK WATER

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

PRESIDENT OF CHILE WAS GIVEN VACATION

Constitution of Country Makes No Provision for a Vice President.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. — The unusual situation of the President of Chile attempting unsuccessfully to resign, and instead being sent by Congress on a six months' leave of absence, draws attention to that country's Constitution, which in many ways is the most interesting in Latin-America," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic Society. President Auturo Alessandri is now living in Argentina while his country is in the hands of a military and naval committee and a new cabinet formed under this "junta."

"Under the Chilean Constitution of 1833 the American system of three separate functions—executive, legislative and judicial—was adopted; but unlike the United States, Chile incorporated a system of Federal centralization which is probably more extreme than in any other republic. The President appoints the 23 intendants, who correspond roughly to our Governors. With the intendants nominating them, he also appoints the 42 Governors who rule over districts such as might be formed by groups of counties in the United States. The Governors appoint sub-delegates to administer what might roughly correspond to townships, and the sub-delegates in turn appoint inspectors for small precincts. The whole elaborate civil hierarchy centers in the President and is ruled from the national capital.

"The Constitution provided for the indirect election of the President every five years through a sort of electoral college; the indirect election of Senators in the provinces for six-year terms; and the direct election of members of the lower house from the districts for three-year terms.

There is no provision for a Vice President. The President was to appoint a Cabinet of six members to be confirmed by the Senate, and the succession passed to the Secretary of the Interior if the presidential chair was vacated, a new presidential election to be called immediately.

The closeness of the latest election is probably one factor in the recent unprecedented outsing of the President.

had confirmed more than 20,000 persons, of whom 18,780 were Missourians; ordained 106 priests and consecrated almost 90 Bishops. He was elected Bishop of Missouri in 1886, after having been Bishop of Montana, with a jurisdiction in Utah and Idaho, including a territory of 300,000 square miles. His career there was picturesque. He established churches, missions and schools and was a factor in the civilization of that part of the country.

W. Frank Carter is chairman of the campaign; Thomas W. Dysart, vice chairman; Bishop Frederick F. Johnson, national chairman, and many prominent Bishops from all parts of the country are on the national committee. John R. Shepley is campaign director; Clinton Whittemore, treasurer of the fund; Mrs. Harvey G. Mudd, chairman of the Women's Committee; John G. Lonsdale, chairman of the Publicity Committee; Festus J. Wade, chairman of the Press Committee; R. King Kauffman, Organization Committee; George C. Hitchcock, Ways and Means Committee; Dean William Scarlett, Co-operation Committee; Mrs. Frederick R. von Windegger, Parish Co-operation.

Explains Origin of Plan.

Pledges are to be for two years, with the privilege of five years. The Bishop Tuttle Memorial will be for public use, with auditorium, club and class rooms, swimming pool, gymnasium and cafeteria. An explanation of the origin of the plan, and its necessity, was given by Dean Scarlett yesterday as follows:

"When one man was asked to subscribe to the Bishop Tuttle Memorial Fund, he said he did not believe in monuments. Neither, we think, did Bishop Tuttle. Consequently, when the idea of a memorial to Bishop Tuttle was initiated, those originating the project realized that it must be more than a monument; it must be a living, working, useful thing, performing a vital community service, if it was to typify the spirit of the Bishop.

"Downtown St. Louis is a challenge. In spite of the encroachment of business, 65,000 persons still live in the downtown district. That is 8 per cent of the city's population. But to understand the character of the district one has only to know that with 8 per cent of the population it has 12 per cent of the city's infant mortality, 14 per cent of the foreign born, 18 per cent of the juvenile delinquency, 32 per cent of the illiteracy, 10 times thhe average city rate of tuberculosis and very few recreational centers."

"Churches Have Fled District."

"Moreover, a glance at the map of the city will show how the streets and avenues converge toward this district, every day pouring 100,000 people into it for their daily toil. And from this district the churches have fled, following their people in their migration westward. But a few strong churches remain—the old Roman Catholic Cathedral, St. John's Catholic Church, Centenary Methodist Church and Christ Church Cathedral. They are left to face a problem which is not theirs alone, but the problem of the whole city.

Children Are Ill
if they won't play
Watch them carefully. You can forestall a serious ailment with a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

WHEN you see a child moping, avoiding companions and toys and play, look at its tongue and you will usually find it coated—a reliable symptom of constipation.
Forthwith give a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It will operate in a few hours and the child will feel better again. If there is also feverishness, sneezing and sniffing give another teaspoonful the following night, to make sure that all danger is past.
It is perfectly unnecessary to give young children strong physics and cathartics as they are apt to set up a bad habit they will later find difficult to throw off.
A mild vegetable laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin meets all their requirements, and as it is pleasant to take you will find no difficulty administering it.
Experienced mothers learned its value long ago, for it has been on the market over thirty years, and Mrs. Josie Clark, Rocky, Okla., and Mr. Charles Lewis, Blackwood, N. J., attribute the general good health of their families to the prompt use of Syrup Pepsin at the right moment. They have it constantly in the house, knowing they can relieve over night constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, flatulence, headache, sour stomach, fevers, colds and other disorders accompanying or due to a constipated condition of the intestines and bowels.
You can buy a bottle at any drug store at an average cost of less than a cent a dose.
The ingredients of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are very generally known, a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and agreeable aromatics, and wholly free of opiates and narcotics. The formula, which is on every package, was written by Dr. W. B. Caldwell, who practiced medicine for forty-seven years.
Free Sample Bottle Coupon
There are people who very rightly prefer to try a thing before they buy it. Let them clip this coupon, pin their name and address to it, and send it to the Pepsin Syrup Co., 518 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois, and a free sample bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will be sent them postpaid by mail. Do not inclose postage. It is free.
Get a bottle from your druggist today. Give it to any member of your family, young or old. If it does not come up to our promise your money will be refunded. It is our invariable guarantee.

How Signs Of Old Age Creep Into Your System When The Iron In Your Blood Runs Low
For Want of Iron, You May Be Old at Thirty — Nervous, Irritable and All Run-Down — While at Fifty or Sixty, With Plenty of Iron in Your Blood, You May Be Young in Feeling and Brimming Over With Vim and Energy.
IRON IS THE RED BLOOD FOOD
That Helps Strengthen the Nerves, Restores Wasted Tissue and Aids in Giving Renewed Force and Power to the Body. Physicians Explain Why Administration of Simple Nuxated Iron Often Increases the Strength and Endurance of Delicate, Rundown People in Two Weeks' Time.
Old age has already sunk its talons into thousands of men and women who ought still to be enjoying the springtime and summer of life simply because they have allowed worry, overwork, nervous strain, dissipation and occupational poisons to sap the iron from their blood and thereby destroy its power to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain. You will find plenty of people at 40 who are broken in health and steadily going downward to physical and mental decay while others at 50 are strong, active, alert and seemingly growing younger every year. One class withers and dies like leaves in autumn while the other by keeping up a strong power of resistance against disease may pass the three score and ten mark with surprising health, strength and vigor. But you cannot expect to look and feel young and vigorous unless you have plenty of iron in your blood, and physicians explain below why they prescribe organic iron — Nuxated Iron — to supply the iron deficiency in the weak, nervous, and rundown so as to build them up into stronger, healthier men and women.

YOU ARE AGEING if the enthusiasm for tackling your daily problems has waned

YOU ARE AGEING if your skin is shrinking and your face looks wrinkled, careworn and old

YOU ARE AGEING if you have lost the spring of your step and your movements are cumbrous

YOU ARE AGEING if you are wearied by the activities of your daily life.
When, as a result of iron starvation you get up feeling tired in the morning, when you find yourself nervous, irritable and easily upset; when you can no longer do your day's work without being all fagged out at night; when your digestion all goes wrong, or you have pains across the back and your face looks pale and drawn, do not wait until you go all to pieces and collapse in a state of nervous prostration, or until in your weakened condition you contract some serious disease, but add plenty of spinach, carrots, baked apples or other iron-containing fruits and vegetables to your daily food and take organic iron—Nuxated Iron with them for a while and see how much your condition improves.
Thousands of people have surprisingly increased their strength, energy and endurance in two weeks time by this simple experiment. But in making this test be sure that the iron you take is organic Nuxated Iron and not metallic iron or mineral iron which people usually take. Organic Nuxated Iron is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, while metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron.
Nuxated Iron represents organic iron in such a highly concentrated form that one dose is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating half a quart of spinach, or one quart of green vegetables. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. At all druggists.
NUXATED IRON INCREASES THE NERVE FORCE AND GIVES NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY

The other day—to be exact, just 15 days —Thomas Cusack of Chicago retired from presidency of the biggest outdoor adver- g corporation in the world. If it were mary, or feasible, or safe in Chicago, to millions in one's pocket, Thomas ck would have done that very thing as walked out after bidding farewell to the ess of which he had been the presiding for 49 years.

Almost on the same spot where he made exit, Thomas Cusack started out in life a bucket of paint and an idea as his only al, in 1875. He was then 16 years old not long "over" from Ireland.

o better job could an Irish lad ask for the one he had held up to that time. boss gave him gallon after gallon of beau- green paint and all the lad had to do was t farm wagons with this color so dear to Hibernian heart. He might well have en home to the folks across the sea:

's me that's happy. I'm keeping green memory of Ireland and the farm wagons merica."

Always Strong for Irish Colors

veral ideas preliminary to the one that him rich went flitting through the busy of the young immigrant about this time. of these ideas was that while green the most beautiful color in the spectrum s rather flat and monotonous when d on the capacious sides of those farm s and unrelieved by other color.

l wasn't so good. Too much of it in the h flag, which in those youthful days ung immigrant hated with all his heart, h as time wore on that hate became a vital impulse, so that today, under that h flag, the legend, "Thos. Cusack Co." well and widely known in Canada as in United States.

ll, anyway!

ere was yellow. Not orange, mind you, the fine golden yellow of the harp on the flag.

ibly with the consent of the boss, or, likely, when the boss wasn't looking, ung wagon painter tried his hand at atching, contrasting and blending of , which many artists will tell you is the asis of the painting art, whether on a wagon or a canvas destined for the .

he green and yellow wagons began to go the factory and orders for more be- come in.

t there young Cusack learned his first s lesson.

he orders increased in volume, the boss ised his product as his "improved wag- and raised the price of it.

e was food for thought that night when ung immigrant went to his boarding- room.

's see, now. I put a bit of the yellow wagon here and there. It's the same old , except for the colors. Then the boss it up and calls it 'improved.' Now, the ement is nothing at all except what I it with my brush."

And then the big thought:
"Who gets the money?"

Makes a Startling Discovery

Young Cusack's pay hadn't been raised and it was the boss who got all the money accruing from the improvement. And there was just one reason why the boss got it. He owned the business.

There in that dingy little boarding-house room the handwriting on the wall was plain:

"Work for yourself and you'll get all the profits."

But there was that other motto:

"Genius is eternal patience."

The fledgling painter was not yet ready to leave the nest. There were other ideas in the back of his head. One of these was an idea as big as all outdoors.

This was the evolution of it:

"There go the wagons. They're fine wagons, with their green and yellow paint—wagons any farmer would be proud to own. And there they go along the roads all over the Middle West with not a mark on them to show who made them or where they came from. When a farmer whose wagon equipment has run down meets one of our wagons on the road he may admire it and wish he had one, but he can see nothing on it to tell him where to go to get one. True, he might stop the other farmer and ask him where he bought the wagon. Then again he might not."

Another of those mottoes which have gone through a busy life with Thomas Cusack bobbed up:

"Word of mouth advertising is the slowest kind."

How Cusack's Name First Appeared

A talk with the boss. And the maker's name went on the side of the wagon, neatly lettered by the young Irish immigrant and with a bit of gold leaf in the borders to make it look rich and distinctive.

Now the wagon could go out and all who saw it would know where it came from. But to have any advertising value it must move around. It could carry its message only to those who met it or passed it on the road. On the days when it was not in use and lying idle in the barn its advertising light would be hidden under a bushel.

But, at that, the results were reflected in the business. There was an increase in the volume of orders. Some orders were accompanied by letters telling how the neatly lettered firm name on one of the wagons had attracted the attention of the purchaser.

Once more the boss was making profit from an idea, not because it was his idea but because, in a sense, he owned the man that had the idea. Cusack's pay remained unchanged.

More cogitation in the little boarding-house room:

"The boss is getting all the advertising and all the profits. If advertising is good for him it ought to help me a bit."

So the next wagons that went out carried the firm's name in the accustomed position, but with a slight addition. In the lower right-hand corner of the design the young painter lettered in "Thos. Cusack." The world then got its first glimpse of a name which is now one of the principal assets of a $10,000,000 corporation which last year did a gross business of $23,000,000 and confidently expects to do a $25,000,000 business this year.

And So His Sign Business Began

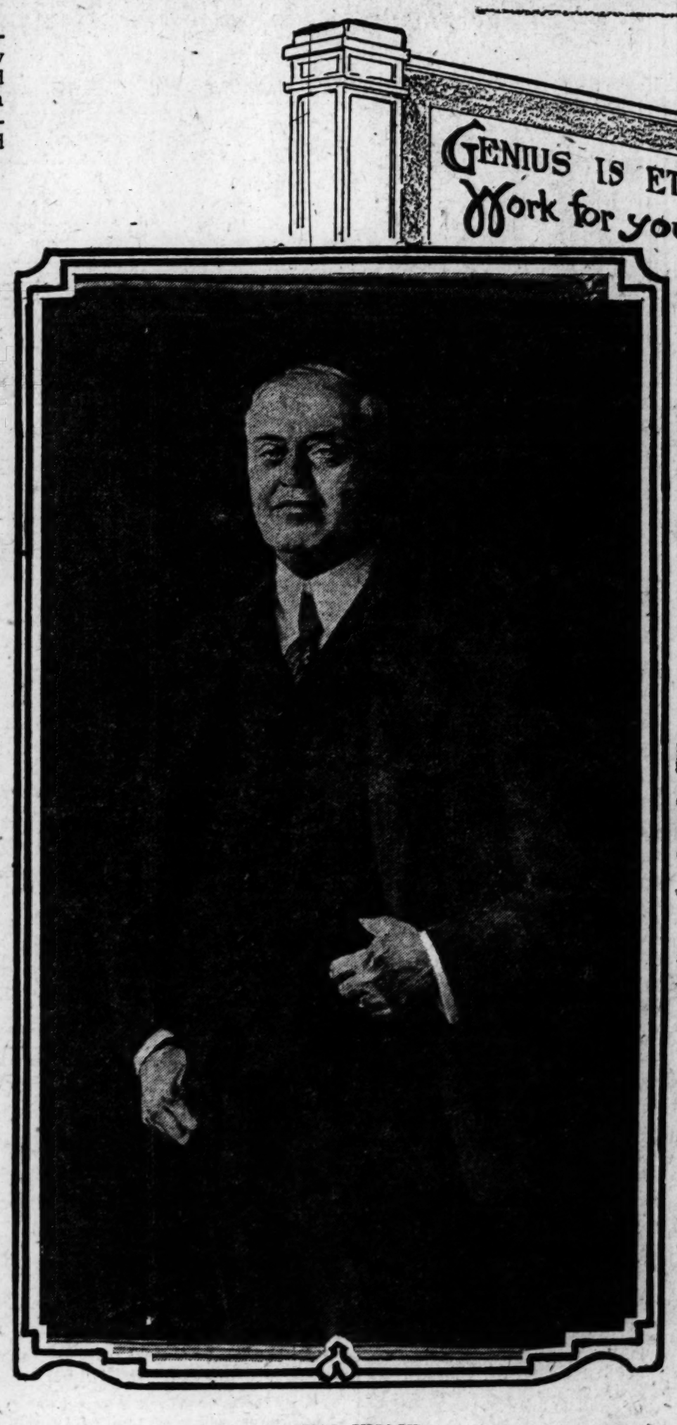
It must be remembered that the foremost of the bright young Irishman's mottoes was always in his mind:

"Work for yourself and you'll get all the profits."

Tom Cusack thought a lot about the advertising value of paint.

Why should the boss as manufacturer and Tom Cusack as painter be advertised only when the wagons were in use on the roads? Suppose signs telling about the fine wagons were put up along the roads? They would be there all the time, week days and Sundays, whether the wagons were out or not.

That was the germ of the idea. Just a lettered sign telling farmers where they could buy good wagons.



THOMAS CUSACK

This portrait was painted by Seymour M. Stone, who once was a protege of Cusack. Stone at various times worked in the Cussack shops to earn money for an art education. Sign painters all over the United States contributed to a fund of $5,000 to pay Stone for this painting. They presented it to Cusack Dec. 31 last, on his sixty-fifth birthday.

The next development of the idea was that a sign carrying a picture of the wagon, colored and true in every detail, would have much more punch than a lettered sign.

Young Cusack here was working up to another of the mottoes which he adopted as his own:

"A good picture is worth 10,000 words."

Cusack was in a way a self-instructed artist. He was known in the trade as a good "letter man" and as having a fine sense of color values. He also could draw fairly well. As many men in the painting trade do, he had developed this talent in his spare time by copying and coloring magazine and newspaper pictures. As a sign painter he was already fitted to "work from copy"—that is, to take a small drawing or design and make a large representation of it on a sign.

"Can I paint a sign on your barn?" says the young man with a bucket of paint.

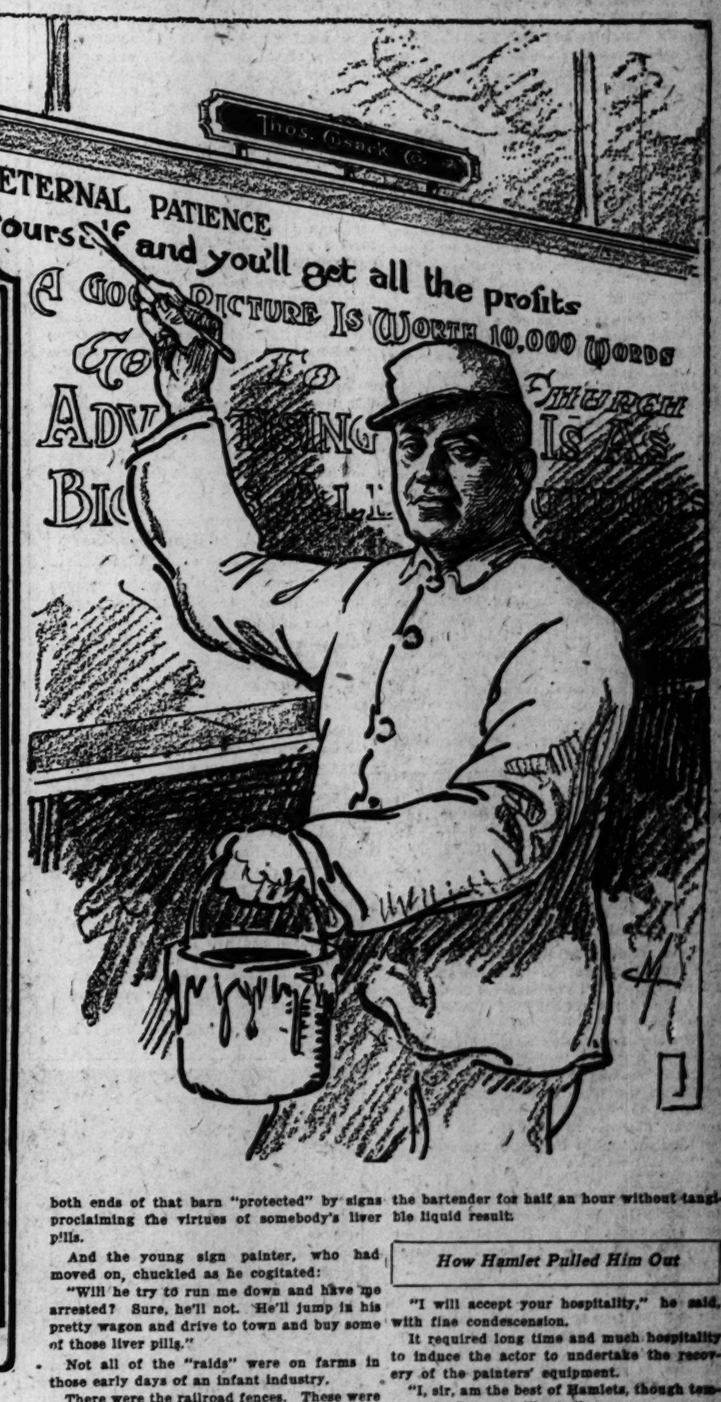
"What kind of a sign?" says the farmer.

"A liver pill sign."

"No, you can't. Get out o' here."

"Well, now, you wouldn't be getting cross about it. Sure, you know my name as well as I know it myself. There it is on your wagon, and here it is on my card."

"You don't mean to say you're the fellow that painted all them pretty wagons."



"The very same. Now, I'll do a nice job on this barn. It'll do the barn good. Paint is a great protection. Really, you'll be getting something for nothing. A nice coat of paint on one side of your barn. Then you can watch it and see how much better it wears than the other side—unless, of course, you want me to put signs on both sides. A little paint wouldn't hurt the roof, either. You'd better let me do your barn, and it won't cost you a cent."

Fences Were His Field Also

Tom Cusack had a fine line of advertising talk even in that early day, long before he had built up a business which today has offices and workshops in 48 American cities—one for every state in the Union.

If the farmer didn't catch this idea Tom had another to throw at him.

"Tell you what I'll do: I'll paint your barn all around if you'll let me put a sign on one side—and I'll give you a big discount on the painting job."

Should the farmer remain obdurate, Tom Cusack would pick up his bucket of paint, his brush and his idea, and go away, seemingly crestfallen.

When the farmer got up the next morning he found one side, or possibly both sides and both ends of that barn "protected" by signs proclaiming the virtues of somebody's liver pills.

And the young sign painter, who had moved on, chuckled as he cogitated:

"Will he try to run me down and have me arrested? Sure, he'll not. He'll jump in his pretty wagon and drive to town and buy some of those liver pills."

Not all of the "raids" were on farms in those early days of an infant industry.

There were the railroad fences. These were fences along railroad rights of way, usually owned by the railroads.

Council Bluffs, Ia., was not a city in the late '70s. It was just a straggly town whose chief distinction was that it was across the river from Omaha. Thos. Cusack & Co.—meaning Tom Cusack and five other "crpising painters"—departed from Council Bluffs rather hurriedly one night. To them it was the end of a perfect job—a big job and a big phase. They had been tipped off that the constable was after them for the little matter of having blazoned the virtues of liver pills, linen collars and Salvation Oil on every available foot of railroad fencing in and around Council Bluffs.

The fleeing painters made so precipitate a retreat across the bridge to Omaha that they left behind their paints and brushes, several ladders and three sections of scaffolding—in fact, the entire equipment of the Thos. Cusack Co. of that day. Without these things they could do no more work, and Omaha offered rich pickings.

Cusack told his troubles to a friendly hotel man.

"We can't go back after those things," said the future captain of finance. "Nobody that looks like a painter can get them."

"I've got the very fellow you're looking for," said the hotel man. "You'll find him in the bar talking Shakspeare to the bartender."

Sure enough. There he was—a stranded actor clothed in a frock coat, a high hat and dignity. The line of least resistance was to approach him with an offer to buy him a drink. He had been reciting Shakspeare to the bartender for half an hour without tangible liquid result.

How Hamlet Pulled Him Out

"I will accept your hospitality," he said, with fine condescension.

It required long time and much hospitality to induce the actor to undertake the recovery of the painters' equipment.

"I, sir, am the best of Hamlets, though temporarily I am at liberty."

"Well," said the future head of a business as big as all outdoors, "we are temporarily at liberty, too. The only difference between you and us is that we want to stay that way. You may be the best Hamlet in the world, but here's a new part for you. It's you that's going to help the best painter in the world by going over to the worst hamlet in the world and getting those things we left there. I'll advance $5 for you to hire a wagon. If you come back sober you'll get $10 for your trouble."

"It is a goodly price ye offer, and though the conditions be hard I will accept the role," quoth he of the sock and buskin.

Late that afternoon an odd, high-hatted, frock-coated figure drove across the bridge to Council Bluffs. Several hours later it returned. The precious equipment of paints and rigging was in the wagon. The horse was guided only by instinct, for the actor-driver was down in the wagon with the paints. Apparently he had repeatedly fallen off the seat. Every color in the painter's rainbow was spattered over his clothes and his high hat, which seemed to have fallen in turn into each paint bucket, looked like a pousse cafe.

The actor got his $10, but his claim for damages to his Hamlet wardrobe was denied. He was advised to leave the paint on and go into a minstrel show.

"A powerful picture is the shortest distance between two minds."

Thomas Cusack does not lay claim to being the originator of outdoor advertising. There

TRAGIC TALE OF LADY'S MAID AND LONDON MILLIONAIRE

AND HOW BOTH DIED BY HER HAND WHE SHE LEARNED MARRIAGE WAS BOGU

FROM MOVING DRAMA OF MURDER AND SUICIDE THE SERVANT EMERGES IN BETTER LIGHT THAN THE GENTLEMA

Pretty Peggy Mercer's Solution of the Dilemma That Was Forced Upon Her by the Villainy of Albert Michael Joshua, Retired Director of Great Department Store and Owner of Two Stately Mansions, Arouses Sympathy of Coroner, Press and Public of the World's Metropolis.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Oct. 1.

THE room was as it had been three days before when all life within it had stopped. Crumpled near a window lay the body of a man, face upward and legs crossed. His hat was on the floor not far away, his cane rested against the arm of a chair. It appeared that he had been about to leave when he was halted.

Scarce six feet away the girl had fallen. She must have been seated on the Chesterfield sofa, for she had slumped sideways and down to the rug, one foot still resting on the couch. Close by her clenched hand was a revolver. A glance at the man and girl told the policeman who broke in that both had been shot.

There were no signs of a struggle. A breakfast table set for two, with the meal just finished and the fact that the gold watch on the man's wrist had been broken at 7:15 o'clock placed the time. In the bedroom behind, an unmade bed, with two disordered pillows side by side carried the supposition further. This couple had arisen, they had eaten breakfast together and he had turned away to pick up his hat and cane. He was about to go. Then——

Detectives from Scotland Yard closely examined the man. He had been shot five times at close range. One of the bullets shattered the elbow of his right arm in a way to indicate that he had crouched and thrown up his arm to protect his head. This bullet had stopped the watch. Two wounds, ranging downward in the right side of the abdomen, two on the left thigh, also ranging downward, were more proofs that he had cringed from someone on the sofa.

The girl had been shot only once. There were powder burns about the small hole in the center of her forehead. The nearness of the revolver was another clew. The point that it was a six-shooter and that six shots had been accounted for led the investigators to their conclusion.

She had shot the man and then had used the last cartridge on herself.

But why? Who were they?

London Astounded at Man's Identity

Other residents of the Prince of Wales Mansions, Battersea, N. W., were led into the room and they looked down at the slender body, clad in blue silk and flesh-colored stockings.

"It's Mrs. McMurtrie's maid, Peggy," they said.

And so she was identified, this girl, whose full name was Irene Victoria Maud Mercer, shortened to "Peggy" Mercer when she took service. She was 23 years old.

"Married?" asked the Police Inspector.

"Not that we knew of, sir."

"Ah!"

Then the police turned to her companion in death. He was well dressed, middle aged and he had carried a gold-headed cane. They searched his pockets and found his card: "Albert Michael Joshua."

It was a name which the police easily traced.

"No!" his friends gasped, when they were asked to come and identify him.

This could not be Albert M. Joshua, millionaire, 54 years old, retired director of the important department store firm of Waring & Gillow on Oxford street. He the owner of the stately mansion in Great Cumberland place, Marble Arch, and the fine country estate, Cley-Next-the-Sea at Norfolk? This man, the husband of Mrs. Ella Joshua, on whom Sir Ernest Cassel, friend and companion of the late King Edward and his first cousin, had settled an annuity of $25,000 a year? This man, the father of Miss Catherine Marie Joshua, whose brilliant wedding to Guy Collett Vaughan-Morgan, a cousin of Lady Mountbatten, granddaughter of Sir Ernest Cassel, was a talked-of social affair of the last year? This man, the fine gentleman of Hyde Park, murdered by a servant girl?

His Double Life Revealed

It was true. London gasped, but London has been convinced. Joshua's love affair with Peggy Mercer, his double life, was brought out unsparingly in the minute processes of a British Coroner's investigation. And it was a story which placed Peggy Mercer in a better light than Mr. Albert Michael Joshua, for all his claims to gentility.

Joshua had arranged a liaison with the girl, one of a number of such meetings over a period of two years, the night before the tragedy. The McMurtries, her employers, had gone away for a visit with friends and had left Peggy in charge of their apartment. She was to remain alone there three days and then some relatives of Mrs. McMurtrie were coming to stay in the apartment until she and her husband returned.

Of this arrangement Joshua apparently was aware. He shortened the length of his sojourn in Scotland, where he had gone for shooting with some companions of the nobility, and returned to London. His wife was down at Inverness with a hunting party and he informed friends that he would go to one of his clubs for the night and join her presently. Instead, he drove out to the Prince of Wales Mansions, Battersea, to pass the time with Peggy.

They locked all the doors of the apartment and the fact that it is located on the first floor and in a wing of the building with no occupants in the apartments above accounts for the privacy which not even pistol shots could disturb.

That was on a Tuesday evening. The next day the milkman brought the family order and the dustman came to carry off rubbish. They found things shut up and concluded that the McMurtries were away on a visit. It was not until Friday, when Mrs. McMurtries' relatives arrived to take charge of the place that the bodies were discovered. Autopsy surgeons by examining the stomach contents, concluded that the tragedy had happened within a few hours after that first morning breakfast and that they had been dead about three days.

Conjecture As to What Happened

What happened that Tuesday evening which led Peggy Mercer to kill her middle-aged lover and herself?

The police found a letter in Peggy's room stamped and addressed to her younger sister, Phyllis, at Bagnor, near London. It explains a good deal:

Dearest Phil—I hope you will forgive me for my cowardly act, but I have fully decided to end it. I have kept a secret from you and the time has come for me to tell you of. I married Basil a year ago last June. He told me then that he had divorced his wife, and that he only lived with her for the sake of his daughters.

Phil, dear, he has deceived me.

But although I know this, I still love him and I know that he loves me, for he would never have taken that great risk. I cannot tell you how I have lived since he told me the truth. I am afraid every day that someone is coming for me. You know what it will mean if his wife finds out—not that she will, otherwise she would have done so long ago. But it is just the thought of having known the truth that makes me think she will. Don't think too badly of me. Remember, Kitty liked him.

"I know that you once loved him, and if ever that love was as great as mine you will understand just how I feel. So I beg of you to keep my marriage a secret. It is because I have never kept anything from you that made me tell you now. Basil has destroyed the marriage lines and all the letters, so nobody will know. Don't even tell Babs. Remember, dear, it is my last request. It has hurt terribly to have kept it from you, but I did it for Basil's sake. I dare not think what Babs will think of me, as I know how she hated Basil. She always said he had other girls.

I know he never did, except Margaret, and that is a mystery that even I could not solve.

But in spite of everything, I love him. I feel sorry for his poor wife, but I am doing what I think best. It would cause more scandal if it were found out and taken to court, and I could not bear it. So I am taking a chance while fate is kind. I shall think of you at my last moments. With my secret I inclose my wedding ring, which I want you to keep safely locked away

Your heart-broken sister, PEGGY.

Give my love to dear Jack and ask him to forgive me.

Knew Him As "Basil Montague"

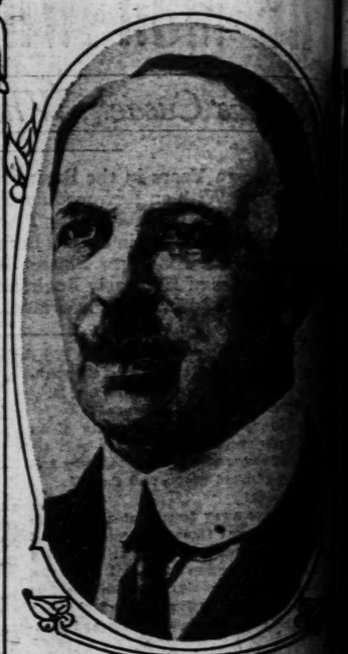
Besides this letter they found others, shorter and more cryptic; also a diary which she had kept and at the bottom of her trunk a gold wedding ring.

Her sisters, the other being Miss Barbara Mercer of Holloway Hill Godalming, told the Coroner that Peggy had met Joshua in a London hotel lobby two years ago. They always knew him as "Basil Montague," and supposed that was his name. They did not know he was married.

One of the shorter letters ran as follows:

My dear Husband—I have received your note today. I beg and implore you to give up this Margaret. She is only making your life miserable. We are drifting further and further apart.

I know that you want me, too. You have been very depressed of late, and I am sure you have something worrying you. Won't you tell your little wife? I want to share it with you.



ALBERT JOSHUA,
the London millionaire whose death was exposed when Peggy Mercer [illegible] that he had betrayed her.

Another view of Peggy Mercer, the London lady's maid whose romance with a millionaire ended so tragically.

PHYLLIS AND PEGGY MERCER.
It was Phyllis (at left) that Peggy (at the right wrote before the tragedy, confiding in her the discovery she had made as to the real identity of her "husband." Phyllis identified Joshua's body at the inquest as that of the man she and Peggy had known as "Basil Montague."

Then, there was the diary, a little soft-green leather-bound book. In it the girl had recorded regular meetings with "Basil" for more than a year. Among the extracts were:

Saw Basil.

Went to Guildford with Basil.

First driving lesson with Basil in Richmond Park.

Surningdale; golf with Basil.

Went out to take pictures with Basil.

Went on the river with Basil.

The last entry, dated Sept. 1, was:

Basil goes to business; promises return by 9:30 o'clock.

Among the other records were a number of post cards addressed to Peggy Mercer and mailed from various places in Spain and Portugal and signed "Lovingly, Basil." Joshua's widow identified the cards at the inquest as having been written in her husband's hand and explained that Joshua toured these countries with his unmarried daughter last March.

With the evidence gathered the inquest opened and all attention was focused on Mrs. Joshua. She was described as a large, statuesque woman, who entered the inquest room clothed in deep mourning.

"Did you ever know or hear of another woman?" she was asked.

"No."

"Had there ever been any unhappiness between you and your husband?"

"No."

"There had never been any talk of divorce or divorce proceedings?"

"No."

She was under great stress of emotion and the questioning did not proceed further. The next witness was Phyllis Mercer, sister of Peggy.

"Have you seen the body of Mr. Joshua at the mortuary?"

"Yes."

"Do you recognize it?"

"Yes."

"Did you know him as Mr. Joshua?"

"No. As Mr. Basil Montague."

"Did you see him with your sister?"

"Frequently."

"What did your sister say about him?"

"That she loved him."

"Did she ever say anything about killing herself or him?"

"Only when she found out he was married."

"Did she speak of killing herself and him after that?"

"Yes."

"When did she discover he was married?"

"A month ago."

"Did you notice a change in her after that discovery?"

"Yes. She used to be very bright, but after she discovered he was a married man she was depressed and miserable."

The witness broke down and had to be removed from the inquest room.

Coroner Puts Blame on Him

When all the evidence was in, Coroner Ingleby Oddie summed up the case as follows:

One could almost understand the frenzy into which she would be thrown by this terrible revelation, borne out substantially by the change apparent to her sister and to her employer. She was intensely depressed. It may be perfectly true, on the other hand it may not, but if this last letter to her sister was an invention by a woman about to take her life—and the love of her lover—it is a very extraordinary document. That she should invent such a story at the last moment—such a solemn moment as the one in which she wrote it is extraordinary. Women do extraordinary things. It may be she did invent this story of a marriage to justify her conduct in the eyes of her sister, having given way to the solicitations of Mr. Joshua. It may be she was desperate because she could not have the man she loved, because she knew he was a married man. She felt it could not go on. Possibly his affection for her was getting cooler, and she realized her reign was coming to an end. If that were so she deliberately shot Mr. Joshua from motives of revenge, and the jury might feel compelled to record a verdict of murder and felo de se.

If, on the other hand, her story is true, that she had been seduced owing to a bogus ceremony of marriage, possibly not conducted by a registrar or a clergyman, but possibly conducted in some [illegible] place which we have not been able to trace, if she was so seduced one could understand at the moment of discovery how completely she must have lost control of herself. If the jury came to the conclusion that she was not of sound mind they would return a verdict of murder and suicide during temporary insanity. There was no suggestion of struggle in this case and nothing whatever to suggest that it was a case of manslaughter.

The Coroner added that that letter was proved to be in her handwriting, but he did not know whether it was addressed to Mr. Joshua or not. If it was, she was referring to him in March as her husband and herself as his wife. Whether it was true that Mr. Joshua did go through the ceremony of marriage with the deceased girl they could not really tell. "But this is a letter left by a young woman about to kill herself, and therefore presumably likely to be true," continued the Coroner. "If it is true, then Mr. Joshua's conduct was most discreditable, for it would show that she was a virtuous woman, and that in order to overcome her resistance to his advances he had to resort to the despicable subterfuge of going through a form of marriage with the girl, being married himself already at the time. I mention this interpretation to you because I think it has a great bearing upon the verdict which you will have to return in her case as to whether when she took her life she was in full possession of her faculties or not, because you will be able to say if this is true—though we cannot prove it—that she had lost her virtue through this trick. One can easily understand what a terrible blow it must have been to her to discover that her so-called husband was a married man and had bigamously gone through a ceremony of marriage with her. Such a relation as that would be calculated to create intense distress and misery in a young woman who had been virtuous prior to meeting Mr. Joshua.

Jury Finds He Drove Her I[illegible]

The Coroner's jury returned this verdict:

"That Mr. Joshua was murdered by Peggy Mercer, who afterwards killed herself, and in a state of unsound mind in consequence of Mr. Joshua's behavior to her."

The London newspapers said it was a harsh verdict for an English jury to bring against a man. It was commented that the wording tended to show a sympathy with the girl and serious condemnation of Joshua.

Out of the welter of stories printed about Peggy Mercer and her strange love affair with a man 20 years her senior itself emerged. The girl herself has emerged. The belief in Battersea had always considered that she was above her class. She impressed her employers with her apparent refinement and education. She had been brought up in a little country town not far from London and both her parents were dead.

It is only remembered that she was a pretty, in a slender, wistful way; that she had had opportunity for motoring in Richmond Park and golfing at Sunningdale, until "Basil Montague" came along. She believed him a bachelor, he gave her glimpses of life fine and free. Then he turned out to be Albert Michael Joshua, the respectable married man.

She settled the question in the room at Battersea flat in a way that has aroused sympathy of this great city.

DURANT, Ok., Oct. 11.

PERHAPS a younger man would have fought back. But the Rev. Jacob C. Miller was 67 and his had not been a militant calling. The accusation terrified him. It was not his nature to deny and brazen the thing out. He would deny, truthfully, yet worry lest a few doubted. He was bewildered. He might refute the charge, but could he stop the talk? Would his church people, who loved him, and his fellow townsmen, who respected him, believe?

The ugliness of the affair had a great deal to do with his failure to solve the question. The accusation had come from an unexpected quarter. He had thought well of the Rev. Joseph Yeats, 30 years his junior, and his former assistant in the big First Methodist Church here. That Yeats, after moving to a new charge, should return and accuse him of misconduct with Mrs. Yeats was a stunning shock. Yeats had placed the affair in the hands of an attorney, demanding $50,000 damages.

A man of more worldliness might have sought prosecution for blackmail when Yeats reduced his demands to $500 and threatened publication of the charge unless the Rev. Mr. Miller paid. A man more confident in himself and less awed by what men might say would have put the question to a test and appealed to a thorough inquiry for vindication. The aged pastor miscalculated, too, the blanchness of his friends. He misjudged the weight Yeats' charges would have. He wavered in a pitiful agony of indecision.

Of this hidden torment the old man's wife and his parishioners knew nothing. If his wife suspected a secret worry she was unable to learn its nature. If the congregation of a Sunday morning noticed that their pastor looked haggard and worn they put it down to the press of years and failing strength.

Surrounded by friends who would have scoffed at the charge had he told them of it, and by relatives who would have hurried to his defense with a demand for a show-down with Yeats, the Rev. Mr. Miller believed he must face his tragedy alone.

Shrank From Prospect of Publicity

He had been so long in the church and had kept his name above reproach for so many years. Before coming to Durant three years ago he had been presiding elder of a conference in North Texas—a distinguished position in his church. He was known in many Southern conferences, and doubtless had heard himself praised for his work in the church and his character. Now to have the sordid story published. Now to have all this come out when he was so near the end

Jury Finds He Drove Her Insane

The Coroner's jury returned this verdict:

"That Mr. Joshua was murdered by ... Mercer, who afterwards killed herself while in a state of unsound mind in consequence of Mr. Joshua's behavior to her."

The London newspapers said it was a very harsh verdict for an English jury to bring against a man. It was commented that the wording tended to show a sympathy with the girl and serious condemnation of Joshua.

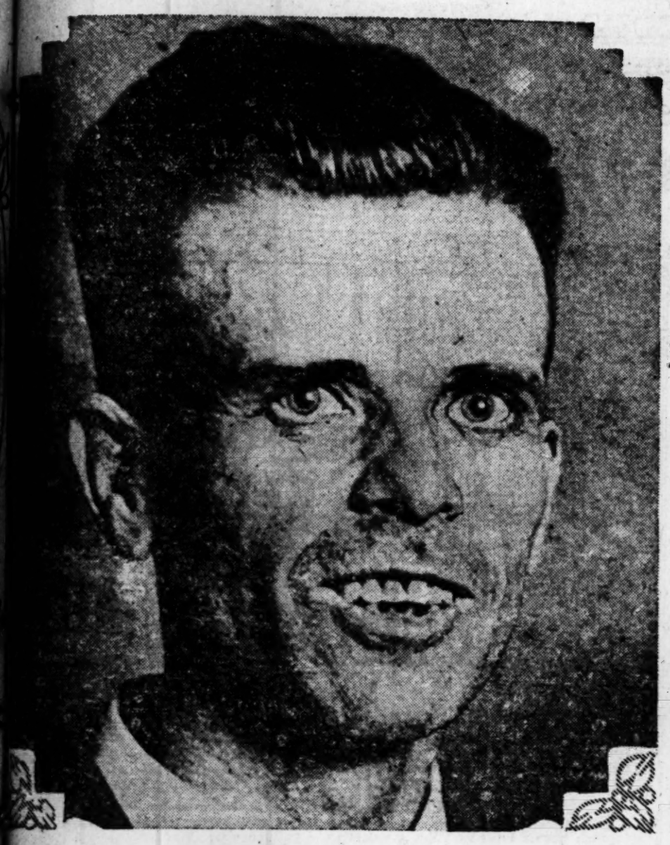
Out of the welter of stories printed about Peggy Mercer and her strange love affair with a man 30 years her senior little of the girl herself has emerged. The neighbors in Battersea had always considered that she was above her class. She impressed her employers with her apparent refinement and education. She had been brought up in a little country town not far from London and both her parents were dead.

It is only remembered that she was pretty in a slender, wistful way; that she had little opportunity for motoring in Richmond Park and golfing at Sunningdale, until "Basil Montague" came along. She believed his talk and he gave her glimpses of life fine and rich. Then he turned out to be Albert Michael Joshua, the respectable married man.

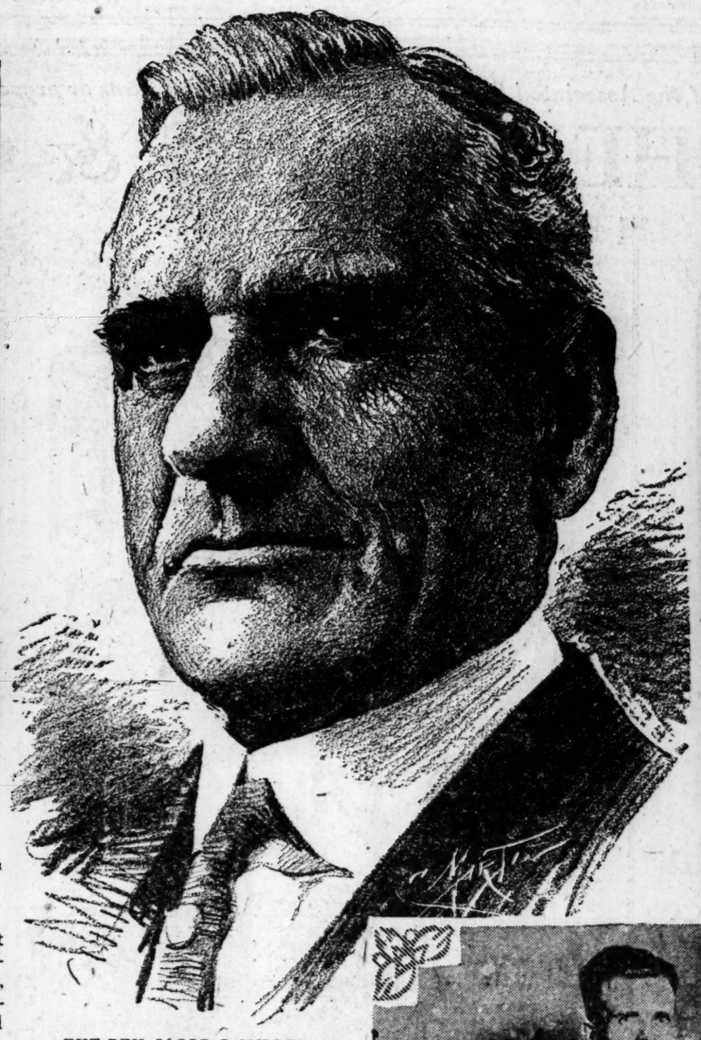
She settled the question in the room in the Battersea flat in a way that has invited the sympathy of this great city.

ELDERLY PASTOR ENDS HIS LIFE TO SAVE HIS CHURCH FROM SCANDAL

Denounces Associate's Charge in Farewell Note as Blackmail but Shrinks From Publicly Fighting It



THE REV. JOSEPH YEATS,
...ose accusations against the Rev. Mr. Miller drove him to suicide. The accuser then ...ded to the general scandal by running off with a 14-year-old choir girl.



THE REV. JACOB G. MILLER,
Beloved pastor of the First Methodist Church of Durant, Ok., who could not bring himself to face the scandal brought up by Pastor Yeats' charge, although all evidence indicates the accusation was false.

GEORGIA FIELDS,
The 14-year-old choir girl who eloped with Yeats, her pastor. Both are in jail at Bellinger, Tex., and Yeats is charged with abduction, following her admission that he himself performed the only marriage ceremony they had.

That He Took the Wrong Way Out Is Demonstrated by Events That Quickly Followed His Suicide, for Entire Town Arose to Repudiate the Accusations and Show Its Confidence and Belief in Him, and His Accuser Has Become the Central Figure in An Elopement Case in Which He Is Charged With Abducting a 14-Year-Old Girl, Whom He Married to Himself After Divorcing His Wife.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DURANT, Ok., Oct. 11.

PERHAPS a younger man would have fought back. But the Rev. Jacob C. ... Miller was 67 and his had not been a militant calling. The accusation terrified him. It was not his nature to deny and threaten the thing out. He would deny, truthfully, yet worry lest a few doubted. He was bewildered. He might refute the charge, but would he stop the talk? Would his church people, who loved him, and his fellow townsmen, who respected him, believe?

The ugliness of the affair had a great deal to do with his failure to solve the question. The accusation had come from an unexpected quarter. He had thought well of the Rev. Joseph Yeats, 30 years his junior, and his former assistant in the big First Methodist Church here. That Yeats, after moving to a new charge, should return and accuse him of misconduct with Mrs. Yeats was a stunning shock. Yeats had placed the affair in the hands of an attorney, demanding $50,000 damages.

A man of more worldliness might have sought prosecution for blackmail when Yeats reduced his demands to $500 and threatened publication of the charge unless the Rev. Mr. Miller paid. A man more confident in himself and less awed by what men might say would have put the question to a test and insisted to a thorough inquiry for vindication. The aged pastor miscalculated, too, the blackness of his friends. He misjudged the weight Yeats' charges would have. He wavered in a pitiful agony of indecision.

Of this hidden torment the old man's wife and his parishioners knew nothing. If his wife suspected a secret worry she was unable to learn its nature. If the congregation of a Sunday morning noticed that their pastor looked haggard and worn they put it down to the press of years and failing strength.

Surrounded by friends who would have rallied at the charge had he told them of it, and by relatives who would have hurried to his defense with a demand for a show-down on Yeats, the Rev. Mr. Miller believed he must face his tragedy alone.

Shrank From Prospect of Publicity

He had been so long in the church and had kept his name above reproach for so many years. Before coming to Durant three years ago he had been presiding elder of a conference in North Texas—a distinguished position in his church. He was known in many Southern conferences, and doubtless had heard himself praised for his work in the church and his character. Now to have this horrid story published. Now to have all come out when he was so near the end of the journey. Would there be time for him to prove Yeats' story false—to wipe clean the slate again? There would be a court trial of the damage suit. He shrank from the prospect.

One Sunday morning, just an hour before time for the morning service, the Rev. Mr. Miller decided upon what he thought was the only way out. His wife found him in the garage behind the rectory with his throat cut. He was rushed to a hospital, but did not recover consciousness.

In his pocket they found this letter:

There are those who have determined on my destruction and will never stop until they have accomplished their purpose. Oscar Fowler is the legal adviser of that tribe. They follow me day and night. They have ruined me in that they have destroyed my usefulness. Better for me to go. I am not afraid to meet the Judge of all the earth. So must it be. Amen.

Just a few words: Jesus had power to lay down His life and had power to take it up, and He chose to lay His life down for the church. He said, "Ye are not better than your Lord and Master." Why should I not lay down my life for the sake of the church? I love God. I love His church. I love purity and chastity. I love my dear wife and precious children. They are dear to me and believe in me to the last analysis, but to go through a nasty black-hand trial would so humiliate them that they would be crushed and ruined.

Called Himself "Blackmail Victim"

I am the victim of blackmail, but cannot escape the results so far as myself and family and the church are concerned. I prefer to give my life and in that way save the situation.

Too, I love my splendid congregation at Durant and I want the church to grow and prosper. I choose this course in the belief that it will bring the least bad results to the church which I love so much. My monument is there. I love that great house. It is dear to me. God bless my dear congregation today. I have tried to be a blessing to all people whom I have met and my life for the most part has been a happy one. I have prayed over this matter and am happy in my decision. I have no fear of results. God is my refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble.

My life is pure and clean. I am so proud of my dear wife and daughters. They must not be humiliated by being brought into a scandal, though it is the work of blackmail. I have been of such standing in the church that a well-concocted plan to get a court judgment against me, breaking up a home would do the church almost irreparable injury.

It must not be. I have chosen to die to save, as far as possible, all concerned. May God be praised in it all.

I am happy. Adieu for the while. Not for hatred, but for love. All is well.

Chose the Wrong Way Out

There were other letters which have not been published, one to his wife, one to his daughters, one to the Shrine of which he was a member.

When the whole story was out, it at once became apparent that the minister had made two mistakes. His suicide had added to the sensation rather than hushed the talk he had hoped to silence. But the greater and more tragic misunderstanding was his fear that the people of Durant might not believe in him. Even when his act had made it harder for them, his parishioners, friends and relatives did not once question his innocence.

Living, he had imagined himself a man on the verge of undeserved ruin; dead, those he left behind took him at his best valuation. The folk of Durant told each other that he was an old man, bewildered by a groundless accusation. They staked their faith on the belief that he had written honestly in that last letter; that in the stress of his inadequacy to the situation he had died a martyr.

Friends rallied to the stricken widow and her three daughters. Strangers did not turn to the scandal-mongering Pastor Miller had feared. Even the facts in the case seemed to have taken a kindly turn.

Mrs. Yeats, wife of the pastor's accuser, divorced from her husband and living with her three children in Dallas, emphatically denied to newspaper men that there ever had been improper relations between her and the Rev. Mr. Miller. The Rev. Mr. Yeats repeated his accusation, but his testimony has been weakened by his recent behavior. He ran away with Georgia Fields, 14-year-old choir girl, who was a member of his church at Alluwe, Ok., three weeks ago, and now is held with his wife in jail at Ballinger, Tex., while authorities seek to discover if the marriage they talk about was legal. The child's father wishes to prosecute him for abduction.

Now His Accuser Is Accused

With such apparent unreliability on the part of his accuser, Pastor Miller's friends were entirely willing to give him the benefit of whatever doubts remained. So were his fellow-ministers in Durant. So were the other preachers in his conference. So were the people of Durant.

Pastor Yeats and his girl bride photographed in jail at Ballinger. She declares, "I love Joey, and I won't go home to Papa and Mama."

The Durant Democrat printed the following, which seems indicative of the town's feeling:

The Rev. Mr. Miller has been pastor of the First Methodist Church for three years. He had the confidence, esteem and love of the people of Durant, regardless of church affiliations, or whether people belonged to any church or not.

He came from Abilene, Tex., to Durant immediately after the destruction of the Methodist Church of this place by fire, and notwithstanding the financial stress and failure of crops in Bryan County and surrounding vicinity, he has erected a magnificent church structure, which will stand as his monument in the years to come.

Brother Miller was vice president of the Rotary Club, a Shriner and took an active part in all affairs of the city. He was born in North Carolina and moved to Texas with his family when a boy. He was admitted to the Northwest Texas Conference in 1883. He was presiding elder of the conference for 16 years and held such appointments as Abilene, Brownwood and Amarillo, and was for a time president of Stamford College, trustee of Southwestern University of Georgetown, Tex., and held various high and honorable positions in the church.

There has never been anything happened in this town that has caused more universal mourning and been a greater shock to the citizenship. This paper mourns with the family and extends to them our heartfelt sympathy in this sad hour.

At the funeral more than a dozen ministers, including all those of other churches in the town, led the services. Presiding Elder Crutchfield eulogized the deceased pastor and others made references to "the dastardly charges against Brother Miller's good name."

Town Upholds Dead Pastor's Memory

So the Rev. Mr. Miller need not have feared the judgment of this small town in which he had labored after all.

"If he had only told us and waited a while," said more than one of his parishioners to another.

Interest naturally centers about the Rev. Joseph Yeats. While his lawyer in Durant was making demands on Miller for damages because "you broke up my client's home," Pastor Yeats in Alluwe was busy with another affair. While the elderly man he had accused was praying for light in the shadow cast by Yeats' charge, the supposedly wronged husband was suing his wife for divorce on grounds of desertion. This suit was preparatory to an elopement with Georgia Fields, who sang in the choir and was a freshman at the Alluwe High School.

The specific charge Yeats made against Miller was that while the two were conducting a revival meeting in Texas, Yeats caught Miller in his wife's room. But when the time came for him to back it up in court he was in jail at Ballinger, charged with abduction of a 14-year-old girl.

The facts of the elopement are described by the child bride as follows:

"I told mamma I was going to school. I went as far as the grounds and Joie (Yeats) met me in his roadster. We drove over to Nowata and were married. We got back to Alluwe before school was out and I went home at the usual time. That was on Thursday, Sept. 18.

"On Sunday Joie preached as usual and I sang in the choir. We kept our marriage a secret until Monday, when I started for school again. But we had things fixed for our honeymoon. We started that morning and wired mamma and papa and told them to wire us if we were forgiven, so we could come home. They didn't answer."

Married the Child to Himself

The child's father, A. W. Fields, made every effort to overtake the elopers. The chase ran through Oklahoma, Arkansas and Missouri, and then back to Ballinger, Tex., where Yeats' parents reside. Detectives who followed them reported that a marriage license was issued to them at Carthage, Mo., and that a ceremony was performed at Joplin. At Carthage Yeats swore that the girl was 21 years old.

She is large for her age, has bobbed hair and is pretty. Yeats is 38 years old.

"I won't go back home," the child declares in jail at Ballinger, "and if they take me back I won't stay. I love Joie and I'm going to stand by him."

Yeats reiterated his accusation against Pastor Miller in the following words:

"Miller ruined my home and tried to make a money settlement with me. His attorney phoned me and asked me if I would accept a settlement. I told him I was going to put Miller in jail for adultery and send him to the pen."

As to the alleged abduction of Georgia, he declared: "She told me she was 21. They haven't a thing on me in this case."

However, Georgia has changed her story of the alleged marriage. She says now that Yeats performed the ceremony, thus marrying her to himself. Yeats insists still that he acted in a legal manner and that the child is his wife.

CUSACK PUT SIGNS OF TIMES TO WORK; MADE MILLIONS

were wall signs and signboards before he went into the business, but outdoor pictorial advertising was little known. Early in his career Cusack clearly saw two things—the value of having clients whose products were suited to national advertising and the value of putting attractive pictures of those products on the boards. Tell the virtues of the liver pills in as few words as possible, but make the picture of the bottle big and realistic. That was one of the ideas he brought into the business.

Well, anyway!

The invasion of the South by Cusack and his "company" was by no means a path of least resistance. Many communities had ordinances to check cruising sign painters and in other places it was illegal to paint signs without first obtaining a license. It was the practice of painters to ignore the license requirement, paint the signs and pay the fines—if they were caught.

Cusack was caught one fine day in Charleston, S. C., a year or so after the disastrous earthquake of 1886. The entire town had turned out to view a parade of Confederate veterans. A fine time for painters to get in their work. But Cusack was caught.

"Take me to the Judge and I'll pay the fine," he said.

It was a familiar formula. The Constable took him at his word. The Judge was on the reviewing stand, watching the parade. So the luckless painter in his spattered overalls was taken to the reviewing stand. Not only was the Judge there, but the Mayor, the City Council and many prominent State officials.

Here was a brilliant audience and Tom Cusack decided to make a speech.

"Never get into anything that you can't talk yourself out of."

That was another of his favorite mottoes. So he made a speech. Was this Southern hospitality? Had Charleston forgotten how generously Chicago had come to its aid after the earthquake? He himself had contributed to that relief fund. And this was the way he was being repaid. Chicago, too, had felt the heavy hand of disaster. It had been destroyed by fire. And so it had a fellow feeling for Charleston. Was that fellow feeling to be destroyed by his arrest and humiliation before this great crowd? That was the tenor of his speech and it won his freedom. The Mayor and the Judge shook hands with him.

Knows the Power of Oratory, Too.

And then as he was rushing his way out of the crowd a tall native from the Carolina hills stopped him and slipped a $10 bill into his hand.

"What's that for?" asked the painter.

"For the Chicago fire sufferers. That was the first I heard about your big fire up there."

As has been said, this was about 1888. The Chicago fire was in 1871. Tom was in a hurry to get away and didn't have time to explain this to the contributor.

It was this experience in Charleston that first acquainted Cusack with the power of oratory. It was one of the grounds for his decision to go into politics.

"If I shoot at the sun, I may hit a star."

This motto, borrowed from P. T. Barnum, was one of his political axioms. It landed him in the Chicago Board of Education in 1891 and he served there for six years, part of the time as acting president. He made a vigorous but losing fight to have religious teaching in the schools. In 1900 he was elected to Congress on the Democratic ticket as representative of a Chicago district. He served there two years.

Reason for Liking Salvation Army.

"Go to church. Whether it be to a cathedral, a synagogue or a mosque—go to church."

That motto is impressed on all the thousands of employes of the Thos. Cusack Co. At least it was so impressed while he was active head of the business. One of the monthly donations of this Roman Catholic millionaire goes to the Salvation Army. And there's a story to that.

It was in Vicksburg, Miss., in the late '80s. Once again the law was on the track of the painters. They had put in a big day of promiscuous sign painting and had waived the license payment. Having heard that the Constable was on their track they decided to separate and meet again in the next town.

Cusack was going down a street when he caught the glint of the Constable's star in the light of a street lamp. Coming up the street was a Salvation Army detachment on its way to its hall for evening services. There was the usual straggling line of followers, including a street beggar carrying his tin cup. It was an occasion for quick action. Cusack sidled up to the beggar, slipped a half dollar in his hand and took his cup. He marched into the hall with the Salvationists and took a front seat.

All went well until the Salvation Army captain singled the painter out and called upon him to tell other worshippers how he came to be converted. There was no way out.

Cusack arose and started to tell his story. Suddenly he was inter-

SECOND CONCERT FOR ICE FUND TODAY

Missouri Theater Orchestra Will Give Program for Benefit of Children.

CONTRIBUTIONS.

Previously acknowledged	$5153 70
Holmes Smith, 5440 Maple av.	5 00
Erwin Gemovsky, 2117 Carr street	1 00
Total	$5159 70

Two cash donations added $6 to the Post-Dispatch Free Ice for Babies' Milk Fund during the last week, making the total on hand $5159.70, and friends of the babies are eagerly co-operating with the Missouri Theater where Joseph Littau and his orchestra are giving a series of Sunday afternoon "pop" symphony concerts for the benefit of the fund, which is still $1400 short of the amount needed to meet the expenses of the past summer.

The second concert by Littau's Missouri Theater Orchestra will be given at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The program, which includes seven "request" selections from favorite operas and an organ solo by Milton Slosser, will be broadcast from Station KSD. Requests for numbers to be played at the concerts Oct. 19 and 26 should be mailed to Joseph Littau at the Missouri Theater as early as possible.

Twelve artists from the Symphony Orchestra have been added to the regular Missouri Theater Orchestra for the Sunday afternoon concerts, increasing its force to 34 members, and the programs will include classical and popular music according to Joseph Littau, orchestral director of the Missouri Theater. It is hoped that the music-loving friends of the babies will support the series which has undertaken to underwrite the Ice Fund deficit.

SYNODICAL AUXILIARY TO MEET

The Synodical Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church in Missouri, of which Mrs. L. L. Manning of University City, is president, will meet in Boonville, Oct. 22-24. Two conferences will be held on Christian education and ministerial relief and on synodical, presbyterial and congregational home missions. The synod in Missouri is composed of these presbyteroals: St. Louis, Upper Missouri, Potosi, Palmyra and Lafayette. There are 95 local auxiliaries in the synod with a total membership of 3555.

CUSACK PUTS SIGN OF TIMES TO WORK MADE MILLONS

rupted by a raucous cry of "Yaw, yaw, yaw," from the rear of the hall. He started again and there was another similar interruption from another quarter of the hall. This occurred a third time. Tom Cusack turned and scanned the congregation closely. In it he discovered three of his own painters. They had been the interrupters. Without seeming to recognize them he turned to the captain.

"I can't go on unless you throw those three ruffians out," he said The "ruffians" were speedily and not too gently ejected.

When Cusack got out of town he was still holding the cup. There were two quarters and three dimes in it which had not been there when he bought it for 50 cents from the beggar.

This experience put a soft spot for the Salvation Army in the Irish Catholic painter's heart. Hence the monthly contribution.

Found Politics Was Too Costly.

When Cusack went into Congress in 1900 his company was doing a business of $75,000 a year. When he came out of office two years later he found that in his absence the business had dwindled to $40,000 a year. He resolved to stay out of politics and rebuild the business.

In 1903 the American Tobacco Co. planned a nation-wide signboard campaign. No company in existence had sufficient capital to insure the execution of so big an order. So the American Tobacco Co. put new capital into Cusack's company and took over a controlling interest in it. Cusack retained a large block of the stock and remained as active head of the business. This arrangement continued until the American Tobacco Co. was dissolved by court order in 1912.

Since then a big impetus to the business has been the Outdoor Advertising Association, an organization composed of many of the big advertising agencies which recognize wall and signboard advertising as a medium to supplement newspaper and magazine advertising. The Cusack company is the selling agency for this organization.

Cusack is a widower. He has four sons and two daughters. All of the sons have executive positions with the Cusack company and it is understood that the New York syndicate which has acquired control of the business is friendly in its disposition toward the Cusack boys and that they will be retained so that the Cusack family will still be represented in the conduct of the biggest outdoor advertising concern in the world.

Just one more of the elder Cusack's mottoes:

"The boy who goes to work when he is through high school has a four-year start on the college man."

He applied this rule in the case of each of his sons.

WISCONSIN HIGH COURT JUSTICE FOR LA FOLLETTE

Charles H. Crownhart, Republican, Tells Why He Is for Senator and Against Coolidge.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Charles H. Crownhart, one of the justices of the Wisconsin Supreme Court, has announced his support of Senator La Follette for the presidency, in a statement just made public by La Follette-Wheeler headquarters in Chicago, as follows:

"I am supporting La Follette for President because, from a long personal acquaintance with him, I recognize his sincerity of purpose, his integrity, his love for the plain people, and his great ability. These characteristics are not only known to his personal friends, but are unchallenged by all fair-minded men who are familiar with the history of this country for the past 25 years. Again and again have they been proven in the forum of State and national politics. No one need apologize for his support of La Follette. He is untainted by scandal. He is uncorrupted by ambition or bad associations.

"La Follette's public record and his services to humanity are attested by wise laws enacted and advocated, as is shown by no other statesman of his day. Through laws which he sponsored, Wisconsin yields to no state in the Union. In banking no state can show a better record; none has better insurance laws, nor has honest insurance prospered more than here; but for the Esch-Cummins law, the railroads would be as they theretofore had been—exceedingly prosperous in their Wisconsin business, where they were honestly managed to render public service, instead of being robbed by rebates and exploited by Wall street gamblers; public utilities here are well regulated and prosperous, thier bonds commanding the highest market price; basic industries, manufcaturing and agriculture, in Wisconsin have high rank in the nation; taxes are low as elsewhere, and through fair income and inheritance rates, more equitably distributed.

Humanitarian Laws.

"Going along side by side with this exceptional prosperity under wise laws, efficiently enforced, in this State, has been enacted a code of moral and humaintarian laws, also fairly enforced, not equaled in this country. Here the first valid workingmen's compensation law was passed which carried promptly, compensation for industrial injuries—as high compensation as can be found in the world; nowhere are there better safety laws; child labor laws and laws for the regulation of female labor are adequate; and health laws have resulted in a death rate in this State not exceeded anywhere; strikes and lockouts are infrequent; law enforcement is better than the average in the country.

The electors of Wisconsin are free and untrammeled; corruption has been proscribed; the first complete primary law in this country has given them a free voice in public affairs; and money is no longer a controlling factor in our elections. Wisconsin was the first State to adopt the female amendment, which was advocated by La Follette long before it became popular to do so. Wisconsin was one of the first States to pay the soldiers of the late war a generous bonus for their patriotic service. This included both cash and educational opportunities, and was voted without a bond issue. Better highways, built on the pay-as-you-go plan, cannot be found in this country.

Wisconsin Schools.

"Wisconsin has a magnificent university, supported by taxation and untrammeled by donations from those who profit at the expense of Government. It has nine normal schools, and a complete high school and common school system. Besides, it has numerous colleges, trade schools and a complete system of vocational schools. Its percentage of illiteracy is low. It has been under La Follette' inspiration and leadership that these splendid results have been attained.

"Nationally his record is without reproach. He has been baffled and frustrated by corruption, political and financial at every turn but he has never surrendered. He has never taken to the side track—always he has gone forward—until now he is the one statesman of his time who is generally loved by the masses for the enemies he has made.

"I regard La Follette's attitude toward the Constitution and the courts as strictly ethical and worthy of candid consideration by every advocate of orderly government under the law. I think all Judges must admit their fallibility, as well as the fallibility of the Constitution and the laws thereunder. Law is a subject of growth, of constant development. Personally, I should welcome some plan by which justice would be more surely administered. If the Court makes a mistake, as they frequently do, as shown by reversals of their own decisions, or if a Constitution is rightly construed to deny to the people their well-considered wishes, there is no reason why a more simple, orderly process of changing the law to meet their wishes should not be developed. The Constitutions provide for their own amendment. It is simply absurd to treat as heresy a proposition to change legal processes of the law by constitutional amendment. No country in the world is so bound and tied by rigid laws as is this. Judges well may welcome some plan whereby they may be relieved from criticism when they are conscientiously bound to hold a law unconstitutional and when they know that unjust results will follow from their decisions.

RIGHT TO HANG SIGN ON LICENSE PLATE QUESTIONED

Automobile Registration Commissioner Believes Practice Is in Violation of State Law.

The appearance recently of several metal advertising and slogan signs hanging from the license plates on automobiles has given rise to question as to the legality of the practice in Missouri. The question assumes the more importance by reason of the fact that specialty firms are beginning to try to drum up business in advertising matter to be attached to license plates or to the supports thereof. Apparently it is figured that if attaching signs to the license plates themselves be against the law, the statute can be evaded by attaching the signs to the plate supports or to other parts of the car.

Holds It Is Illegal.

A. G. Steininger, commissioner of the Automobile Registration Division of the Secretary of State's department, at Jefferson City, several days has declared that the placing of such signs or tags, or even of a transparent license plate on front or rear of an automobile is contrary to law. Official opinion is cited to the effect that there is no doubt that any device or sign carrying any numbers is illegal.

Steininger has based his position, he says, the lawyers, on subsection E of section 13 of the State motor vehicle law, which reads:

"No person shall operate a motor vehicle or trailer on which there is displayed on the front or rear thereof any other plate, tag or placard bearing any number except the plate furnished by the commissioner or the placard herein authorized, nor shall there be displayed on any motor vehicle or

TEAMWORK IN DRIVING MEANS FEWER ACCIDENTS

Auto Drivers, Learning to Help Each Other in Possibly Dangerous Situations, Work for "Group Safety First."

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Motorists, it seems, are finally awakening to the fact that through teamwork in the driving of automobiles accidents and fatalities can be greatly lessened.

This is the result of a recent accident in which several cars were involved and for which several drivers were to blame. Required to make a sudden stop to avoid running over a pedestrian, a motorist stopped suddenly. The driver of the car behind, indignant and excited because the driver ahead had given no warning, rammed the rear of the car that had stopped so suddenly. Being trapped, the man behind him joined the collision, and the result was that the first driver's car was made to injure the pedestrian in spite of himself.

Either of the two other drivers could have helped the first driver in avoiding the accident, but they were not "teaming." Each was looking out for only his own interest—and to his own disadvantage seems, accidents are to be cut in two by the simple process of looking after their brothers' safety as well as their own.

Have you ever felt guilty of contributory negligence in driving your car? Or, to be specific, have you ever sounded your horn to warn another driver that someone else might collide with him?

Really to Blame for Death.

When told about the teamwork idea, one driver admitted he felt a certain responsibility for a fatality that in no way involved him technically. He had passed a street car when it was about to stop. He realized he was taking a chance at the time, for there was a possibility some one might have been running across the street in front of the street car with the idea of boarding it when it came to a dead stop. It happened that just such a possibility later became a reality, but the blame fell upon the driver of the car following. Led by the action of the driver of the first car, the driver of the second machine also tried to get by the street car before it stopped, succeeding only in fatally inuring the pedestrian.

Here was an instance in which one driver contributed to the carelessness of another. If the first driver had been sensible enough to stop, the accident could not have occurred.

Their Brothers' Keepers.

Teamwork long has been a feature of many a veteran's driving, but he hardly recognzed it as such. Countless accidents have been avoided by little acts of sanity by drivers who apparently had no particular interest in other drivers' problems. Therefore, it remains, it would seem, for the average driver to put the teamwork idea right up in first place among the features of the year.

Motorists are beginning to discover that they are their brothers' keepers. They have seen the results of urging their brothers to buy cars. When they bought, production was doubled and cars were cheaper for everyone. Now, it

An analysis of a large number of recent accidents reveals that many of them could have been prevented by drivers who were not technically involved. In many cases the law would not have aided in forcing these other drivers to co-operate, and the police were powerless to curb such contributory negligence. It seems, therefore, to be a matter of good will on the part of the motoring public if anything is to be accomplished in teamwork.

Motorists who are constantly looking out for themselves alone are now viewed as a menace, because modern motoring is a group matter and its safety is a matter

COMPLAINT ABOUT 'SILENT COP' HELD NOT WARRANTED

No Train Danger at Union and Lindell, It Is Said—Some Left Turn Bans Criticised.

Probably no one innovation in traffic control in St. Louis has caused as much difference of opinion as the installation of "silent policemen" at various street intersections. Even as they have realized that most of the "silent cops" offer needed protection to pedestrians crossing streets, and that they benefit motorists at certain intersections where traffic formerly was continually snarled up, motorists generally have complained of others as dangerous or unnecessary.

The most vehement complants have been made about the "silent cops" at Lindell and Union boulevards and those on Page boulevard and Maple avenue. The first has been alleged to be a menace to safety of motorists because of the railroad crossing at that intersection. Motorists say they have been caught on the tracks between the gates as trains were approaching and greatly alarmed, and that often the combination of "silent cop" and crossing gates has caused traffic jams extending as far back on Union boulevard as Portland place.

At Lindell and Union.

However, both Matt Morse, manager of the Automobile Club of Missouri, and Philip H. Brockman, head of the Police Board and of the Traffic Council, have concluded, after investigation, that the danger at this point is only apparent, not real. Control of all trains approaching the crossing is completely in the hands of the towerman, who also has at his command

Most Dangerous of Auto Races To Be Held Thanksgiving Day

Steep Grades and Hairpin Curves on Ascot Course

A RACE that is expected to prove the most perilous ever run by automobiles is that scheduled for Thanksgiving day over the new hill course of the Ascot Speedway Association in California.

The contesting cars will make 50 circuits of the five-mile course, which includes grades computed to be from two to 36 per cent, as well as three hairpin turns. As shown on the accompanying contour map of the course, in the first mile there is a 12 per cent grade up to a hairpin curve, then a very steep drop. In the second mile there is a sharp rise to a hairpin turn, then a steep down grade. The third mile has a hard up grade, then a level stretch and a rise to a hairpin curve, then a 30 per cent drop. The fourth mile begins with a two per cent incline and the rest of the course is level, including part of the regular track.

If the race is held as planned, it will be a terrific test of car stamina and brakes as well as drivers' courage and coolness in tight places.

News dispatches from California state that prizes aggregating $52,000, with a gold cup said to be worth $7000, have been offered for this contest., which will revive road racing in the State. It is only because the entire course is within the property of the Ascot Association that such a race is possible.

The rules set for the race limit starters to 30. If more than that number of entries are received, there will be elimination trials to cut the field down to the stipulated 30 contestants. It is hoped to have

ARRESTS ON ROAD FROM ST. PETERS TO ST. CHARLES

Three Deputies Watching State Highway—Citizens of St. Peters Deny They Are Responsible.

Complaints have been numerous that motorists are being arrested arbitrarily as speeders on the concrete highway that stretches across St. Charles County. There also have been reports that citizens of St. Peters were responsible for the strictness of the arresting deputies. The charges are denied by Sheriff Grothe, of St. Charles, and residents of St. Peters. The one fact about which there seems to be agreement is that if a motorist steps on the accelerator until he is "hitting 50," he is likely to go before a Justice of the Peace, who figures that a $5 fine and $16.50 costs about fits the case.

Gus Vahlkamp, attorney for the Automobile Club of Missouri, some time ago conferred with the Sheriff and prosecutor at St. Charles.

Order Against Fee-Grabbing.

"The Sheriff told me," he said, "that at that time he had one deputy riding the concrete and had told him that he was to arrest only flagrant violators of the State motor vehicle law, also that he was not to make a fee-grabbing job of it. He said his orders were not to make arrests, unless a motorist was running 35 miles an hour or faster or was doing something dangerous to others on the road. Actually, he said, the deputy had not been arresting anyone unless he was doing better than 45 miles an hour, and was only stopping and warning those who were running 40 to 45. The Sheriff further told me that if he found the deputy was disregarding those orders, he would put someone in his place.

"The Prosecuting Attorney said

4 Wheel Brakes - Balloon Tires

You Will Not Be Asked to Buy!

Here is the most unusual and extraordinary new car announcement ever made.

It is not about a car that is going to be built—it is here, now!

It does not carry a "come-on" price, to be raised when we get into production. Neither does it carry a fictitious price concealing a trading allowance. It is priced for the man who wants one hundred cents in value for every dollar he spends and who is smart enough to know when he is being kidded about the value of his used automobile.

Notwithstanding this startling list price the new Auburn 8-In-Line comes from the factory fully equipt with bumper, automatic windshield wiper, rear vision mirror, motometer and bar cap, nickel plated radiator, cowl lights, cowl ventilator, gasoline gauge on the dash, clock on closed models, approved transmission lock, kick plates, 4 snubbers, disc wheels, balloon tires, 4-wheel brakes, spare tire with drum type cover and stop light. All on the car when you get it—Only freight and tax to be added. We are in production now—the car is here—ready to be seen, ready to be driven, ready for deliveries.

If this car doesn't sell itself—we won't try to.

That's how good this new Auburn 8-In-Line is.

That's how much confidence we have in it.

This offer to drive it is open to everybody—without the slightest obligation to anyone. No matter what car you now drive—no matter if you bought a new car yesterday—you owe it to yourself to take the wheel of this new Auburn 8-In-Line. Competitors—distributors, dealers and salesmen are especially invited to drive this car.

It's a Sensation—! Latest, Greatest Eight See For Yourself Today

We are not going to tell you in a loud bass voice that this new Auburn 8-In-Line will do 75 miles an hour—

Or tell you it takes the steepest hills in high with magic smoothness—

Or tell you it will crawl along at less than a mile an hour in traffic.

What this car is and can do we will leave to the car itself to tell you—and show you. It can well speak for itself—to anybody, any day and on any road,—in competition with any car at any price.

We are going to tell you—that it has 4-wheel brakes;

That it has genuine full size balloon tires.

Also to continue part of the things we want to tell you—that the springs have 12 leaves—you can count them—And in addition 4 snubbers are standard equipment.

That the frame underneath the Auburn 8-In-Line is the strongest ever built and has a safety factor of five; (ask any engineer how much greater this is than ordinary cars).

That, as a car to drive you never drove its equal. You can steer it safely through sand at high speed with only your thumb and forefinger of one hand on the wheel;

That, in the balance of its remarkable motor and in the road balance of the car itself, there is nothing to compare; Again let us invite you to drive it as that is the only way you can appreciate the performance of this new Auburn.

That the 8-In-Line sedan has an aluminum body, cork-padded next to the frame and between the fenders—absolutely without rumble, 124" wheelbase.

That, on open models a permanent top lined with whip-cord is standard and a hidden metal backing keeps it forever in shape. Side curtains of double texture material are hand-made and tailored to the job, carried in a compartment back of the front seat.

An economical installation of glass sides gives California top appearance and the comfort of a closed car. We simply poured quality into the new Auburn 8-In-Line because we believe the public is exasperated, fed up, with cheaply built cars that are slopped out in a hurry by big-production methods.

You never have heard an Auburn owner complain about his car and you can bet your bottom dollar you will never hear a kick about this new Auburn 8-In-Line.

The men who own the Auburn factory have all the money they need and their families will ever need—so they get a real pleasure out of producing exceptionally fine automobiles.

The result is—the latest, greatest, eight—the latest Auburn.

See it—that's all we ask—come today and drive it.

FIGHT ON COMPULSORY INSURANCE RENEWED

Effort Being Made to Get Law Enacted in Some State as a Start.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Another struggle over compulsory insurance proposals is beginning, and is likely to be carried on in a number of the states this Fall and Winter. Despite failure of compulsory insurance acts to pass in the legislatures of five states last year, a determined effort is being made to get a start on such legislation by obtaining enactment of a bill in some state.

The laws proposed would require all automobile, truck and bus owners to take out liability insurance. In some of the measures, there also is a requirement that property damage insurance be taken out.

While there is general agreement that by such laws the victims of irresponsible motor vehicle owners would be sure of compensation for personal injury or property damage, yet there is bitter difference of opinion as to the desirability of such compulsory legislation and over a number of other points.

Autumn Touring Full of Delights in Wisconsin

Extension of Trip Into Upper Michigan Adds Greatly to Enjoyment of Good Roads and Pretty Country.

"Mine eyes have seen the glory
Of the country in a Ford,
They have sighted hill and forest
And never once were bored."
R. ARBRECOUR,
Log of the Road.

This is an account of a drive through Wisconsin and Upper Michigan, made when early autumn had touched that land with color last year. The route is only one of many combinations of roads for delightful fall driving in that picturesque district, but typical. The driver on this expedition was a reporter on vacation, who couldn't leave his pencil behind, but made notes of mileage and cost.

Milwaukee, whose sparkling lakeshore suburbs are more noticeable than its breweries and La Follette leanings, was the base of the journey. By way of introduction, however, the drive was by way of the concrete road to Indianapolis; good (mostly), bad and indifferent Indiana rock roads to Valparaiso, and concrete to Chicago and Milwaukee. Chicago may be reached directly by any one of half a dozen combinations of Illinois concrete.

Interesting Going.

Milwaukee to Fond du Lac, so named because it is at the bottom or lower end of Lake Winnebago, was an early morning's jaunt on concrete. Then the route was over gravel, through green and fertile Wisconsin hills, with a stop at Elkhart Lake, a busy resort, and north to Green Bay. The calendar said Sept. 8, but the Saturday night movie crowds wore overcoats and shops displayed mackinaws. But the day-time sun made the air different. Green Bay is a clean little city, redolent of the northern lumber industry.

Straight to the north the route ran on Wisconsin highways 15 and 38, made of good gravel. The adventurers turned west at Pembine on County Trunk M. All this brought wild, rugged country, especially on the county trunk. Mountainous hills, sparkling upland lakes, vast areas of cutover lands and some forests interchanged constantly, but there was little indication of habitation.

More Rugged Country.

A swing east was made from Florence, Wis., to Iron Mountain, Mich., where the Ford Motor Co. was starting a big new plant. Then north against on Michigan routes 12 and 45, good gravel and rock, turning east at Humboldt, soon after which an excellent asphalt pavement was encountered on route 15, through Ispheming to Marquette, on Lake Superior. This was more rugged country, with numerous clear lakes on the Iron Mountain end and filled with iron mines on the northern end. Marquette is an active town with characteristics that make it seem almost foreign to one living as far away as St. Louis. It is the center of a resort region.

Route 15 was followed around back to Escanaba on Green Bay, notable for the traveler chiefly because of a wide main street, good hotel and the recollection of fame the town achieved through the ruse of the "fever girl." Routes 12 and 15, partly smooth paved, led to the twin lumber cities of Menominee, Mich., and Marinette, Wis. Wisconsin 15 led back to Green Bay and the beginning of a 600-mile stretch of concrete unbroken all the way home save in unprogressive towns. This itinerary lay through the remarkably clean and bright cities, Appleton, Menasha (where many fraternity magazines are published), Neenah (Menasha's twin), Oshkosh and Fond du Lac, thence to Milwaukee and Chicago.

Good Hotels Plentiful.

One of the best features of the trip, from the viewpoint of comfort, was constituted by the good hotels. Overnight stops, always in pleasant surroundings, were made at Elkhart Lake, Green Bay, Iron Mountain and Escanaba, not forgetting Milwaukee and the Windy Metropolis. Fond du Lac and Marquette would have made good stopping places, too.

Total mileage for the trip was 1963, accomplished in 85 hours on the road. Only 77 gallons of gasoline was used, average consumption being 1 gallon to 25½ miles.

And the 14-day round of pleasure cost the driver (not counting his partner's food and lodging) $141.67! The car portion was $51.76. The items were:

*Hotels	$20.00
Meals	25.29
Tips	2.10
Theater, etc.	18.90
Camera films	4.50
Miscellaneous	13.77
Car Storage	5.25
Auto:
Gasoline	12.15
Oil	8.00
Tips	1.05
Tire	6.90
Two tubes	4.89
Tire repairs	1.50
Grease	.55
Miscellaneous	16.72

*Had 5 nights free lodging.
Can't remember how this was so cheap.
Eight nights in garages.

But the driver was too ambitious driving too rapidly much of the distance, and the car just did get home. The next day it was gasping—prescription, overhauling motor, rear axle, etc., fee, $90.

Like all good tours, this one suggested another—a drive through the heart of northern Wisconsin on Route 13 over a new road reported to be smooth as a table and cut for miles straight through the heart of virgin forests, thence to Duluth, Minn., and perhaps back to Chicago or Detroit on a steamer or cross country to St. Paul and home on a river boat.

WHY CITY PAVEMENT CRUMBLING IS NOT DUE ALWAYS TO AUTOMOBILES

ONE reason why pavements in cities do not stand up under traffic as they should was self-evident at 11:55 o'clock Wednesday morning on Lindell boulevard, when a truck and trailer hauling a huge steel plate left a track for all to see.

The trailer was of wood, with steel tires that were not more than four inches wide. So heavy was the load that the trailer could be heard creaking and groaning a block away.

Wherever truck and trailer went they left a plainly marked white track, formed by pulverization of the surface of the pavement.

of group consciousness and effort. It is pointed out that when a motorist was alone on the highways of 25 years ago he could well afford to consider himself alone, but that nowadays he has to consider the fact that in looking out for himself he may be putting some other driver at a great disadvantage.

Both Were Responsible.

One of the recent accidents analyzed by the writer showed that when a driver turned out to avoid hitting a road obstruction which he had not noticed until the last moment, he placed his car in the path of a machine that was trying to pass him. The other driver in trying to pass had not only failed to sound his horn, but had overlooked the possibility that the man ahead might be obliged to swing over to the left side of the road. Each driver was playing his own game and each failed. Teamwork would have prevented something that got front page notice in the newspapers.

Motorists who will show the best records in the next few years will be those who show the cleanest records, and their records cannot be truly clean without due consideration for teamwork. As one official puts it, "We are all out to beat our own mistakes. Our mistakes are lined up against us, not individually, but in team fashion. Only teamwork in safety will give us the victory."

There is a lot of sound reason in this. If you analyze the thought behind it carefully you will see how it applies to your own motoring.

Use Second on Steep Hills.

Many accidents are the direct result of the failure of drivers to shift into second gear when descending steep and dangerous hills. It is a group mistake in judgment that often conquers the individual motorist who is so unfortunate as to be caught in the way of a car that cannot be stopped. To combat such carelessness, it is necessary for every conscientious motorist to slow down at the top of each steep hill and shift into second, no matter how many cars are following and no matter how angry their drivers appear to be at the delay.

Many fail to appreciate other people's courtesy and assistance, but no team is a success if one player quits because the others fail to throw bouquets at him. Motorists must learn this.

Almost any driver will observe many opportunities to help others to be more careful. When he plays the game, that's teamwork. Safety for individual motorists will not do. There must be safety for all.

It may be safe for the man with the big car and the powerful brakes to attempt to pass everything on hills, but not necessarily for those who are on the road with him. Make it safe for everybody, however, and he is automatically safe.

The problem is in developing this group safety. It begins with a consciousness of teamwork. Then action.

Drives From the Pacific Coast to Be Ditched By Mud on Missouri Road

THE feasibility of a seven-day motoring schedule from Los Angeles to St. Louis has just been demonstrated by Mr. and Mrs. John J. Daly of Redlands, Cal., who made the trip in four hours less than a week and would have made it in 15 hours less than a week but for rain and mud in Missouri.

They started at Redlands, which is 68 miles from Los Angeles, but their performance may be considered as applying to Los Angeles, destination or starting point of most coast tourists.

Their itinerary, as planned, contemplated eight days' driving to St. Louis, but on every day except the last they exceeded their intended mileage.

420 Miles in One Day.

The start was made Sunday morning at 8 o'clock. The route was the National Old Trails. Sunday traffic impeded them, so they made only 259 miles that day, although the California roads were perfect. Monday, although the desert roads are not at their best at this season, they made 316 miles to the center of Arizona. Tuesday, under the same conditions, they made 310 miles through the remainder of Arizona and part of New Mexico. The roads in New Mexico were not as good as those in Arizona and the distance covered was only 292 miles.

Colorado roads were the best they had encountered since leaving California and they made 364 miles on Thursday in Colorado and Western Kansas. The peak performance of 420 miles was Friday crossing Kansas, in spite of a profusion of chuck holes in the roads. There was encouragement to speed in the rain clouds which pursued them all day, but did not overtake them.

Then Missouri Mud.

The stop Friday night at Kansas City, however, gave the clouds a chance to get ahead of them and the result was rain all the way to St. Louis.

Nine miles east of Columbia they had their only mishap. Skimming along a stretch of gravel in a blinding rain at 35 miles an hour, they came suddenly to the end of the gravel, on a curve, and their machine, an Oakland touring car, skidded over an eight-foot embankment into a ditch.

Into the Ditch Without Damage.

Daly, at the wheel, when he applied the four-wheel brakes and felt the skid, swung so as ot strike the ditch squarely and thus averted an upset. The machine tipped but righted itself and settled into the mud with the top about even with the roadbed. He was able to back up the ditch under his own power about a hundred yards to a point where a service car with a derrick could hoist his front end so that, with its help, he could climb out. The car was not damaged.

That cost a delay of three hours and the farther they went the worse the roads became. The best they could do was 10 miles an hour in second gear. They were 11 hours making the last 130 miles into St. Louis.

Instead of arriving at 5 p. m. Saturday, as their revised schedule called for, it was 4 o'clock Sunday morning when they reached the Post-Dispatch Building. After visiting friends at Lebanon, Ill., they proceeded to Chicago.

The car used in the seven days 113 gallons of gasoline at a cost of $23.27, and four gallons and three quarts of oil, including two drainings, at a cost of $6.50. Tire trouble was confined to four punctures in one afternoon.

WILLYS-KNIGHT ADDS 2 MODELS

Business Coupe and Brougham on Sleeve-Valve Engined Chassis.

Two new Willys-Knight models —a business coupe and a brougham—have just been announced. Both have the standard Willys-Knight sleeve-valve engine with Lanchester balancer to abolish vibration.

The coupe has steel body finished in blue lackuer, with black molding lines and landau type top, upholstery of blue leather, one-piece windshield and large rear deck carrying space.

The brougham has two-tone finish in dust proof gray and beaver brown, with black molding lines and black top, while the interior is done in velvet. The appointments are unusually lavish.

OBSERVATIONS.

It has been reasserted that the use of alcohol as a beverage, however moderate the habit, shortens life. Considering the frequent demonstration of the fact on the highways of the country this news comes as a sort of anti-climax.

John Smith and His Car

by FREDERICK RUSSELL

HOME AGAIN.

BECAUSE we had arrived home from our trip a full day ahead of schedule Smith seemed disappointed. He said we might just as well have communed with Nature another day, but I suspect that he was secretly pleased at having saved another hotel bill. But when he realized that the car had been driven 1200 miles with nothing more than the ordinary attention, he soon admitted that he could make good use of the extra day to give the car the thorough inspection which it needed.

Some things on a car which need attention are not mentioned in the instruction books nor on the oiling charts. Of these perhaps the body bolts are the most important — and most neglected—of the lot. A view of the car from underneath showed Smith plainly where these were located; and he could see by the small number of them that unless they were always kept tightened body rattles would surely develop.

"I've tightened one of these bolts," he called to me from under the car, "but the others are rusty and I can't budge them."

I told him that if he made it a rule to squirt a little oil over them now and then they wouldn't get rusty and he could tighten them when necessary with little trouble. The only thing to do when they have gotten rusty is to put kerosene oil on them and try tightening them later.

"While you're under there," I suggested, "see if any of those studs around the rear axle housing need tightening. Then look over your brake rods and examine carefully the clevises and pins which fasten the rods to the levers. The brake assembly is so exposed that it gets all the dirt and water from the road and the rust that accumulates may cause the brakes to fail you when you need them most.

"You will notice, too, that each connection is held in place only by a cotter pin. The wheels of the car—which you had better examine, too—are first fastened with a nut and then the nut is secured by a cotter pin so that it can't turn. There is double protection, therefore, against the possibility of a wheel coming off. But the brake rods have no such protection, that's why you've got to watch them.

"What I say about cotter pins here is true of the car in general. You will find them all over. They are what you might call the night watchmen of the car designed to keep things from coming loose. But I presume you have heard of cases where night watchmen have gone to sleep on the job."

Before Smith was through oiling and tightening things under the car he had sprayed some kerosene oil over the front shackles of the rear springs. His car is of the Hotchkiss-drive type, which means that the forward motion of the wheels is transmitted to the body through the rear springs, instead of by means of rods or braces. Where the rear springs are given this extra work to do the shackles —the front ones in particular— must be kept well oiled. If a little rust collects between the shackle and the bushing or the nut there will be a constant grating noise that will sound for all the world like rear-end trouble.

"There are enough things loose under there to keep me busy for the morning," Smith declared, scrambling to his feet, his face bearing the satisfied expression of a motorist who is putting in his spare time profitably. "But before I go under again I'd like to straighten out this matter of the Hotchkiss drive. You're trying to tell me that the drive is taken by the rear springs. My understanding of the matter is that the wheels attend to that little job and the body of the car just follows along naturally."

"That's the way it appears," I replied, "but it isn't so. Take the drive rods of a car that is not designed for Hotchkiss drive and see what happens when you let in the clutch. The body will tend to drag after the wheels instead of following along with them, and before very long things will loosen up and break. The forward motion of the unsprung weight (the wheels, axles, differential, etc.) has got to be transmitted to the sprung weight (the rest of the car) either through rods (braces) or through sime-elliptic or full elliptic springs (carriage springs) running parallel with the frame of the car. Which drive is best and which best takes care of the 'torque,' the twisting motion imparted to the car by the engine, is a matter of engineering opinion. The thing to do is to understand the particular drive of your car and cater to it."

Smith went down under the car a more enlightened car owner. It was just another evidence to him what an interesting thing a motor car is and how complicated it is in spite of the service it willingly renders even with neglect and abuse.

Next Week—TROUBLE.

155 RAILWAYS NOW USE MOTOR BUS LINES

Spend More Than $8,000,000 for Busses in Year, Survey Shows.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Electric railways are now operating nearly 2000 motorbuses as feeders and extensions of their trolley lines, Bus Transportation reports.

A nation-wide survey shows 155 railways in the bus field, 55 more than at this time last year, when 100 trolley companies operated 762 buses. This indicates an investment of more than $8,000,000 made during the year for buses by electric railways.

Bus routes totaling 1336 miles have been added, and railway-owned buses are now running on 2405 miles of highway in the United States and Canada. The largest bus fleet in the country is that of the Public Service Railways of Newark, N. J., which, through its subsidiary, the Public Service Transportation Co., operates more than 600 buses.

Bus service has been installed or extended by electric railways during the year in Los Angeles and Oakland, Cal.; Washington, D. C.; Baltimore, Md.; Trenton, N. J.; Rock Island, Ill.; Dubuque, Ia.; Jamestown, N. Y.; Springfield, Ill.; Beaumont, Tex.; Detroit, Mich.; Birmingham, Ala.; Vicksburg, Miss., and Salt Lake City, Utah.

The village of Colonie in New York State has raised its auto speed limit to 30 miles an hour. It had previously extracted a hard-earned dollar from many an unfortunate motorist who was so unlucky as to pass through the town.

AUTOMOBILE FATALITY FOR EVERY 4,000,000 MILES OF CAR DRIVING

MOST automobile driving is careful and considerate, declares George H. Pride, of the Traffic Planning and Safety Committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

"There were approximately 16,000 motor fatalities last year," Pride says. "The average annual mileage of a motor vehicle is estimated at 5000, applying this to the 15,000,000 cars and trucks registered, gives a total of 75,000,000,000 car miles. From these figures it appears that there is a motor fatality on the average for every 4,000,000 miles of car driving."

On Auto Row

Drives 1606 Miles Without Stop.

C. F. ("OUTDOOR") FRANKLIN has just driven 1606 miles in a Buick "Standard Six", from Blaine, Can., to Tiajuana, Mexico, without a relief driver and without leaving the wheel or stopping the car. He was driving continuously for nearly 55 hours, from 8 a. m. Monday, Sept. 22, until 2:40 p. m., Wednesday, Sept. 24. He reported using a pint of water to fill the radiator at the end of the run and an average of 18 miles to the gallon of gasoline. Newspapermen, who checked the run, reported that neither motor nor car stopped running all the 1606 miles.

Factory Officials Here.

S. E. Ackerman, sales manager of the Franklin factory, and M. H. Carter, district sales manager, visited the Franklin Motor Car Co. of St. Louis the past week.

Beats Mountain Climb Record.

Driving one of the new high-powered series 10 Franklin sedans with two passengers, Ben Hammond of San Francisco has just set a new record for climbing Mt. Diable, in California, covering the 12 miles of mountain dirt road in 25 minutes and 17 seconds, breaking the former record of 26 minutes and 45 seconds, made by an open touring car. He drove a sedan because 87 per cent of Franklin car sales are of closed models.

To Continue Building Sixes.

A positive statement that the Rickenbacker Motor Co. intends to continue to build its six-cylinder models as well as its new eights is made by B. F. Everitt, president of the Rickenbacker Motor Co. He also says that the factory expects to build three sixes for every eight.

Make Closed Cars of Open Ones.

Growing realization of the fact that it no longer is necessary to tie up an open car in chilly weather or suffer discomfort in one is evidenced by the increasing demand for Rex inclosures reported by the Weber Implement and Automobile Co. With their glass windows, these inclosures transform an open car into one having all the comfort and convenience of the closed models.

Early Closing Movement.

There is a movement on Auto Row to bring about earlier closing of used car departments. The suggestion now being discussed is that they close at 6 p. m. week days and 1 p. m. Sundays. At present the used car departments remain open until 9 and 10 o'clock week-daynights and all day Sunday.

New Branch Manager Named.

Edmund S. Mills formerly with the factory at Ardmore, Pan., has been appointed manager of the Autocar truck factory branch in St. Louis. He succeeds John H. Mack, who goes to New York City to take a position as special factory representative.

Halsey Visits Auto Show.

Among the visitors to the St. Louis closed car show was O. L. Halsey, formerly president of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, but now Cadillac distributor in Boston.

Fast Touring Trip to Michigan.

An average speed of 32 miles an hour, and 14.4 miles to the gallon of gasoline, is reported by E. Anson More, president of the More Automobile Co., in a recent run of 724 miles in a Marmon touring car from St. Louis to Northport Point, Mich. He made the trip in 34 hours and 43 minutes elapsed time, leaving St. Louis at 4:30 a. m., covering 575 miles by 1 a. m. the next day and reaching his destination at 3 p. m. It took only seven and one-half hours to cover the first 300 miles.

Fast Run Up Mt. Wilson.

A Star touring car has just climbed Mt. Wilson, California, in 28 minutes flat, or within 2 minutes and 11.25 seconds of the record recently established by a Chrysler six. This steep, winding, treacherous grade is nine miles long.

Air Brakes on These Busses.

Air brakes are used on all four wheels of a new series of International six-cylinder busses. The four basic models carry 12 to 32 passengers.

Nine-Year-Old Car Still Good.

The original enamel finish and upholstery are still on a 1915 Dodge touring car that Andrew P. Fischer, 2626 Michigan avenue, has just traded in for a new Dodge with the Tate Motor Co., Inc. The car, which still looks well and basically is the same as today's Dodges, was bought by Fischer March 1, 1915, from the local Dodge sales organization. It is being exhibited at the Tate Co.'s showrooms.

Erecting New Building.

The West Side Buick Auto Co. is erecting a new building at McPherson avenue and Kingshighway. The building will be two stories high, will have a floor area of 26,000 square feet, and will be of reinforced concrete. It is to be ready for occupancy by Dec. 15.

Tate Back After Long Sickness.

Frank R. Tate, head of the Tate Motor Co., Inc., is back at his desk after an illness of nine weeks.

Car for University City Police.

The University City Police Department has just bought an Olds touring car from the De Luxe Automobile Co.

NEW DODGE BUS IS DRIVEN HERE

Sedan Type Vehicle Is Feature of Tate Company's Own Auto Show.

A feature of the Dodge car show which the Tate Motor Car, Inc., has been holding all week in its new building at Washington and Garrison avenues, is an 18-passenger sedan bus, powered with the regular Dodge six-cylinder engine, capable of 45 miles an hour, and made by Graham Brothers. This is of the more interest because the Graham concern has just become a division of Dodge Brothers, which have had the exclusive marketing of Graham trucks and commercial car bodies since 1921. This bus was driven to St. Louis from the Graham factory at Evansville, Ind.

There was a large attendance at the Dodge car show all week. So many were the flowers sent to the Tate company by friends in private and business life, that its showrooms and offices looked like a conservatory. That the show attracted buyers as well as friendly "lookers" was indicated by the sale of 16 Dodge cars the first two day.

COMMITTEES ON AUTO CAMP TO BE APPOINTED SOON

Committees to make effective the decision reached Monday night by representatives of civic organizations, to find ways and means to give St. Louis a real motor tourists' camp in place of the inadequate one in Forest Park, will be appointed as soon as all business connected with the automobile show has been disposed of.

Frank W. Bradley, who was appointed chairman of the Associated Clubs' Tourist Camp Committee, said yesterday that Monday's meeting was adjourned subject to his call and that he would call another meeting of civic organizations within two weeks.

The consensus of club representatives who attended Monday's meeting was that the camp was anything but a credit to St. Louis and that it should be replaced with a good one as soon as possible. It also was felt that the camp should be conducted by the city, should be of the pay variety and should be conducted by the city.

TRIP TO STEELVILLE AND MERAMEC SPRINGS FINE FOR WEEK END

AN interesting week-end trip from St. Louis is via Union and Cuba, Mo., to Steelville, then back to Cuba, and over the State highway to St. James and down to Meramec Springs. Walter Prack of the Ward Motor Co., who has just made it, reports that the road from Cuba to Steelville is all gravel and very good going through very pretty country and that the road from St. James to Meramec Springs also is good.

He noticed a number of tourist camps, some of them very good. There is considerable game in the woods back from Steelville, he reports, and one day he saw 15 wild turkeys. Prack found the direct road from St. Louis to St. James very fair, somewhat rough in places, but fine in comparison with the roads of former years. He came from Steelville in a Maxwell sedan without shifting gears.

100-HOUR NONSTOP RUN BY CHEVROLET

A Chevrolet stock touring car on Tuesday began a 100-hour non-stop economy and endurance run, starting from the Big Four Auto Co., 2224 South Jefferson avenue. The car was driven by four employes of the firm.

Arrangements were made for checking the gasoline and oil consumption. Similar non-stop runs were held at the same time by Chevrolet distributors and dealers all over the country.

The car covered 1545 miles in the first 76 hours to 1 o'clock Friday afternoon, using 57 gallons of gasoline, 2 quarts of oil and 2 quarts of water. It averaged 27.1 miles to the gallon and was running at an average speed of 20.6 miles an hour. There was no mechanical or tire trouble.

Trend in Auto Industry Illustrated by Experience of Hup Distributor.

The trend in the automobile industry toward putting distributor and dealer organizations on a sound basis is illustrated by the Weber Implement and Automobile Co., which is distributor of Hup cars in the St. Louis district.

Organized in 1902 as the Weber Implement Co., this firm became interested in automobiles in 1910 and in 1914 became Hup distributor. For years it had the usual sales franchise, better protected in some ways than many others, but not on a permanent basis. Now, however, it has a permanent contract to distribute Hup cars, a contract that runs continuously. It no longer has anything to debate with the factory at the beginning of each year, except necessary revisions of the schedule of cars to be assigned to it. In turn, the firm has made the same kind of a contract with its own Hup dealers.

The officers of the Weber Implement and Automobile Co. are George Weber, president; Albert Weber, vice president, and Edward A. Koenig, secretary.

Seizing Cars Carrying Liquor Causes Protest

Auto Dealers in Maryland Starting Movement Against Ruling That Endangers Time Payment Liens.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 11.—Plans to start a nation-wide agitation of protest against confiscation of automobiles seized when engaged in the liquor traffic are being made by the Baltimore Trade Association. The association is acting on an announcement by A. W. W. Woodcock, United States District Attorney, that any automobile found carrying illegal liquor will be confiscated and the entire proceeds will be turned over to the United States Treasury under a miscellaneous income item, regardless of whether there are any liens against the motor car.

This means that if an automobile dealer or a finance company has payments due from the owner of the machine under a conditional sales contract of chattel mortgage the security for the balance of the payments is lost if the car is found carrying illicit liquor.

Public Also Affected.

That is the blow dealt the commercial men, and it is a hard one, but the blow dealt the public will be equally as hard. Quite frequently cars are stolen for use in the transportation of liquor. Under the ruling, if a stolen car is found carrying liquor, it will be confiscated and sold and the legitimate owner of the machine will receive nothing from the sale.

Further, the public will be affected in a larger degree by the effect the ruling will have on the finance companies. It has been established that upward of 80 per cent of the automobiles purchased annually are obtained through the partial-payment plan. It will be a natural consequence that the finance companies will increase their rates to pay for the additional risk if the new ruling holds.

Court Fight, if Necessary.

Letters were sent out to nationally influential associations and periodicals. Answers from these have indicated that their weight will be placed back of an effort to have the ruling repealed.

According to the investigation of the trade association, the United States Prohibition Commissioner, who has made the order general, does not obtain his authority for the action from the Volstead act, but has gone back to the provisions of the old revenue law, which did not permit the allowance of liens. This law was enacted, it is said, to meet an entirely different condition before the Volstead act went into effect.

HARD HILLS OF PAST EASY NOW

New "Eight-in-Line" Car Does Things Never Dreamed of a Decade Ago.

Progress in automobile design and construction is exemplified by the experiences of veteran automobile company officials and salesmen in St. Louis. For instance, the other day George Walde, vice president of the Mound City Auto Co., who has had 17 years' experience in the business, was taking the new Auburn "Eight-in-Line" car on one of its first drives in this city.

Going through Forest Park Walde came to a hill where demonstrations in high sold many cars years ago. There he recalled that just 10 years ago he sold a Jackson car by starting in high at the bottom at 17 miles an hour and reaching the top without shifting.

This time he started in high from a standstill at the bottom and went over the top in the Auburn Eight at 29 miles an hour.

Progress in motor car engineering is further shown by the way in which the Auburn Eight can crawl along in high. Last week it showed that it could run at less than one mile per hour and then in one-quarter block accelerate to 30 miles per hour. It proved also it had speed and could do things in high one wouldn't have dreamed possible years ago.

trailer a placard, sign or tag bearing the words 'License Lost' or 'License Applied for,' or words of similar import, as a substitute for such number plates or such placard." (In the foregoing section the "plate furnished by the commissioner" is the regular State license plate. The reference to "the placard herein authorized" is to a placard or certificate the commissioner may issue to dealers for use on motor vehicles in transit from factory or distributing point.)

Steininger has been positive in his belief that the law clearly forbids placing of other plates or tags of any nature anywhere on front or rear of cars.

Another Debatable Point.

Another clause of the State motor vehicle law that would be argued if the matter was taken to court for a decision would be subsection C of section 13, which reads:

"Every motor vehicle or trailer shall at all times have displayed the registration plates issued by the Commissioner, entirely unobscured, unobstructed, all parts thereof plainly visible and kept reasonably clean, and so fastened as not to swing. On all motor vehicles on plate shall be displayed on the front and the other on the rear of such motor vehicle, not less than 8 nor more than 48 inches above the ground, except that on trailers, motor cycles and motor tricycles one plate shall be so displayed on the rear thereof."

Legal opinion is that somewhat would depend on how the court construed the provision in the law that the plates shall be entirely unobscured and unobstructed.

How Court Might View It.

"There is reason," said one lawyer, "to believe that the court might well rule that the intent of the Legislature was that there should be nothing on front or rear of an automobile that might in any way whatever tend to cause confusion as to the numbers on a license. Certainly there is reason to hold that advertising matter easily might tend to obscure or obstruct quick grasping of the license numbers in case of a car fleeing the scene of an accident.

"In 1911, the Missouri Supreme Court decided that where a State law requires the display by motor vehicles of identification numbers a city ordinance requiring further numbers was void. In that decision the court held that the presence on a rapidly moving vehicle of two or more identification numbers, between which observers must choose, and which must themselves be identified or distinguished from each other, could have no other effect than, in many instances, to defeat the very purpose for which such numbers are required to be attached to the vehicle.

"This would indicate that at that time, at least, the court was disposed to construe the law in accordance with Commissioner Steininger's position.

"There is good reason to believe the court would rule against any signs bearing numbers that were placed on a car's front or rear in addition to the regular State plates. There also would be ground for an attempt to get a similar ruling against any signs on front or rear of a car.

"Certainly, in view of the tendency to put city license plates with the State plates, to say nothing of automobile club emblems on the radiators, there should be nothing else on or near a license plate that might confuse observers in cases where it was vital that the license numbers be accurately reported to the authorities."

Goes Abroad on Truck Mission.

M. L. Pulcher, president of the Federal Motor Truck Co., has gone to Europe to introduce the new Federal speed truck with Willys-Knight sleeve-valve engine. A chassis of the new truck will be exhibited at the Olympia show in England.

a derailing switch for emergencies. A train cannot approach the crossing, unless he gives it the signal, and until the crossing is clear of automobiles, naturally, he gves no signal. When there are jams of traffic as trains are coming toward the crossing, he merely holds the trains until all is clear.

The "silent cop" at this intersection also is a great help to railroad and car owners. Before it was installed, there was nothing to prevent left turns and traffic blockades lasting five to six minutes were frequent because motorists would insist on making left turns in the midst of streams of cars running both ways, with resultant snarls and general loss of temper. Several times, thet ower men have reported, wheels have come off automobiles on the crossing and cars have broken down or stalled as trains were approaching. In such cases the tower men merely held the trains till all was clear.

Other Complaints.

Car owners residing in the Maple avenue section and business men of the district declare that they are seriously inconvenienced by the "silent cops" and the ban on left turns. In many cases car owners have to go blocks out of their way to get to their homes or put their cars in their garages, while delivery of groceries often is an intricate problem in figuring how to get around the "silent cops." The difficulty is due chiefly to lack of through streets.

Motorists using Page boulevard and wishing to turn off to the south are blocked by the fact that the only way to make a left turn between Union boulevard and Hodiamont avenue is to swing into a series of short streets and wander around blindly. There are "silent cops" on Page boulevard at Clara, Goodfellow and Hodiamont avenues. Each carries a prohibition against left turns. Of course, one can turn right, run a block or two and turn left to one of the thoroughfares, then turn left again and go south. All in all, the Page boulevard problem is vexatious. If a "silent cop" is placed at Page and Hodiamont, the situation will be much worse.

What Traffic Check Showed.

A check of cars going east and west and north and south at Page and Clara showed heavy north and south traffic at times, but light traffic at all times on Clara. This check was made by five-minute periods from 8:10 a. m. to 11 a. m. one day and from 3:30 p. m. until 7 p. m. another day. In the morning period at no time did more than 7 vehicles go north or south in any 5 minutes and in 50 minutes only 41 cars. In the same 50 minutes 404 cars were counted going east and west. In the afternoon period there were never more than 9 cars going north and south in any 5 minutes, whereas there were as many as 108 going east and west in 5 minutes.

In eight hours of checking 3230 cars were counted going east and west, where as only 230 went north and south at this intersection. Figuring an average of 3 persons to a car, the check showed that in that eight hours nearly 10,000 persons were discommoded for the benefit of a tenth as many. Also motorists going along Clara and wishing to turn to the right have to wait for the "silent cop" signal when they could easily slip into the east or west traffic.

There has been much complaint about the condition of the "silent cop" at Washington and Compton avenue, especially the advertising sign painted on its base. Because of dirt and neglect, the stop and go signals on this one have been almost illegible until recently.

Lack of Police Real Problem.

The installation of "silent cops," of course, is due largely to insufficiency of policemen. Students of traffic problems feel that they are much better than nothing as long as the St. Louis police force continues so undermanned. The fact that it is possible to install them and to give pedestrians some measure of protection is due, says Philip H. Brockman, president of the Police Board and head of the Traffic Council, to the fact that the Police Department saved some money out of its appropriation and was able to buy the "silent cops" for the Street Department to put in place.

Investigation indicates that under present conditions the installation of a "silent cop" at Union and Lindell boulevards does not warrant criticism, that most of the "silent cops" are of so much value to pedestrians that motorists are not justified in complaining of them, but that complaints about the situation on Page boulevard and Maple avenue are entitled to serious consideration by the Traffic Council and the Street department.

The system will cause complaints from all parts of the city until the police force is increased to a point where it will be possible to substitute traffic policemen for "silent cops" at such intersections as that of Union and Lindell boulevards and at one intersection at least on Maple avenue.

CALIFORNIA SHOWS WAY TO MISSOURI

Gains From Its Fine Roads What This State Loses Through Its Poor Ones.

How seriously Missouri is affected by lack of connected good roads is shown by the way in which fine roads have built up the farming sections of California, according to R. C. Frampton, former president of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, who has just returned from the Pacific Coast.

"The natural advantages of California as compared with those of Missouri are greatly overdrawn," says Frampton. "When I was there, the papers were full of scare-heads on forest fires, with many articles on the shortage of water, cautioning against waste of hydro-electric current and impressing the necessity of being economical in use of water for irrigation purposes and domestic use, and hydro-electric current for lighting, power and other uses. They have had no rain or precipitation of practically any sort for 10 months, or since December, 1923. Last winter there was only a small proportion of the usual precipitation of snow, which resulted in drying up of springs and in great lessening of the available water supply for irrigation and other purposes. Many of the cities, including Los Angeles, are considerably concerned over the situation.

California All Dried Up.

While ascending Mount Taquitz for a view overlooking Southern California, I saw four forest fires at the same time. At a fire in San Gabriel Canon, they at one time had over 3000 fire fighters working with the forest rangers in a desperate endeavor to extinguish the flames, which at one time endangered many institutions built in the mountains and even some large towns. Many tourists were pressed into the fire fighting service.

"When I thought of our dependable precipitation here in Missouri, where we have an average of three and one-half to four and one-half inches every month during the good growing season, from March until September, I could not help contrasting Missouri advantages with those of California, where most everything seemed to be dry and burned up. The forests were just one mass of tinder, with large placards posted everywhere in the mountains cautioning against smoking and fire, with many of the forest reservations closed to tourists.

"I thought of the great markets and the immense buying power of the country adjacent to Missouri farms, particularly St. Louis, Chicago and Kansas City, and I thought of our wonderful industrial advantages and of the tens of thousands of wage earners each month with their money to spend for food, clothing and other needs, and all this caused me to wonder why California should be increasing in population and Missouri showing no increase. I knew there must be some fundamental reasons, as on the face of it the advantages in soil, climatic conditions, moisture, markets and otherwise all lay with Missouri.

Good Roads Aid California.

"A study of the situation convinced me that the answer lies in two things—good roads and rural schools. I was confirmed in this belief by noticing how the California newspapers kept stressing, along with climatic features, the fact that California had so many good roads and good schools. It is true they have one of the most magnificent road systems in the country and also a good rural school system.

"I was confirmed in this conclusion by editorials in the California papers, which emphasized that a recent survey in Missouri disclosed that Missouri has 28,500 unoccupied farm houses and that during the past year 55,000 men left Missouri farms and 32,000 came to Missouri farms, making a net loss of 23,000. This article points out that the low price of farm products in the last two years and the high prices of farmers' equipment and supplies had caused much of this hegira from Missouri farms, but pointed out there had been a movement of this sort in most all of the grain-growing states, but that Missouri had suffered more than her sister states in loss of rural population as revealed by the census of 1920.

One editorial states that these conditions in Missouri have been said to be caused by poor roads and that Missouri has been very backward in building modern roads, which had made farming more costly than in other states having good roads. The article contrasts Missouri and California as constituting a great object lesson in the matter of roads. With poor dirt roads and nothing else, which become almost impassable in the winter months, Missouri has lost farm population during a decade of high prices for farm products. I believe lack of good rural schools and inability of the school children to get back and forth to these schools in winter months has been a big contributing factor.

How Farmer Will Benefit.

Now, what else could constitute such an argument for the necessity of putting over Proposition No. 5, which is to be voted on Nov. 4, for good roads? I learned with much surprise and regret upon my return that there was organized opposition to Proposition No. 5 on the part of certain interests. Missouri cannot be prosperous without prosperous Missouri farmers. Missouri farmers cannot be prosperous without good roads; they cannot have good conditions for rearing of families without good schools, as well. The correcting of these two conditions will do wonders for the future prosperity of the State. A system of rural truck transportation will develop as has been developed in Maryland and many Eastern states which will make it possible for the farmer to ship his grain and produce quickly into the market centers at a very low cost.

"Good farm land in Missouri is today very cheap. Good roads and schools will make this land much more valuable. Thousands of desirable people will come into Missouri and the prosperity of the rural districts will be reflected in added prosperity in the large cities and towns."

SPEED TRAPS ILLEGAL IN CALIFORNIA, RULING BY APPEALS COURT SAYS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 4.—A judicial knock-out to the speed trap in California has been administered by the District Court of Appeals. The decision just handed down has been received with acclaim by motoring organizations that have been fighting this ancient devise by which some small towns enrich their treasuries.

The decision followed a test case brought by the legal department of the Automobile Club of Southern California and based on the State law passed in 1923, which states specifically that speed trap evidence is not to be admitted in the courts of California. The final decision is a reversal of the loweer court.

BATTERY STATION HOUSEWARMING

New Willard Factory Branch Is Jammed on Opening Day.

A housewarming was held Wednesday night at the new factory branch and service station of the Willard Storage Battery Co. at 2918-20 Washington boulevard, of which C. W. Lockhart is manager. A Federal Bureau of Mines moving picture film of the Willard battery factory and processes of manufacture, an exhibit of the materials going into the Willard rubber insulated battery, a buffet luncheon and an orchestra were features of the evening.

The opening of the service station last Monday resulted in the busiest day ever known at a Willard factory branch opening. The cars at times were so thickly clustered in front of the building that it was necessary to summon traffic police to straighten out the snarls.

The service station, which can handle 14 cars at a time, put 496 cars through from 8 o'clock until the doors were closed at 5:40 p. m., and then there were a number of machines waiting. On every car there was something done, from taking up floor boards and testing the battery to repair jobs. The way the service station routing has been speeded up is shown by the fact that all day Monday cars were handled at the rate of virtually one a minute.

Tuesday 250 cars were handled, and Wednesday, which was Veiled Prophet day, and, therefore, not very good for the battery business, 250 cars visited the station and the shop was crowded with work.

26.88 M. P. G. ON NONSTOP RUN

A gasoline consumption mark of 26.88 miles to the gallon was made by the Overland touring car which last Saturday completed a 168-hour nonstop endurance and economy run on the streets of St. Louis and the roads of the county.

Driven by four employes of the Willys-Overland factory branch, working in shifts, the car covered a total distance of 4153.2 miles in the seven days and nights and used 154.5 gallons of gasoline, only seven quarts of oil and no water.

The run started at noon Sept. 29, when Dan Hyland, president of the Automotive Accessory Association, sealed the speedometer. At noon on the sixth day he covered the face of the speedometer and sealed it with wax.

At the finish of the run Hyland unsealed the speedometer and, with the other judges, Matt Morse, manager of the Automobile Club of Missouri, and F. J. Batten of the Standard Oil Co., checked the gasoline consumption.

Another Fine Auto Camp.

An elaborate stone gateway marks the entrance to a new tourists' camp at Cisco, Tex. The camp also has a cement, tile and stone community house, individual camp sites with fireplaces, reading and lounging rooms, shower baths, telephones and other conveniences. Small cottages are built for rental to tourists at nominal sums.

all prosecutions under the motor vehicle law would be strictly under the statute, and that if careless or reckless driving was proved, law violators would be fined $5 and costs of $16.50, no matter what the speed."

As the Sheriff Sees It.

Sheriff Grothe confirmed the statement by Vahlkamp, saying that whereas the law prescribed a speed limit of 25 miles an hour, he had told his deputies to allow a margin of 10 miles an hour, and that they were not arresting anyone who was running less than 40 miles an hour, unless he was driving in a way to endanger others. He said he had two deputies working out of St. Charles and one out of O'Fallon, and that persons arrested by the latter deputy were tried at St. Peters.

"Arrests are not averaging more than 10 or so on Sundays," the Sheriff said. "We tried to hold back and not be strict, but when they got to running 60 and 65 miles an hour, we had to act. Why, one motorist was doing 72 miles an hour on the highway. We can't stand for anything like that. But we are not persecuting motorists and we don't intend to."

St. Peters Not Causing Arrests.

Denial that St. Peters is in any way to blame for the arrests of motorists on the State highway is made in the following letter to the Automobile Club of Missouri:

"We are informed that there is a rumor that has reached your office to the effect that the town of St. Peters is responsible for the wholesale arrests for speeding on the highway between St. Charles and Wentzville. This rumor is purported to be founded on an alleged grievance on the part of the citizens of St. Peters because of the location of the road.

As a member of the Automobile Club and as a citizen of St. Peters, I am writing to correct this false rumor. As a matter of fact, the citizens of St. Peters have no grievance as the road is exactly where we wanted it. We regret greatly, indeed, the many arrests that have been made. The traffic officers were put on the road without the suggestion of anyone from this town, and none of them were appointed from St. Peters.

"We feel that a speed limit should be established for the highway and that such should be posted along the road before arrests are made for speeding. We also feel that proper judgment should be exercised in making arrests which should be for reckless driving rather than for mere speeding.

"The citizens of St. Peters are willing to co-operate in every way possible with the Automobile Club to make the roads safe without sacrificing the pleasure of motoring.

"It may be of interest to you to know that the little town of St. Peters was in a large measure responsible for the speedy completion of the road through St. Charles County; that about half of the money that was raised by the citizens here; that two of the citizens here were of the four signers of the bond that guaranteed the right of way through the county, and that the citizens here as well as in the community voted for the bond issue which made the road possible and will probably vote to a man for the proposition to raise funds for its maintenance.

"I am writing this at the request of the business men of St. Peters, who join me in asking that no credence be given to such rumors as may henceforth come from sources more interested in business competition than in good roads.

"J. M. JENKINS, M. D."

Note These Quality Features of the STAR

Continental Red Seal Motor, designed by the engineers of Continental Motor Company in collaboration with Durant engineers. It is distinguished for power, quietness, economy, and low service costs due to simplicity and accessibility.

Force-feed Lubrication. The Star is the only car in the low-priced field having positive force-feed lubrication to all bearings, which greatly increases the durability of the motor.

Durant Tubular Backbone. The Star is the only low-priced car employing this important structural improvement, the most efficient device known for resisting twisting strains and for insuring a strong car foundation and for keeping all moving parts in perfect alignment.

Standard Transmission. Three speeds forward and one reverse, making the car easy to handle under all conditions and increasing operating economy.

Vacuum Feed Fuel System. Insuring a steady flow of gasoline on all grades as long as any remains in the 11½ gallon tank at rear, which is where the gasoline supply belongs for safety and convenience.

Strong Spiral-bevel Rear Axle Gears. This is the same type axle as is used in high-priced cars.

High-grade Cooling System, including large radiator, 16-inch fan and circulating water pump insuring proper motor temperature and driving comfort under all conditions.

Disc Clutch—an unusual feature in a low-priced car, and one especially appreciated by those who have used cheaper types of clutches.

Alemite Lubrication, the same as used on high-priced cars, making the greasing of the chassis quick and easy.

Demountable Rims and Extra Rim, the same as used on high-priced cars.

Semi-Elliptic Springs. These not only greatly increase riding comfort, but give the Star car the long, low appearance that is an essential factor of the popular stream line design. The spring base is 141 inches—longer than that of any other car near the Star price.

Various other quality features will be shown you by any Star dealer to prove the wonderful value of a Star car at $540. If you seek low-cost transportation, we suggest careful comparison of the Star with any and all cars in the less-than-$1000 class.

GOVERNMENT RADIO POLICY OUTLINED

Tentative Statement Is Drawn Up by the Interdepartmental Radio Advisory Committee.

A tentative statement of the United States Government radio policy extending greater recognition to the importance of non-Government services, has been drawn up by the Interdepartment Radio Advisory Committee. The National Radio Conference, which closed last Monday, will discuss these proposals.

The policy is broad in its scope, defining Government interest in its own and privately operated systems, as well as regulations, especially applicable in time of war. It does not replace the statement of policy drawn up in 1904, by a board appointed under President Roosevelt.

This encouragement consists in part of utilizing the services of commercial stations wherever the Government's interest warrants. Government-owned stations will not solicit or, except in an emergency, accept non-governmental traffic from outside interests when, and where, commercial stations can handle it satisfactorily. But on the other hand, the Government will facilitate the use of its circuits by private interests whenever this does not interfere with official business and when commercial radio systems cannot render equivalent service.

GOVERNMENT RADIO POLICY OUTLINED

Tentative Statement Is Drawn Up by the Interdepartmental Radio Advisory Committee.

A tentative statement of the United States Government radio policy attending greater recognition to the importance of non-government services, has been drawn up by the Interdepartment Radio Advisory Committee. The National Radio Conference, which opened last Monday, will discuss these proposals.

The policy is broad in its scope, covering Government interest in its own and privately operated systems, as well as regulations, especially applicable in time of war. It will replace the statement of policy drawn up in 1904, by a board appointed under President Roosevelt.

"Federal Government interest in radio communications is paramount for national defense, but at the same time the Government is interested in sufficient radio regulation as a means of rendering a public service, both through official radio circuits and private and commercial activities. As opposed to owning or controlling public communication facilities, the draft of the policy states that the Government will encourage and foster the development of privately owned and operated radio facilities in such a manner that in time of war or national emergencies there may be available the most efficient system for the national defense. This encouragement consists in part of utilizing the services of commercial stations wherever the Government's interest warrants. Government-owned stations will not solicit or, except in an emergency, accept non-governmental traffic from outside interests when, and where, commercial stations can handle it satisfactorily. But on the other hand, the Government will facilitate the use of its circuits by private interests whenever this does not interfere with official business and when commercial radio systems cannot render equivalent service.

"The only supervision placed by the Government over private radio communication is that of the Bureau of Navigation of the Department of Commerce, which, by law, regulates and co-ordinates such service in the interest of efficiency, insuring a minimum of interference and conflict between commercial, broadcasting and amateur stations.

The Government itself uses radio communication in the administration of its business to a much larger extent than the general public realizes. Ten departments are concerned in radio communication and at least three separate establishments. The Department of State is concerned with international relations and regulations as a means of world-wide communication. In the Treasury, the Coast Guard and Public Health Service are interested, through communication between ships for safety. The War Department is responsible for military communications between its stations and its force afield. The Department of Justice is concerned in questions of law enforcement and patents. The Postoffice uses radio in air mail operations. The Naval Communication Service maintains communication with the fleet and between shore stations and its vessels, as well as circuits extending to outlying possessions. Both the Army and Navy are also interested in technical radio development. The Interior Department uses radio under several of its bureaus for communication and to a certain extent for safety. The Commerce Department regulates private and commercial communication and through the Bureau of Standards conducts scientific research and establishes standards. The Labor Department employs radio in broadcasting, as does the Civil Service Commission. The Agriculture Department uses radio in broadcasting, as does the Civil Service Commission. The Agriculture Department uses radio in collecting and disseminating weather, market and other reports and for communication. The Interstate Commerce Commission under authority of law may become responsible for interstate commercial radio traffic rates if such operation developes. The Shipping Board, like the Navy, employs radio for communication with its vessels. In fact, nearly all the Federal bureaus and offices are interested in radio communications and developments.

In the regulation of Government radio activities the authority of each department and bureau is considered, but the ultimate authority would if necessary be exercised by the President. Mutual co-operation between the departments is expected to aid successful operation of the Government-owned system, their use being extended to nonradio departments when possible.

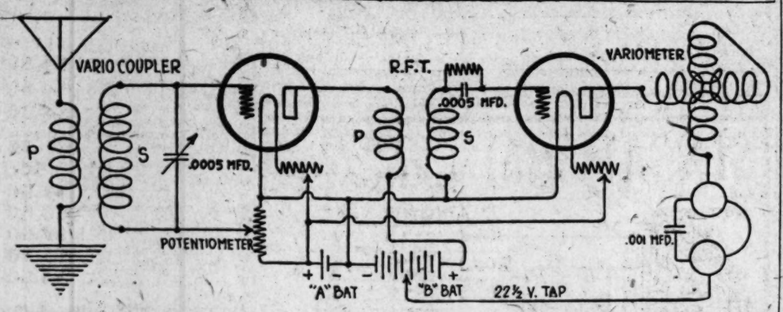
Although a central control is not believed feasible, the Advisory Committee recommends that a permanent interdepartmental committee be sanctioned to co-ordinate and regulate Government systems and traffic under the direction of the President. This intergovernmental body would act to prevent interference, assign frequencies, determine character of broadcast material and handle radio problems of common interest to governmental offices, in the interest of efficiency. Priority of service is planned for distress calls or messages pertaining to the safety of life and property in marine and aerial navigation. The present Advisory Committee functions under the Secretary of Commerce, but it is understood that with presidential approval its operations and value might be extended.

Insofar as radio communication is an element of national defense, its operations are under the control of the War and Navy departments, and the recommendation of the Joint Army and Navy Board made in 1923, are approved. This action provided that the navy's interests in radio were paramount at sea with ships and overseas to insular possessions, as well as along the coast. The army activities cover principally radio communications between its units in this country and its possessions.

Insulate Leads of Battery.

To prevent accidental short circuits, put insulating tubing on the "A" and "B" battery lead wires. In no case should tubing be placed on the radio frequency circuit, which consists of the grid and plate circuit wires in the detector circuit. This might increase capacity effects between wires and cause weak signals on distant reception.

ADDING REGENERATION TO R. F. CIRCUIT



WITH the exception of the variometer in the plate of the detector tube, the circuit shown above is standard. The variometer may be of any standard make, preferably one with a minimum of moulded insulation.

Parts required are as follows: Variometer; vario-coupler; .0005 mfd. variable condenser; potentiometer; 2-tubes, sockets and rheostats; .001 mfd. fixed condenser; head phones; .0005 mfd. fixed condenser; radio frequency transformer; "A" battery and 45-volt "B" battery.

After the set has been wired up, if too much regeneration is present, the number of turn on the plate variometer should be reduced until the regeneration is under control.

CABINET DESIGNS ARE UNDERGOING A CHANGE

Reason Attributed to Objection on Part of Fair Sex to Unsightly Apparatus.

War is on between the radio manufacturers of America and the women. It is a battle of wits against vanity.

For more than three years—ever since the radio business began to boom—the women have been the stumbling block in the way of the manufacturers. They objected to cluttering up the house with coils and wires and odds and ends of paraphernalia. They objected to being "radio widows."

They have advanced other objections to radio and are still advancing them. Some of them cropped out at the radio world's fair at Madison Square Garden.

"This is the first time in my life I've ever spent two hours walking through a place and never understanding a word of what I heard," one woman disgustedly remarked to her husband as she led him away from a booth that demonstrated how to build nine-tube neutrodyne sets.

Another argued her husband out of ordering a set forthwith.

"It's only another excuse for staying home," she said. "I stay home all day. I stay home while you're playing golf. Now, if you get that thing, I'll stay home all the time. You'll not bring that thing into my home."

Having such objections to overcome the manufacturers have set about to appeal to women in their weakest moods—to their vanity. Radio has been lifted out of the cluttering up stage to the ornamental. Loud speakers of shell—in all sorts of colors, down to iridescent green colors fashioned after the combs that the women used to wear before bobbed hair came in—have made their appearance this year. Pieced spruce, done into all the tones of the artist's brush; panels and dials, chased in bronze and carved in ebony; loud speakers hidden by Marie Antoniette skirts (as telephones are hidden) and all manner of radio furniture designed solely for women are now on the market.

A woman may have a set concealed in her dining room buffet; or in her console table or in her wardrobe, or even in the dressing table in the intimacy of her boudour. A veteran radio dealer was called in recently to install a set in harmony with Louis XVI period furniture. The set itself, as it would have been sold in the old days before ornamentation became a part of the business, was worth $300. The dealer called in a cabinetmaker and drove up several days later with as fine a piece of Louis XVI furniture as any cabinetmaker to the King ever turned out. It cost the woman $2000, but there wasn't any "jarring" paraphernalia lying around to ruin the symmetry of the interior decoration.

Women who can buy $2000 sets don't care about knowing the language, the butler can handle the disks. It is the girl stenographer who is about to have radio forced on her.

One concern has bought what is called the radio car. It is a sort of dictaphone that catches words out of the air and sets them down on a wax cylinder. The absent radio bug can pick up the cylinder, put it on a dictaphone and get the progress of his business.

Useful Radio Equipment.

Among the useful equipment in the radio room are: Pliers, soldering iron, spare tube, battery charger, hydrometer, voltmeter, test clips and a bottle of distilled water.

DO ENGLISH SET BUILDERS PREFER BEAUTY TO UTILITY?

$5000 Duplicate of King George's Set Is More Decorative Than Useful.

The five thousand dollar broadcast receiving set shown by an English company at the Radio World's Fair at the Madison Square Garden, New York, recently, was a copy of the receiver used by King George at Buckingham Palace. The set was an exquisite bit of cabinet work and of unusual size, being six feet long and standing four feet high. The English set did not have great receptive value but it was very evident that the British idea as to the use of radio equipment is as a decoration in the home rather than as a utility.

COURT TO DECIDE VALIDITY OF ARMSTRONG PATENT RIGHT

De Forest Files Suit of Restraint Against the Westinghouse Company.

The acid test to determine who invented the feedback circuit is about to be applied. The De Forest Radio Telephone & Telegraph Co. has brought suit against the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., under section 4918, revised statutes, to have the court determine whether Armstrong feedback patent is valid or void, in view of patents 1,507,016 and 1,407,017, issued to the De Forest company Sept. 2, 1924. The bill of complaint prays for preliminary and permanent injunctions, restraining the Westinghouse company from bringing any suit or proceedings for alleged infringement of the Armstrong feedback patent, and further from granting any license or any rights of any kind whatsover thereunder. In view of the "clouds" this suit casts on title to invention covered by the Armstrong and De Forest patents, the question arises whether these patents are enforcible against infringers until the point is finally settled. It is expected that motions to test the question as to the Armstrong patent will shortly be made in several pending suits brought under that patent.

The Crystal Detector.

As a crystal detector means less financial outlay in the beginning and practically no upkeep for tubes and new "B" batteries, and because it is a better rectifier of radio energy than an audion, it is coming into wide use in reflex sets. Compared to the cost of a detector tube, a good fixed crystal detector costs about $2.50. An audion costs $5; socket, $1; rheostat, $1; "B" battery, $2, and grid leak and condenser, $1.25. In other words it is an outlay of $10.25 against $2.50.

TESTING

CONDUCTED BY STUART C. MAHANAY

This column is a regular feature of the Sunday Post-Dispatch. In it will be found reports of tests conducted with standard manufacturers' parts and sets and appliances which have been submitted for examination.

Apparatus tested during the past week in the Post-Dispatch laboratory consisted of the following:

Hope Webbing Company's "Talking Tape."

Freed-Eisemann neutrodyne, model NR-5.

Bristol loud speaker, "baby" type.

TALKING TAPE.

THIS metallic tape was found, on test, to be all that the manufacturers claim for it. While the bright yellow color is not particularly ornamental when draped around the wall of a room, its efficiency as a collector of radio waves, indoors, more than offsets any objections which might be offered to its "clashing" with the color scheme of the average living room. In fact, this objection might be overcome by camouflaging it behind the picture molding.

Using the Talking Tape with a Freed-Eisemann five-tube neutrodyne, WEAF, KDKA, WLS, WDAP, KFKX, WOAW and WFAA came in "all over" a nine-room house, using a Bristol "baby" type loud speaker. During the tests only four of the five tubes in the set were used, the extra amplification being found unnecessary.

The tape in the above instance was fastened to the four corners of a room 11 feet square and only 95 feet of the 100-foot roll formed the aerial. The results compared quite favorably with those obtained both previously and subsequently using the same receiver and loud speaker with the outdoor aerial.

With most indoor aerials of the kind described above, static is somewhat less than when an outside aerial is employed, but with the talking tape, the static was quite as pronounced as when it was replaced by the outside antenna. This may be construed as a final example of its favorable comparison with an outside aerial.

FREED-EISEMANN NEUTRODYNE.

Since the Freed-Eisemann name is familiar to every radio fan in this country, and its reputation is established, there remains little to be said regarding the performance of the set, other than to describe what happened during an hour of experimentation on several successive evenings.

The type used in these experiments was the NR-5 model, designed for use with five UV-201-A or C-301-A tubes. Ninety volts of "B" battery supplied the plate voltage, while a six-volt 80-ampere hour storage battery lighted the filaments. The aerial was made up of a single wire of No. 14 B. & S. gauge, 25 feet high and 85 feet long. The ground was a short lead to a cold water pipe. A Bristol loud speaker reproduced the sounds.

In the course of an hour the first evening three New York City stations, two in Canada, one in Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Louisville, Dallas, Fort Worth, Kansas City, Davenport, Omaha and Hastings were logged, each with absolute clarity of tone and more than sufficient volume to fill an ordinary sized house.

No interference from KSD was experienced. Out-of-town stations were heard without the slightest trace of any sound whatever from any of the local stations.

The set was switched from the outside antenna to an improvised indoor aerial by winding two turns of "Talking Tape" around the walls of the room. The receiver worked equally as well, and it was practically impossible to determine from teh sounds which of the two aerials was in use. Thus, the receiver can be used in the majority of locations without the erection of an outdoor aerial by simply placing a number turns of wire around the picture moulding of a room.

BRISTOL LOUD SPEAKER.

The Bristol "baby" type loud speaker acquitted itself in an excellent manner. It was tested with a Freed-Eisemann 5-tube neutrodyne and the sounds were of sufficient volume on distant stations to be heard in any part of the two-story house, with 90 volts of "B" battery on the plates of the amplifier tubes.

It is equipped with a modulator for adjusting the diaphragm to varying volumes of sounds.

The fiber horn is of the conventional shape and is of a bronze color which matches the finish of The conterhouse referendum will the metal base.

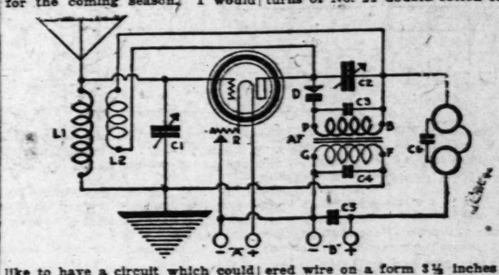
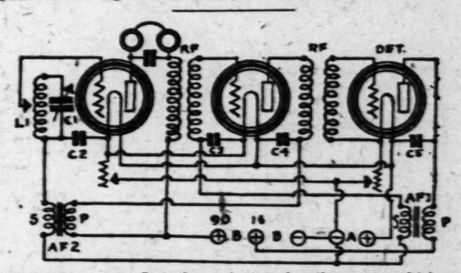
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Post-Dispatch Radio Department cannot undertake to answer questions by mail.

Q. Inclosed is a circuit which I have been using for the past year and a half with very good results. Up until the present time I have been afraid to change any part of the set, but have decided now to do so and have the new set ready for the coming season. I would like to have a circuit which could be made up with the parts from my old set without buying more than $15 worth of additional apparatus. Some friends suggested a reflex circuit as being a good one-tube hook-up. Please let me have your advice.—C. F. M.

A. Only by experimenting do we learn and by passing up the various hook-ups offered from time to time you have missed a good deal of the pleasure connected with radio. The circuit shown above is our suggestion and it will be found to be much more efficient than the one you have been using. Coils L-1 and L-2 are in the form of spider-web coils, and are made by winding 45 turns of No. 22 double cotton-covered wire on a form 3¼ inches in diameter which forms the primary (L-1), and by winding 30 turns of the same sized wire on a form of the same diameter to form L-2, the secondary. L-1 is shunted by a .0005 mfd. variable condenser, C-1. The primary of the audiofrequency transformer is shunted by a .001 mfd. fixed condenser, C-3, and the secondary is shunted by a .0005 mfd. fixed condenser, C-4.





Q. Sometime ago I took my three-tube reflex receiver apart and now am unable to assemble it so that it gives satisfactory results. Please show a wiring diagram for the parts which go to make up a three-tube reflex.

M. M.

A. The diagram is shown herewith. It is known as the Grimes Inverse Duplex.

Q. Please publish the address of the publishers of Government radio bulletins.—L. M.

A. Address your communication to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C.

Q. Please publish a circuit of the Superdyne receiver with crystal detector.—M. H. R.

A. This circuit appeared in the June 1 issue of the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

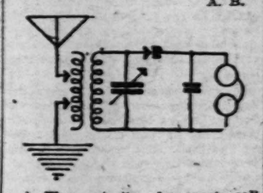
Q. I built a Zahorsky circuit according to the directions in the Post-Dispatch of Sept. 25, 1923, but have had no success. I cannot get rid of the high-pitched squeal and clear up the signals. I am using a Freshman variable grid-leak for the potentiometer. Please advise.—R. O. M.

A. In all probability, the trouble may be located in faulty adjustment of your gridleak. The circuit published on the date you mentioned does not call for a potentiometer. Evidently there must be some mistake in your hook-up.

Q. 1. Why is it that sometimes a station, when first picked up, comes in loudly and then fades away and is gone? This was particularly noticeable during the summer months. 2. Will damp weather have any effect on fixed condensers and the action of a tube? 3. Would a "shorted" fixed condenser cause the tube to cease to oscillate? 4. Should 45 volts give better results than 22½ volts? 5. Where is station WNYC? V. F. F.

A. 1. A number of theories have been advanced, but fading is a phenomenon which is not clearly understood. It is usually more noticeable in summer than in winter. 2. Yes, moisture can and does affect fixed condensers having paper dielectric. It is for this reason tht mica condensers are so extensively used and recommended. 3. It might. You failed to designate the condenser in question and its location in the circuit. 4. In a detector circuit with a "hard" tube, yes, in some cases. In an amplifier circuit, yes, always. 5. WNYC—Department of Plant and Structures, New York City, N. Y. A municipal station. Power, 1000 watts. Wave length, 526 meters.

Q. I recently purchased enough parts to construct a crystal set and am at a loss to know how to connect them up. Most of the circuits which appear in the Question and Answer section call for vacuum tubes. Can you give me a circuit for a loose coupler, Freshman crystal, U. S. Tool .0005 mfd. variable condenser and a pair of phones? A. B.



A. The majority of requests call for vacuum tube circuits, hence they are for the majority with respect to answers. The circuit you request is shown. It is suggested that you obtain a .001 mica fixed condenser which will act as a bridging condenser across the phones.

Q. Is there a broadcasting station using the call "WDC?" If so, where is it located?—R. K.

A. We now of no such station at the present time.

Q. What shall I do to obtain a Government license to operate an amateur five-watt transmitting set? T. B. C.

A. Write to the Supervisor of Radio, Federal Building, Chicago, Ill., requesting application blanks for amateur station and operator's license. When these are properly filled out and returned, the licenses will be issued.

Q. I am in need of a little information. I have a two-tube set, equipped with one stage of radio frequency. Rebently I added a two-stage audio frequency amplifier. It only amplifies the detected sounds, but does not increase the distance or range of my set. Is there any way I can increase the range of my set without taking it apart? N. E.

A. Audio frequency amplification is primarily intended to increase the signal volume, rather than increase the range. Radio frequency amplification will increase the range, but have little effect on volume, particularly of nearby stations. We would suggest that you add one or two additional stages of radio frequency

MANY SETS EXHIBITED AT FAMOUS-BARR SHOW

Factory Representatives Explain How to Efficiently Operate Receivers.

One of the largest radio exhibitions of the season opened on the sixth floor of the Famous-Barr department store, yesterday, and is scheduled to continue through the coming week, closing Saturday, Oct. 18.

Many radio manufacturers have sent their representatives to explain to radio fans the operation and construction of the sets they brought with them.

The sets and appliances are attractively displayed in booths tastically decorated. A platform has been constructed near the center on which musical programs will be given daily for the entertainment of those present. Microphones have been installed which will pick up the entertainment and broadcast it by special wire to the broadcasting station on the roof of the Post-Dispatch Building, to be transmitted by K S D. The interesting procedure will enable many to see, for the first time, actually what takes place in the studio of a broadcasting station during the rendition of a program.

Some of the receivers on exhibition are: The Dynergy, a five-tube receiver, which operates from the house lighting current, either alternating or direct; the Thermodyne, a six-tube set having the tuning elements geared together in such a manner that the controls are reduced to only one dial; the Fada Neutrodyne receiver, which will operate on dry-cell tubes.

Among the loud speakers on exhibition mentioned the Music Master, Western Electric, Brandes, Kennedy, Peerless, Saal, Little Wonder, Pathe, Magnavox, Thompson, Radiola and Tungsten.

The super-heterodynes on exhibition include the Haynes-Griffin, Radio-Pacific, Receptrad and the All-American.

Battery exhibits include the different types of Willard, Radio Dispatch, Exart, Eveready, Burgess, Exide and Marathon in "A" and "B" types.

Those interested in operating their own receiver from power may be particularly interested in the low-loss apparatus which has been on the radio world by storm.

Some of the artists who will participate in the musical programs during the week are Miss Ruth Block, Ruth Mitchell, Lillian Miller, Eunice Holmes, Gene Rode and the Messrs. Frank Armstrong, Leonard Barry, Billy Kelly and Oliver Faris. The Saturday recital will be given by students of the Fallert School of Music.

Save Wire Scraps.

Never throw away short pieces of wire. They are of considerable value when a new set or loop is being tried and when no spool or roll of wire is available. No attempt should be made to keep the pieces straight or in order, simply throw them in a wide, shallow cardboard box under the table or in a drawer.

CROSLEY $65.00

Tridyn Regular. With tubes and Crosley Phonos $80.75

WHEN you listen in on a Crosley—no matter what the price—you wonder as thousands of others have, that such exceptional results can be obtained, and so reasonably.

The Crosley Tridyn has proven itself to be the last word in radio engineering. During the summer period of comparatively poor reception, the Tridyn gave uniformly amazing results in all parts of the United States. The combination of one stage of tuned radio frequency, with regenerative detector and reflexed amplification, has proven beyond a doubt that the features of selectivity, volume and ease of operation can be obtained with three tubes better than heretofore has been possible with five. We believe that no other set on the market combines these features so well incorporated in the Tridyn. The ease with which local interference may be tuned out, and distant stations quickly located, make the Tridyn the ideal set for the city in which there is one or more broadcasting stations.

Other Crosley Radios give proportionately good results, each standing out as a leader in its class. Thousands of unsolicited letters tell us of clear, distant reception on the one tube Crosley 50; of loud speaker volume from huadreds of miles away with the two tube Crosley 51; and of the perfect performance of the three tube Crosley 52, which consistently brings in stations on the loud speaker from all parts of the United States and under practically all weather conditions.

Any Crosley receiver, each in its own class, though assuring you as good or better reception than any other instrument of the same number of tubes, is the least expensive ever offered to the public.

Many Fans Write in to Tell of Listening to KSD's Service.

Station KSD has received many complimentary letters and telegrams regarding the broadcasting of the world series baseball scores during the past week.

From Harrisburg, Ill., came one letter expressing appreciation for the service, which was of particular interest due to the fact that it was signed by 109 baseball fans who had listened to the scores as they were broadcast by KSD.

During September 16 new broadcasting stations were licensed by the radio section of the Department of Commerce, and 30 were deleted from the active lists. The loss during the month was 14 stations. This leaves a total of 510 active broadcasting stations on Oct. 1, comprising 382 Class "A" stations, 57 Class "B," 78 Class "C" and 3 Class "D" broadcasting development stations.

The 30 stations which went off the air included 21 Class "A" transmitters, seven Class "C" and two in the Class "B." One of the latter, however, was replaced. Old station WLAG at Minneapolis is succeeded by WCCO, operated by the Washburn Crosby Co., which company, it is understood, purchased the equipment from the Gring & Washington Co.

MEETING OF ST. LOUIS RADIO ASSOCIATION

A regular semi-monthly meeting of the St. Louis Radio Association was held at the Claridge Hotel on Friday evening, Oct. 3.

President Rozier was absent, due to illness, but for some unknown reason the attendance was unusually small.

9DZY, Paul Chamberlain gave an extemporaneous talk on various methods of amplifying at radio frequencies. His talk was supplemented by blackboard drawings of the hook-ups under discussion.

9DXN, William F. Schoening followed Chamberlain on the speaker's rostrum and gave interesting sidelights on the results of recent experiments which he had conducted along the same line.

The next meeting will be held Oct. 17, at the Claridge Hotel. All interested in the science of radio, whether it be from the transmitting or broadcast listening angle, are invited to attend.

Amateurs Prove Value of International Radio Week

Two-way radio communication between an amateur in California and an amateur in New Zealand has been successfully conducted according to an announcement made today by Arthur H. Lynch, editor of "Radio Broadcast," who received the following telegram concerning the epoch-making event:

San Pedro, Cal., Sept. 22.
Arthur H. Lynch,
Radio Broadcast,
Garden City, N. Y.

Received cable this morning confirming two-way communications held with New Zealand 4AA Bell 12:20 to 1:40 Sunday morning received on Roberts low-wave receiver as per Zeh Bouck.

W. V. WAGNER, 6BCP.

"This is one of the best evidences of the progress being made in broadcasting and presages the complete success of the forthcoming international radio week," said Mr. Lynch. "During this week radio programs on both short and long wages will be transmitted from the United States, Canada, England, Australia and other points throughout the world. Great strides have recently been made in designing receivers capable of receiving short-wave transmission, which permits the ever-expanding range of broadcast reception.

"The success of two-way long-distance reception enjoyed by the California and New Zealand amateurs indicates the future developments in the radio art, that all radio fans may confidently look forward to. The week of Nov. 24-30 will be a very notable one, for every listener in the United States and foreign countries will then be permitted to hear broadcast programs from other parts of the world."

New World's Amateur Record Established

The world's record for amateur radio long-distance two-way communication was captured from a South American operator when W. B. Magner of 464 Sixth street, San Pedro, Cal., made contact with Frank D. Bell of Waihemo, New Zealand, a total distance of 6900 air miles. The previous world's record, established by Carlos Braggio of Bernal, Argentina, was 6400 miles. The North American amateur wins the transmission honors by 500 miles.

The new record was made during the twans-Pacific tests arranged by the Amrelcan Radio Relay League for communication between amateur operators of the United States and Canada with those in Australia and New Zealand. Magner was informed by the A. R. R. L. today that he wins the Australian boomerang offered to the first radio amateur of North America to establish communication with Australasia.

K. L. Reidman of 243 Euclid avenue, Long Beach, operator of amateur radio station 6CGW, was notified of the gift of a pair of green suspenders as a consolation prize. Reidman exchanged messages with the New Zealand operator about half an hour after the local amateur made the contact that broke the record. All communication was accomplished between 12:20 and 2:20 a. m.

Amateurs in this country have been trying to beat the South American record ever since Braggio announced that he had worked Ivan O'Meara of Gisborne, New Zealand. This happened on May 22 of this year during the Pan-American amateur tests and was regarded as especially remarkable on account of the barrier made by the Andes Mountains. Magner's record was entirely over water. Western amateurs are rejoicing over Magner's remarkable success.

OUT O' THE ETHER

Philadelphia amateurs are not alone in their distance records, as the following letter received by the radio editor will testify:

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 5, 1924.
Radio Editor:
St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
Dear Sir:

While reading the radio section of the Post of Sunday, Oct. 5, I noticed an article about 3BG being in communication with the Italian naval vessel, Station 1HT. I wish to say that I heard 3BG while he was in communication with 1HT and I tuned my transmitter to the wave of 3BG and succeeded in getting in communication with 1HT for 40 minutes. This was on Sept. 26 at about 12:30 a. m. Power input was 500 watts, using 1-250 watt tube with an antenna current of 1.4 amperes into a 4-wire flat top antenna 60 feet high. The antenna current was rather low, but it was the highest obtainable when hetrodying 3BG's wave. The distance from here is approximately 5000 miles. I am writing this to let you know that our St. Louis amateur stations are on a par with any amateur stations in the country.

Very sincerely yours,
RICHARD K. ROHAN (9EKY).

Such reports as the above are welcomed by the QRX editor. Please mail them in.

1HT, th Italian battleship making tests on low waves off the coast of Africa, is creating quite a stir in amateur radio circles and is now being heard in the United States quite consistently. Since 3BG and 9EKY worked him, most any ham possessing a tuner that works low enough can pick up 1HT's signals. 3BG has maintained a nightly schedule with him and has no trouble communicating with him at any time.

Time flys. It is hard to realize that it is only 15 years since Jack Binns sent out from the sinking steamship Republic the famous "C. Q. D." which saved many lives and made the modest young wireless operator an international hero. Three years after the Republic disaster the S. O. S. of the ill-fated steamship Titanic shocked the world. Four years ago radio was $2,000,000 business. Today radio is a $350,000,000 industry.

Amateur Call Book Out.

Within a week or two, the amateur call list, as of June 30, will be available for distribution from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. The cost will be 25 cents.

Radiograms.

Only 36 of the 500-odd broadcasting stations in the country pay for the copyright music they broadcast.

Money invested in the powerful broadcasting stations now in operation in the United States represents more than $100,000,000.

Several professors in France have started a movement to have radio construction and operation taught in all the schools of the country.

There are now more than 18,000 amateur wireless transmitting stations in the United States, and most of them are home-made, owned and operated by boys.

Where no water pipes are available for grounding a radio set, the wire can be attached to a 6 or 8 foot galvanized pipe that has been driven into moist earth.

STANDARD FREQUENCY SIGNALS ANNOUNCED

Government Transmissions Will Aid in Calibration of Apparatus.

For the past two years the Bureau of Standards of the Department of Commerce has been transmitting at stated times radio signals of standard frequency from the Bureau of Standards radio laboratory at Washington, D. C. These signals are transmitted approximately twice a month and have been utilized throughout the eastern half of the country.

In order to afford the necessary control transmitting equipment and standards have been installed at Stanford University, California, with the co-operation of that institution. The station thus established at Stanford University on May 1 transmitted the schedule of similar signals of standard frequency then controlled by the Bureau of Standards in the East. These schedules are given below.

These special signals of standard frequency are of use to meeting laboratories, transmitting stations and others to standardize the wavelength and adjusting transmitting and receiving apparatus. The accuracy of the frequencies is better than three-tenths of 1 per cent. Information on how to receive and utilize them is given in Bureau of Standards Circular No. 74, which may be obtained from the Bureau of Standards, Washington, D. C.

The schedule of standard frequency signals from both the Bureau of Standards and Stanford University is as follows. Attention is called to the change in time previously announced schedules having begun at 11 instead of 10 p. m.

Transmissions were begun in accordance with the following schedule:

Time, P. M.	Oct. 31	Nov. 15	Nov. 30	Dec. 15

Simple Test for 'Phones.

The head set of 'phones is the most sensitive of all mechanisms. It surpasses in delicate adjustment the finest electrical receiving instruments and may be operated on as little as sixteenth billionth of one ampere of current—an almost unthinkable measurement. In fact, were it not for this supersensitive instrument, there would be no radio. The 'phones pick up the complex vibrations which come into the set, varying from the faint whispering melodies to the high pitched violin, or the heavy roll of the organ, and transform them accurately for our listening ears. To test out 'phones to see if they are in good working order, moisten a piece of paper and place it between a penny and a nickel. A click should be heard in the 'phones when the tips come in contact with the coins.

Worth Remembering.

The plate voltage should be reduced if a bluish glow appears in one of the tubes. This shows the "B" battery voltage is high. If kept up it may overheat the tube and shorten its life. It is a very fine electrical spray and is somewhat similar to high frequency discharges and the aurora borealis. It will occur at a much lower plate voltage in "soft" detector tubes than it will in "hard" amplifier tubes, and this is one of the reasons why detector tubes cannot be used successfully as amplifiers.

Soldering Tips.

When making up a soldered [joint] there are four points to be remembered. 1. The surface of the [wire] should be cleaned and [tinned] 2. The surface should be [heated] to the right heat. 3. Solder should be applied to the [heated] surface. 4. The metal parts should be heated with the iron and enough solder applied to cover the parts neatly.

Care of Hydrometer.

After a hydrometer is used, rinsing the liquid in a clean jar, very much acid remains on the glass, even careful washing fails to remove the instrument clean. Place it in a milk bottle or other tall jar, and the battery box or near by, to keep the hydrometer in it.

VING FISHER ELLS WHY DAVIS SHOULD GET VOTE OF INDEPENDENTS

berry, Fall, Daugherty, Denby and Forbes Enough to Discredit Republican Administration.

CANDAL IN TARIFF SCHEDULES

inent Economist Points Out Folly and Injustice of Taxing Consumers for Protection of Monopolies.

By PROF. IRVING FISHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Although born and brought up a Republican, I have always practiced and preached independence in voting. In this campaign I am an enthusiastic Democrat, for the following reasons:

1. Davis the Man for the Job.

As I said in the New York Times in January, when Davis was only a dark horse, "among all the candidates in all parties, Mr. Davis stands out incomparably the greatest figure. He is great both in intellect and character. He is judicial minded without being vacillating, courageous and yet tactful, devoted to great causes and, at the same time, thoroughly practical.

The presidency of the United States is today the most exalted office on earth. It calls for the very highest quality of man this earth affords.

With all due respect to Mr. Coolidge and the exalted office to which he fell heir, he is not in the same class as Davis, as a lawyer, statesman or diplomat. The latter must take care to distinguish between the legendary Coolidge now being created by skillful propaganda and the real Coolidge. We only need to remember that those who would now portray Coolidge as a great man paid no attention to him when Vice President and had no intention of even nominating him for the vice presidency.

2. A Responsible Leader of a Responsible Party.

Davis has what Coolidge lacks—the power to lead. Good intentions are not enough. Results alone count. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

As a leader Coolidge has failed utterly. Even his vetoes have been forbidden. It would almost seem that whatever Coolidge asks Congress refuses. And it is the very leadership in Congress who thus flouts the leadership who are now asking us to vote for him.

3. One Who Can Restore Honesty.

We certainly need a responsible government, led by an effective President, not a futile flouted figurehead, and one who can at least begin his immediate cabinet honest. Mr. Coolidge wishes party responsibility he cannot, at the same time, shirk such responsibility. As his own henchman, Senator Pepper says, the Republican party is responsible for the frauds under the present administration. There stands the record—Newberry, Fall, Denby, Daugherty, Forbes and others—a record of incompetence, corruption, bribery.

And not only is the Republican party to be held to strict accountability for its stewardship, so basely betrayed, but Coolidge himself cannot escape responsibility. He did nothing at the outset to help discover the truth regarding the oil scandals and the prohibition enforcement scandals. On the contrary, he did much to discourage and impede their investigation.

4. Avoid a Deadlocked Government.

The Independents are apparently thinking of voting for Coolidge because of the rosy pictures of the legendary Coolidge, but at the same time, voting against his colleagues in the Senate and House whom they overrode his vetoes. There is, therefore, a very real danger that after election day, we may have on up to find a Republican President and a Democratic Congress elected. If coolidge cannot lead a Republican Congress he probably cannot lead a Democratic one. We have a partial deadlock already. Let us not make it worse. Rather let us, by electing Davis and a Democratic Congress, return to a responsible government. Nothing so much needs a political party as a few years' vacation. The Republican party needs this chastening.

5. A Democratic Record Cleaner.

It is quite true, of course, that the Democratic party is no more immune from corruption than the Republican party, given the same temptations. If they should become likewise drunk with power they must be turned out in the same ruthless way. But today the Democratic party is a far freer of corruption than the Republican. In that respect its last record was good. In 1917 and 1918 it conducted a great war with vast opportunities for graft but with scarcely a whisper of scandal, despite the systematic effort of opponents to prove corruption. Moreover, Mr. Wilson, instead of trying to prevent and hamper investigation as Mr. Coolidge has done, or complaining that the investigations were being conducted by those of the opposition party, voluntarily placed the investigation of the airplane contracts in the hands of a distinguished political opponent, Mr. Hughes. His published report failed to show corruption as did the 80 other investigations vainly started with that object in view.

Mr. Davis, in answer to the question "what is the difference between the Republican and Democratic parties" recently said: "The Republican party is the one which wants its record forgotten. The Democratic party is the one which wants its record remembered."

6. The Republican Tariff Scandals.

The oil scandals are by no means the only scandals which the Republican party would like to be forgotten or overlooked. There are the tariff scandals. The Fordney-McCumber tariff is the highest and worst tariff America ever had, worse even than the Payne-Aldrich tariff. No political scandal can be more serious than this taxing all consumers in return for campaign contributions from the special interests "protected" thereby. Such "protection" is morally like the "protection" of vice and bootlegging by a corrupt city government.

IRVING FISHER TELLS WHY DAVIS SHOULD GET INDEPENDENT VOTE

It is furthermore a scandal that these "protected" interests sell at high monopoly prices in America and at low competitive prices abroad.

It is still more scandalous for these interests and their minions in Congress to bamboozle the voter into believing that the "protection" they bought and paid for is really in his interest, despite the obvious fact that the tariff raised the cost of living.

The only hope of checking such scandals today is through the Democratic party. Mr. Taft tried to reform from within to—get at least "the front paws of the tariff hogs out of the trough"—but failed.

7. The Republican Scandals in Foreign Policy.

Scandalous also was the misrepresentation of the League of Nations and the World Court. Leaders of the Republican party, in order to help defame and discredit them, misstated the facts. Accredited speakers of that party made millions of trusting people believe such falsehoods as that the league in a "superstate," imparts sovereignty, would contravene our Constitution, could "order our soldier boys abroad," interferes with the Monroe Doctrine, gives Great Britain six votes to our one, recognized white slavery, is an instrumentality for holding down Germany, Austria and Ireland. The Republican party promised a better "Association of Nations" and then failed to keep the promise. They likewise succeeded in sidetracking the court proposal of their own presidents, Harding and Coolidge, a proposal made nearly two years ago and still promised in the 1924 platform.

Promises but not performance! There have been nearly four years' opportunity to give us the Association of Nations and nearly two years have gone by since January, 1923, when Mr. Hughes and Mr. Harding proposed that we enter the Court. Mr. Coolidge also has asked for it, but Mr. Lodge and the other irreconcilables have thus far blocked it.

Coolidge, in his acceptance speech, also boasts that "we have co-operated with it (the League of Nations) to suppress the narcotic trade and promote public health." So far so good. But such unofficial and back-door membership in the League of Nations is a very small part of what might have been done.

With petty personal jealousy and bitter partianship, Lodge and his crew opposed the league in order especially to crucify Woodrow Wilson. One of their chief leaders said: "I believe the League of Nations is the greatest step forward in history, but I hate Woodrow Wilson, so I can't strongly support it."

The American people, even those who disliked Wilson, are beginning to frown on such an attitude. Witness the loss of caste of the irreconcilables, Lodge, Johnson, Moses, Brandegee, McCormick, Fall, et al.

The Republican a Standpat Party.

The Democratic party stands out today as the party of achievement. The Federal reserve act and the League of Nations, in particular, will be enduring monuments to the Wilson Democracy.

As to the future, what constructive proposals has the Republican party to offer? Davis, on the other hand, in his masterly speech at Omaha, proposes real remedies because he has made a real diagnosis. The things really responsible for the farmer's plight are three: (1) the loss of his foreign markets through the failure of this administration to help restore peace and economic credit in Europe; (2) the further fall of prices from credit deflation following the Republican platform of 1920 and largely induced by Senator McCormick's resolution demanding it; and (3) the rise in the prices of what the farmer buys, brought about by the Fordney-McCumber tariff.

As to labor, the world knows that labor was helped more in the Wilson administration than in all previous administrations put together. In this work, especially the Clayton act, John W. Davis rendered conspicuous service. Davis has been one of the strongest opponents of the growing abuse of the judicial injunction as a weapon of capital against labor. It is significant that Coolidge in his speeches has ignored the injunction question, doubtless because in his administration it has been abused under Daugherty.

9. La Follette.

Other reasons for voting for Davis might be given in connection with the questions of prohibition enforcement, taxation, etc., and in relation to the efforts of Senator La Follette to throw the election into Congress.

Most supporters of La Follette would rather have Davis President than Coolidge, for Davis is a progressive and Coolidge is a standpatter. In the same breath they say that the La Follette movement will injure Davis more than Coolidge, and this may be true in some states. In such cases, they are supporting a movement which, in effect, helps the candidate they most want to defeat. Why waste a vote?

La Follette's proposal to nullify the power of the Supreme Court to interpret our Constitution is revolutionary. It imperils every safeguard of American individual liberty, brings us back to the English idea of giving the legislative supreme power and might land us in Russian bolshevism.

10. Back to Idealism.

Finally I favor Davis because his election will mean a return to idealism. The conscience of America is pricked by the cynical materialism which has possessed the present administration. We have allowed Germany and all Europe to suffer when we might have helped without sacrifice, but with profit. We have played the Priest and the Levite and passed by on the other side. The real way to restore Germany and Europe generally is the way the League of Nations has already restored Austria. But four years ago a Republic campaign manager proclaimed that the American people were "more interested in their own stomachs than in the heart of the world.'"

Now we are ashamed of such cynical materialism; it has cost us not only cold dollars and cents in a depression in trade. It has cost us national self-respect. Let us get away from the lowlands and miasmas of Newberry, Fall, Daugherty and Lodge with all the graft, corruption, hate, jealousy and petty politics, back to the noble statesmanship and idealism of a Lincoln, a Wilson and a Davis.

Man Sleeps Like Log—Eats Anything

Was Once a Wreck From Gas on Stomach

"I suffered from gas on the stomach so that I couldn't keep food down and toss in bed all night. After taking one bottle Adlerika (intestinal antiseptic) I can eat anything and sleep like a log." (Signed) R. C. Miller.

Intestinal Antiseptic.

There is now offered to the public a liquid preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a complete system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows:

It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacill in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It cleans out BOTH upper and lower bowel and removes foul matter which poisoned the system for months. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the intestinal canal—matter you never thought was in your system.

Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much MORE food you get out of it. It brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach or sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. For longer treatment, however, in chronic cases of obstinate constipation and long standing stomach trouble, use according to direction of your physician.

Reports from Physicians.

"I have found nothing in my long practice to excel Adlerika." (Signed) James Weaver.

"I congratulate you on the good results from Adlerika since I prescribed it." (Signed) Dr. I. Langbaum.

"I use Adlerika in all bowel cases and require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. P. (Name withheld by request.)

"Adlerika is the best in my 40 years' experience." (Signed) Dr. Rogers.

"I cannot describe awful poisons eliminated from my system by Adlerika. Feel better than for 20 years." (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

Adlerika is a big surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel movements, but a single dose of Adlerika will convince you that it is different from any such medicine you have ever taken. Because of its unique and COMPLETE action, Adlerika is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Sold in St. Louis by Walgreen Drug Co., 7th and Washington; Liggett Drug Co., and other leading druggists.

SHAW ADVISES BULGARIANS TO DEVELOP A SENSE OF HUMOR

Grows Ironical in Comment on Flurry Over Production of His "Arms and the Man."

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 11.—Bulgarian students in Berlin and Vienna are admonished by Bernard Shaw to develop a sense of humor. The writer promises to assist them in this, pleading that such an acquisition will eliminate future trouble.

The playwright's advice is embodied in a whimsical letter written to a Berlin editor, which was provoked by the recent flurry over the production of Shaw's "Arms and the Man," to which the Bulgarian Legation made a formal protest.

"The barbarous Bulgarians (Bulgaria, like other nations, has its rustics and its barbarians) behave exactly as my own countrymen behaved when Synge's 'Playboy of the Western World' was performed in Dublin," he writes. "But for the credit of their country's civilization, I appeal to them to sit and smile and applaud like the rest, even if they feel they would like to shoot me, as many people do in England and the United States."

FISHER LASSIES HAVE TEA WITH PREMIER MACDONALD

Lossiemouth Girls Only Wanted to See Inside of House, but They Got More.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Three fisher lassies from Lossiemouth had the time of their lives last week when, after visiting the British empire exhibition at Wembley, they took tea with Premier MacDonald and his daughters at the official residence of the Prime Minister, 10 Downing street. Wembley was "just great," but they wanted also to see the inside of the Prime Minister's town house. When the girls arrived at Downing street Miss Ishbel MacDonald heard of their presence and invited them to tea, which was just being served to the Premier and his daughters.

"That was the greatest honor fish girls have ever had," said one of them afterward.

At 3:30 Monday afternoon Miss Hopley will address the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, at the Kingshighway Presbyterian Church, 5010 Kingshighway.

CODFISH BALLS OR SALMON?

Question Agitates French Town for Dinner to Doumergue.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 11.—Whether codfish balls or salmon should head the menu at the banquet on the occasion of President Doumergue's first official visit to Nimes as President of the Republic nearly disrupted the council of his native town. M. Doumergue, who was born near Nimes, and spent his early life in the town as a lawyer, and later became deputy for the Department of Gard and then its Senator, will make his first official trip to Nimes tomorrow.

One of the local specialties is cod fish balls, made with cream, oil and garlic. The official program, however, called for salmon. A compromise finally was reached by putting both on the menu.

CANADA GETS U. S. GRAIN TRADE

Supplants America as Chief Exporter of Wheat to England.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—The United States is no longer the chief exporter of wheat to the United Kingdom. The largest supplies of this grain to the British Isles now come from the Dominion of Canada, with the United States second and Argentina a close third.

It is only in barley and oats that the United States has retained its hold on English imports; in the case of oats the importations have slightly increased.

Mother's Circle to Meet.

The Mother's Circle of the Ben Blewett junior high school, will hold their next regular meeting tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. Principal M. N. Ryan will speak on "What the School is trying To Do for the Children." An interesting meeting is promised, and all mothers are urged to attend.

Work on Church Addition.

In connection with the recent observance of the thirtieth anniversary of the Cote Brilliante Presbyterian Church, work has been started on an addition to the present building by excavating under the entire auditorium, for rooms which will be used for social and Sunday school purposes.

Shrine to Be Open Oct. 17.

In observance of the feast of St. Margaret Mary, Friday, Oct. 17, the shrine of the Sacred Heart, Visitation Convent, Cabanne and Belt avenues, will be open to visitors on that day. There will be sermon with benediction at 3:30 p. m.

MEETING OF CATTLE BREEDERS

100 Members Expected to Attend Session Here in December.

One hundred breeders are expected to attend the annual meeting of the Dutch Belted Cattle Association of America to be held at the Maryland Hotel Dec. 1 and 2. At the same time it is proposed to hold an exhibit of the breed in St. Louis, according to E. W. Kinnaman of Cassville, Mo. first vice president of the association, who is making arrangements for the convention.

Dutch Belted is an old established dairy breed the first individuals of which were brought to America by P. T. Barnum in 1840, for exhibition. Most of the animals in America are descendants of those, for until 1906 Holland would not permit their exportation, according to Mr. Kinnaman. There are two breeders in St. Louis County, John L. Greene, president of the Laclede-Christy Products Company, and Otto Eberwein, both at Chesterfield, Mo.

Presbyterian Trustes to Meet.

The Board of Trustees of Presbytery, National Missions Committee, will give a luncheon on Oct. 13 for Presbyterian pastors in the interest of Pulpit Exchange Sunday, Oct. 19, on which date the Building Fellowship Plan will be announced in all churches and subscriptions taken for the building fund.

Convention of Catholic Knights.
The triennial convention of the Missouri State Council of the Catholic Knights of America, will be held at Hermann, Mo., Oct. 12 and 13. A feature of the affair will be the official admission of a new ladies' company into the uniform rank department.

In Studio and Gallery

A HIGHLY important collection of eighteenth century English portraits will be exhibited for the next 10 days or two weeks at the Kocian Gallery. An adequate study of the pictures would require that entire period, admirers of portraiture enjoying whatever time they spend before the paintings.

Over half the number of portraits are of women. The manner of the painters' handling of the subtler subjects is a source of great interest.

The Gainsborough "Portrait of a Lady" is a most curious character study. A very dark, rich background gives slowly into the pale, unemotionalism of the subject, a clear featured lady of the aristocracy. Powdered hair is brushed high off her plain forehead. Her rather ashy face is enigmatic. At first one would call it empty, but the sophistication felt elsewhere dispels the idea of vapidity. Instead, her attitude becomes a triumph, the achievement of difficult years. Her profound imperturbability seems a miraculous attainment, for it renders her finally pain-proof.

A Romney portrait of Mrs. Chitty Marshall is a distinct change of climate. Sunbeams romp through the vivacious young matron's clustering curls. Seriousness has no place in those laughing eyes. Even giggles might be imagines as issuing from her soft lips. Life could find no resting place in her constitution for any of its responsibilities. Only laughter and a tireless desire to please animate her being.

The same painter has portrayed a different personality in his portrait of Maria, daughter of Lord Archer. Adolescence is seen in one of its most charming phases. In the majority of cases, such a mass of curly blonde hair would suggest frivolity. However, a little band of blue ribbon holds the curls down above her forehead in a quaint manner. She is quite unaffected. Beautiful features and placid expression with a tinge of expectancy indicate a delightful personality. The picture is painted somewhat sketchily, suggesting rather than defining the unfolding character.

Maes' portrait of an old lady is technically superb. A most difficult subject and one presenting almost no opportunity for the assistance of color, has been treated with great dignity and mastery. The flesh qualities, impossible of idealization, have been handled tenderly but truthfully. Never an extreme pleasure, they have been accurately depicted with the minimum amount of disagreeableness. The work with the texture of cloth is also fine. A dull black gown and white neckpiece present a difficult contrast in themselves, especially when used near the flesh tones just described.

Other prominent portraits in the collection are those of "Lady Mary Hope" and "General James Law" by John Hoppner, "Portrait of a Girl," by Raeburn, and "Lord Farnham," by George Romney.

TAKUMA KAJIWARA'S beautiful, decorative portrait of "Lucretia" has been reproduced to form the cover design of the latest issue of "Town and Country." The three-quarter length figure is backgrounded by characteristically Japanese panellings, the lowering of color key sending the screen a few necessary feet behind the figure without actually separating the figure from its setting. This portrait was exhibited in last year's Pennsylvania Academy show and may possibly be entered in one of the fall shows in St. Louis this year.

INSTALLATION of the Nels O. Nelson Memorial Fountain in Leclaire, the factory village of the Nelson Manufacturing Co. at Edwardsville, Ill., has recently been completed. The fountain, consisting of an eight-foot stela with a drinking fountain and a 10-foot basin, was executed by Victor S. Holm of the St. Louis School of Fine Arts and Prof. Gabriel Ferrand of Washington University.

Employes of the Nels O. Nelson Manufacturing Co. are responsible for the erection of this fountain. It is their desire to commemorate the attributes of the organizer and deceased president of the concern, famed as he was as the pioneer of profit-sharing and co-operation in America.

A humorous theme was chosen for the figure of the fountain as a continuation of Nelson's tireless enthusiasm in children's life and welfare as indicated by his numerous gifts to public playgrounds. A bronze group of a child straddling a large turkey gobbler is placed in the basin on the obverse side of the stela. In its upraised hands the child holds a shell from which water spouts into the basin below. The basin is provided with two bronze frogs from which water flows in rather broken streams.

On the reserve side of the stela is a drinking fountain above which the Memorial Bronze Tablet is recessed into the stone. The tablet contains a medallion portrait of Nelson and a dignified inscription of appreciation and admiration from his employes.

The modeling of the life-sized figure of the child and the turkey is exceptionally fine. Beside well-controlled technique, Mr. Holm has given the group a charming spirit of childhood's impulsiveness. Throughout innumerable villages and small towns in Europe one can find such bits of art in public squares, but it is safe to say that Leclair has the distinction of being the only town of its size in the United States that can boast of a fountain of this character. Prof. Ferrand's handling of the architectural framing of the figure is splendid. The stela, the coping for the basin and the drinking fountain basin and pedestal are made of Missouri granite and all surfaces, excepting the coping, are polished. The fountain is placed in a triangular section of the school lawn at Leclaire, where it is entirely accessible and will afford enjoyment and amusement to the children.

PROF. WHITTEMORE, prominent Egyptologist of the British School of Archeology, visited the City Art Museum last week on his return from Arizona, New Mexico and other sections of the Southwest where he has done some research among the remains of the cliff dwellers' habitations. He was delighted with the museum's collection of Egyptian objects, and added to the definite information concerning several. Prof. Whittemore immediately recognized one of the scarabs to be that of the recently famed Pharaoh, Tutankahmen, and his reading knowledge of Egyptian hieroglyphics enabled him to determine that the portion of a figure drawn in relief on one of the sandstone slabs represented that of Tutankahmen's father.

He was especially enthusiastic over the bowl in the museum's collection, which is ornamented with the design of a woman's head. This bowl has been attributed by archeological authorities to the thirteenth century. Its significance, therefore, is threefold. Not only is it of importance archeologically and artistically, but historically in relation to religious evolution. The bowl was made in and survived the period in Egyptian history when, by the marriage of the Pharoah to a Jewish Princess, the belief in one God, a spirit God, was introduced into the country, thus necessitating the edict against "graven images." Several fragments have been broken from the rim of this bowl, which directly violated the laws of the period, but the portrait of this unknown woman remains intact. It is one of the most precious objects in the collection.

Celebrate Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary.
The fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Ernst Klun, 4223 Natural Bridge road, was celebrated last week at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Edward Hartmann. Cured Indigestion With Yeast Foam Tablets
"When I began taking Yeast Foam Tablets I was suffering greatly with indigestion. From the first I felt greatly benefited and now (I am taking the second bottle) the trouble has entirely left me and I think that my greatly [illegible] physical condition is entirely due to your Yeast Foam Tablets. I take great pleasure in recommending them to my friends."

The Good Janesville (BALL BEARING)

(Beginning October First).

Is Offered in Combination With a Pair of SHERWOOD Ball-Bearing STEEL RACERS

Both Free of All Cost

For Four Subscriptions to the Daily Post-Dispatch

Janesville Specifications Prove Janesville Superiority

10-inch, double-disc wheels—bound together with steel rim instead of rivets or spot welding. Oversize rubber tires—put on to stay! 36x16-inch selected white ash body. Curved pole irons make steering easy. Patented Janesville ball bearings—all wearing parts heat treated and case hardened. Heavy selected white ash bolsters—strong and durable. Extra heavy hound and bolster braces. One-half-inch cold rolled steel axles, fastened to the bolsters with metal clips instead of weakening the axle by drilling holes. Beautifully finished—body and bolsters in natural wood; wheels in red enamel.

Sherwood Steel Racers Make a Worthy Added Prize

IN Sherwood sidewalk Steel Racers all of the time-tested features of standard construction have been retained, while weak points and faults have been eliminated.

Built of finest quality steel throughout, wheels specially designed for free rolling, minimum friction and longest possible wear.

The reinforcing ridge, embossed on top and bottom of bridge between heel and toe plate, gives firmness and rigidity, prevents sagging or bulging and doubles the strength of the Racer without adding weight.

All bearing points are hardened and ground to prevent wear. The four-point contact of wheel bearings insures free and easy rolling against strain at any angle; balls cannot bind or pile up in ball race, thus minimizing ball breakage. Rubber cushions under the bolster absorb shock, provide easy running, and a short turning radius.

October is the banner month for the prize-winning, spare-time effort of boys and girls in the service of the Post-Dispatch. It is the beginning of the long-evening season, when the fireplace and the cozy corner supplant the seaside, the mountains and even the home garden in popular appreciation. Vacation time is in eclipse, and the serious tasks of school and business claim attention. World progress is in the making, and world events challenge the interest of him who would keep pace with world progress. New importance attaches to the home-delivered copy of the Daily Post-Dispatch. Informant, counselor and entertainer, it serves the entire family as a good neighbor, and earns a daily welcome as an outstanding exponent of clean and wholesome, yet vigorous and enterprising journalism.

To extend this unique Post-Dispatch service to the widest possible circle of readers; to surpass all previous October records; to enroll and generously reward even a greater number of boys and girls than participated in our Free Coaster Wagon distribution of last year, the Post-Dispatch now offers as an

October Period Prize Combination { A Janesville (Ball-Bearing) Coaster Wagon and / A Pair of Sherwood (Ball-Bearing) Steel Racers

OHIOANS PRESENT 5 BUILDINGS FOR BABIES TO MOOSEHEART

Will Be Known as Ohio Plaza and Used for Infants Too Old for Baby Village.

By the Associated Press.

MOOSEHEART, Ill., Oct. 11.—Another chapter in Mooseheart's childhood conservation program was written when the 52,017 Ohio residents who are members of the Loyal Order of Moose presented to their supreme officials, headed by Secretary James J. Davis, five buildings costing $250,000 to be erected here.

Mooseheart is a city of childhood built and maintained by the Moose order, as a school home city for dependent children of deceased members of the order.

The Ohio village will join what already is officially known as the Pennsylvania Baby village. It is the only one in which the inhabitants, except those taking care of them, are babies.

The Ohio buildings will be known as Ohio Plaza, into which will go the babies after they are too big and too old for the Baby village. The Ohio Plaza will be of distinct Ohio architecture, and the central building will be a copy of the State Capitol at Columbus.

Thirty-nine new buildings are to be erected at Mooseheart, all to be donated by lodges and groups of lodges. These new buildings will cost about $1,500,000. Nearly $10,000,000 has been expended for buildings and accessories at Mooseheart since it was founded in July, 1913.

FALL FLOWER SHOW WILL START AT COLISEUM NOV. 11

Annual Exhibit of Blossoms Will Continue for Four Days.

The 1924 Fall Flower Show will open at the Coliseum on Nov. 11 and continue for four days. Last year the annual show was held at the Armory, but the attendance and exhibits taxed the capacity of that building and the Coliseum has been chosen this year, so the show may have adequate space.

Last year there were 250 exhibits on view at the show, and more are expected this year. Several thousand dollars in prizes will be awarded to exhibitors, as well as numerous cups, medals and other trophies. Competitors may enter from any part of the country.

The show is under the auspices of the St. Louis Flower Show, Inc., and the St. Louis Florists' Club. On certain hours of each day of the exhibition school children will be admitted without charge.

CALLES EXPECTED A MARSHAL

Surprised When Colonel Met Him at Paris Station.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 11.—Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, president-elect of Mexico, was greatly pleased on arriving in Paris to find so many of his countrymen here to greet him. But he appeared to be unable to conceal his surprise at the modesty of the representation of the French Government at the station. The President of France was represented by a Colonel of brilliant record but of simple bearing. After the reception Gen. Calles asked one of the Mexican party that came to meet him: "Are there no more Marshals in France?"

It was then explained to the Mexican President-elect that receptions to distinguished foreigners are regulated to a nicety by the "protocol" which is a sort of code of etiquette that guides the authorities in organizing receptions. Under the "protocol" Gen. Calles was entitled only to such courtesies as the officials accord distinguished statesmen traveling incognito. He was not considered in the same category as the actual head of a State. Gen. Calles also was informed that Colonels in France are of more consequence than in Mexico. The President-elect appeared surprised that an officer could serve in the French army for so many years before getting even a Colonel's rank.

BERLIN MARRIAGE BROKERS

One Thousand of Them Divide Clientele in Three Classes.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 11.—Berlin alone has 1000 marriage brokers. They are divided into three classes—first-class brokers, who deal only with clients of high social standing; brokers of the second class who handle the love affairs of the bourgeois, the third-class brokers who deal only with the workers. One of the leading brokers, a woman with an upper class following, boasts having made 36 matches in three years, or one for every month. She says the photograph of no client has remained in her album for more than a year. Many of the marriages she arranged really turned out to be love affairs.

This broker admitted that most of her clients were women with dowries and whose beauty did not equal their fortunes. She said the most annoying feature of her work was the disposition, both by men and women, to understate ages. Eventually a properly certified birth certificate must be produced, and the truth often led to the breaking off of potential matches.

M. E. Bishop to Lay Cornerstone

Bishop Ernest L. Waldorf will preside at the corner stone laying ceremonies Tuesday afternoon, for the new Salem Methodist Church, at Kingshighway and Cote Brilliante avenue. Addresses will be made by men prominent in church circles, and by Mayor Kiel. The church has been equipped with an extraordinary pipe organ—a memorial gift to the new church. It is estimated that the auditorium, when completed will accommodate 500 persons.

GARDNER TO SPEAK HERE

Former Gov. Frederick D. Gardner and former Senator X. P. Wilfley, president of the Missouri Bar Association, will speak at the Columbus Day banquet of the Knight of Columbus, at Hotel Statler today. The banquet concludes the Silver Jubilee Week of the organization in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the first Knights of Columbus council west of the Mississippi River, which was the St. Louis council.

A vesper service will be held tonight at St. Francis Xavier Church.

Simple Home Mixture Darkens Gray Hair

Cincinnati Barber Tells How Any One Can Prepare It in 5 Minutes.

Any man or woman can easily look twenty years younger by simply darkening their gray, faded, or streaky hair. This is now easy to accomplish with a recipe given by a well known Cincinnati barber.

Simply take a half-pint of water, add one ounce of bay rum, ¼ ounce of glycerine and a small box of Barbo Compound. Shake and it is ready to use. These ingredients can be bought at drug stores at trifling cost.

Applied to the hair twice weekly this delightful mixture quickly gives the desired shade. It is easy to use, is not sticky or greasy, will not color the scalp and does not rub off.

WHY PHYSICIANS RECOMMEND SANGRINA TO FAT PEOPLE

"If I had not carefully analyzed, tested and seen my own sister reduce and improve her health with 'SAN-GRI-NA,'" says Dr. McAlpine, "I would not be recommending it to my patients today."

Dr. Jacoby writes: "My wife has about finished the 'SAN-GRI-NA' you sent her, and I wish you could see the wonderful change in her appearance. She never felt better in all her life."

"I have used 'SAN-GRI-NA' for my wife," says Dr. Harris, "and now recommend it to my fat patients."

"I recommended 'SAN-GRI-NA' to my mother," says Dr. Narbonne, "because I knew, after looking at the formula for years, it was absolutely harmless to the health and positive to results. It is the only way I know of to a good figure and perfect health."

REDUCES 63 POUNDS

"I weighed 200 pounds," writes Mrs. M. D. Pasquale, of Worcester, "and have reduced to 137 pounds. . . . I would like to have another box of 'SAN-GRI-NA.'"

Up to now physicians have rarely advised anything to reduce outside of diet and exercises (both tiresome and inconvenient), because they knew of nothing HARMLESS and EFFECTIVE, but to-day, in recommending "SAN-GRI-NA," a doctor feels that he is doing something with real merit, so entirely different, from all the advertised fakes and frauds that he does not hesitate to advise its use, even to his own family. Prominent physicians, such as Dr. Rudolph, former Health Commissioner, endorses "SAN-GRI-NA" as THE ONLY SAFE, positive and quick way to slenderness he knows of.

"SAN-GRI-NA" is the formula of a French physician. It is put up in a small, convenient tablet, to be taken three times a day. Although only recently introduced in America, "SAN-GRI-NA" is now recognized as a most effective treatment for the fat people because:

➡ IT HAS REDUCED MOST OBSTINATE CASES OF OBESITY.

➡ IT DOES AWAY WITH HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE, HEADACHES, TIRED FEELING, AND THE FAT MAN OR WOMAN WHO USES "SAN-GRI-NA" ONCE MORE ENJOYS LIFE.

➡ IT IS ENTIRELY DIFFERENT FROM ANYTHING EVER OFFERED.

➡ IT IS GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC: Beware of worthless imitations. "SAN-GRI-NA" is sold with a guarantee of satisfaction or money refunded. Go to your druggist to-day. Be sure to ASK FOR AND GET THE FRENCH BOX MARKED "SAN-GRI-NA" TABLETTES TABLETTES SAN-GRI-NA." On sale at any of Speckart Bros., Draper's, Enderle's, Otto's, Jules & Co., Wolff-Wilson's or Kranson Bros.' Drug Stores.

Editorial
Don't Let Ours Fall!

John Ruskin, one of the world's masters of literature, thought and teachings, wrote as follows: BUILDING FOR POSTERITY IS THE ONLY BUILDING WORTH WHILE.

I WOULD HAVE OUR ORDINARY DWELLING HOUSES BUILT TO LAST AND BUILT TO BE LOVELY; RICH AND FULL OF PLEASANTNESS WITHIN AS WELL AS WITHOUT.

Just so may a man's character be reflected in his home, for as time goes on the elevating influences of properly appointed homes must have their effect throughout the Universe.

When homes deteriorate, nations tremble, totter, then fall.

THE WORLD'S IMPERISHABLE MONUMENT IS THE HOME!

Preserve it!

Buy Real Estate Now!

When you look at properties which were bought years ago at prices far below their present values, and realize that now they are hardly for sale at any price, it should make you think—and act!

History repeats itself. Men of a past generation who looked ahead bought real estate. Men of foresight today are buying real estate.

Every man can become a landowner, and those who exercise good judgment now will in years to come be the envy of those who did not invest today in city property, suburban lots or farm lands.

You cannot go wrong on the future of St. Louis real estate. It is a wise investment. The natural growth and development of the city make it so. The increasing demand for well-located real estate will also steadily enhance its value.

Whatever other opportunities in life you have let slip by you, do not lose this one.

Make sure of it right now by reading the Post-Dispatch "Real Estate" columns, selecting the properties which interest you, and making arrangements to see them and talk terms with the dealers and owners.

Demand for Investment Holdings Dominates Real Estate Market

Pending Operation Contemplates Sale of Well-Known Landmark and Involves $5,000,000.

By Berry Moore.

Negotiations for investment holdings continue to dominate the real estate market. Operations along this line, however, have been retarded somewhat, owing to the Fall festivities.

The most notable operation on the calendar contemplates sale and resale of one of the best known landmarks of the central business district in fee simple with aggregate considerations of $5,000,000 or more. As the source of an unprecedented senior loan, for which negotiations have been concluded, a large life insurance company is an important factor in this operation. This, with the sale of a second deed of trust or junior mortgage, now in negotiation, will provide the requisite capital for its execution.

Only a nominal amount has been deposited as earnest money in this connection, while the profits to be derived, according to realty circles, will run well into six figures.

Capital Is Abundant.

This is mentioned as only one of a number of deals on a major scale, pending for centrally situated holdings. There has been a general awakening of interest in large properties, especially those involving speculative advantages. This is due presumably to abundant supply of capital available for both speculation and investment, together with the fact that the investment section of the St. Louis real estate market is on a conservative basis, rather than otherwise, with the course of prices upward.

The International Life Ins. Co.'s purchase of the St. Regis Apartments, involving $1,750,000, is noteworthy as showing the trend of new capital toward real estate investments, real estate agents declare.

The concensus of opinion is that there will be a notable expansion of operations, provided the results of the election are without adverse effects. Plans doubtless will materialize for many buildings for the business district, both east and west of Twelfth boulevard, in view of the urgent demand for accommodation in this area, especially with the resources available. Plans for the erection of a 10-story loft building at the southwest corner of Thirteenth and Washington avenue are regarded as a forerunner.

Many Apartments Built.

The Mercantile Trust Co., the First National Co. and the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., which finance large building enterprises through serial note issues, secured by first deeds of trust, recently have made a record number of loans for projects in other cities. Demand for loans of this character in St. Louis, however, has been on a negligible scale, due to construction cost, principally, according to officials of these companies. There have been hosts of apartment buildings, including several on the hotel plan erected, but these have been financed by outside investment bankers, or others, not requiring the maximum marging of security.

The Mercantile Trust Company has been generous in its loans for large buildings in St. Louis, the most recent providing for construction of the 12-story Missouri theater and office building at Grand boulevard and Lucas avenue, and the Rice-Stix building at Seventh and Locust streets. The new big department store recently erected in Los Angeles for the May Department Stores Company, which includes in its chain of stores the Famous-Barr store, was financed by the Mercantile Trust Company, which also is financing construction for the new Arlington Hotel at Hot Springs National Park, Ark., which will cost, including furnishings, $3,400,000.

Slight Decline in September.

Construction activities declined very slightly in September, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation. The drop from August in Eastern states (which include about seven-eighths of the total construction volume of the country) was only two per cent, which is less than the usual seasonal decline. The total value of the September building contracts was $344,316,300. This is an increase of 19 per cent over the previous September. Compared with this season of last year, building is considerably more active now in the Middle Atlantic States than in other sections.

H. U. TEBBE BUYS TEBBE BUILDING

The Tebbe Building at 3615-17-19 South Grand boulevard was sold to Herman U. Tebbe last week. The Albert G. Blanke Real Estate Co. made the deal. Martin L. Newberry, vice president, handling the negotiations.

The building, only recently completed, was erected from plans by Saum Bros., architects, who were the grantors in the transaction. The price was not disclosed.

The building is on a lot 75 by 140 feet. Three stores are on the first floor and 17 offices on the second.

The Stephen Saum Real Estate Co. represented the purchaser.

HETTEL JEWELRY CO. LEASES WASHINGTON AVENUE BUILDING

The C. R. Hettel Jewelry Co. closed a long term lease on the ground floor and basement of the building at 907-09 Washington avenue.

The firm deals in jewelry and dry goods novelties at wholesale and was organized Jan. 10, 1890.

The storeroom at 2841 Locust boulevard has been leased to A. T. Ahlberg who will take over the agency for the Hartford shock absorber.

Isaac T. Cook & Co., Inc., represented parties in these leases.

ONE OF HOUSES BEING BUILT IN COUNTRY CLUB COURT IS SOLD

One of the 15 houses being built by the Remmert Construction Co. in the new Country Club Court addition has been sold, while negotiations are pending for others, the company reports. The houses range in price from $22,000 to $25,000. Each building will be of original design.

The addition is on the west side of Hanley road a block north of Wydown boulevard.

2 ENTRANCES TO HOLLY HILLS TO RUN THROUGH CARONDELET PARK

One of the features of Holly Hills is the main entrance to the subdivision, after crossing the viaduct on Grand-Kingshighway boulevard, enters Holly Hills through Carondelet Park. This entrance was built by the Federer Realty Co. Work on the continuation of it to the west is under way.

The company states that it has spent more than $40,000 on the entrances and to improve the park front and park property.

A new entrance to the subdivision through Carondelet Park is being opened, and is a continuation of Livingston Drive, which will create a new traffic thoroughfare through the park south to Loughborough avenue.

TWO FIRMS ARE ELECTED R. E. EXCHANGE MEMBERS

The Voss-Jennings-Winter Real Estate Co., 2322 North Union boulevard, and Irvin Ely Goldstine, Wainwright Building, were elected to membership in the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange Thursday. Officers of the Voss-Jennings-Winter company: E. C. Voss, president; G. G. Jennings, vice president; E. T. Winter, secretary-treasurer.

THIRD FLOOR OF BUILDING LEASED FOR BEAUTY PARLOR

The Mercantile Trust Co. reports having leased to Misses Irene Kohrman and Viola Benson the third floor of 312-14 North Sixth street, in the Southern Pacific building. Misses Kohrman and Benson have fitted up hese quarters for a hairdressing and beauty parlor.

The Mercantile Trust Co. represented three different parties in this transaction, as it resulted into a remising of the lease held by the Retail Credit Men's Association, and making a new lease for the Regal Shoe Co., who are the lessees of the building.

W. P. JOY BUILDING NEW GROUP OF COLONIAL HOUSES

The English Colonial houses being erected at Newport and Summit avenues in Webster Groves by Wilson P. Joy are attracting noteworthy attention.

These houses were designed to meet the demand for dwellings of moderate cost and size and are the second of a series to be built this year. They will contain from four to nine rooms. The first of the series was known as the Maple avenue house. A picture of the houses is shown elsewhere.

RESIDENCE OF W. K. WOODS IS OF MANOR HOUSE TYPE

The residence of Woodson K. Woods, shown on this page, is of sixteenth century English manor house architecture.

The building conforms to the typography of the ground and is irregular in plan. It is constructed of brick, stone and stucco and has a thatched slate roof. The horizontal lines of the building are further emphasized by two long walls connecting the garage to the house and which incloses the service yard. The garden side has large flagstone terrace, with timbered gables and balconies.

The building is entered through a spacious vestibule leading to a vaulted rotunda through the arches of which one enters the living room, garden, morning room, dining room and stair hall. The living room is vaulted with a huge stone fireplace at the terminus of the vista seen from the rotunda. The morning room has stone floor and rough timbered ceiling and has three large wrought iron doors leading to the garden terrace.

The building is of fireproof construction throughout and is being erected under the supervision of Maritz and Young, Inc., architects.

H. WALKER FURNITURE CO. LEASES ADDITIONAL QUARTERS

A long term lease has been negotiated by the Martin and Breitt Real Estate Co. to the H. Walker Furniture Co. on the seven-story and basement building at 705 Lucas avenue, the lease being made for the account of Frank Lind.

This building contains 30,000 square feet and will be used as a branch salesroom and warehouse by the Walker company, after alterations are made in the amount of about $15,000.

The owner of the building intends to modernize it throughout, installing a new sprinkler system, new high power electric elevators, steam heating plant and show windows. The first and second floors and basement will be used for retail purposes and the upper floors for warehousing surplus merchandise.

William Mollett is president of the H. Walker Furniture Co., which has a store at 206 North Twelfth street and a branch store at 1117 Locust street.

BUSINESS SITES ON GRAVOIS AVENUE IN ACTIVE DEMAND

The Yeckel - Feydt - Earickson Realty Co. reports an active demand for business locations on Gravois avenue, as evidenced by two sales last week.

Lot 50 by 120 feet on the east side of Gravois in the 5200 block was sold to Theodore F. Lange for account of the Norso Realty Co. and lot fronting 60 feet on the west side of Gravois, north of Quincy street, to Myrtle Dewey for a client. The company also reports sale of a lot on the east side of Hydraulic avenue to John and Johanna Pring for a client of the Haase Realty Co., and lot 40 by 125 feet, southeast corner of Varrelman avenue and Itaska street, to Joseph M. and Augusta Leopold for account of Frank Aniahaenal and others.

SHERWOOD FOREST

This broad, white home that you have admired as with the well-designed central entrance, the wide windows with green shutters, a sitting porch to the south situated among the forest and the living a level lawn, only slightly above the sidewalk, with those large forest oaks casting shade over the dwelling, the street extends to portray the comfort of the interior, with its center hall, having window light from rear, showing off to advantage the colonial stairway, the large living room, with its deep fireplace and porch to the south, the well-proportioned dining room and the bright kitchen.

The bedrooms and sleeping porch above, the main one closed and tiled, bath equipments are in keeping with the balance of the home; the new-style American down-draft hot-water heating plant affords perfect comfort to all parts of the house; a large attic assures comfort during the summer months; 2-car garage.

The owner, who sold his St. Louis business, is closing this home, has just returned to the city, having now decided that he will locate elsewhere and therefore, wants it this month; price accordingly.

DY OF POPE LEO XIII TO BE MOVED AT NIGHT

nsfer From St. Peters to Basilica of St. John Lateran Will Be Without Ceremony.

the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 11.—Since shortly er the death of Leo XIII, in 03, reports have periodically ap- ared that his body would be nsported from St. Peters, where was left temporarily, to the nb provided for it in the basilica St. John Lateran. The Messag- ro now states that the body will moved during the night be- een Oct. 13 and 31.

The delay in carrying out the ll of Pope Leo was due to the ive incidents which occurred on ly 13, 1881, upon the occasion of moving of the body of Pius IX m St. Peters to St. Lawrence. At it time an anti-clerical mob had nned to seize the body and throw into the Tiber. Now, however, incident of the kind would be ticipated as the feeling of the pple and the Government toward Vatican has entirely changed. Despite the present attitude to- rd the Vatican, the Messagero s that the moving of Leo's body ll occur without solemnity and l be virtually private. The pres- pontiff wishes the remains of to be in the tomb at St. John teran for the occasion of the ebration of the sixteenth centen- dedication of the great basilica t November.

INTEREST IS CENTERED IN GERMAN LOAN

Markets Reflect Pre-Election Period of Uncertainty — Domestic Business Holds Gains, Says Review.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted financial review says:

"With the markets backing and filling in the pre-election period of uncertainty, interest quite naturally has centered in the impending German loan. Although the precise details of the issue will not be known until early next week, when the public offering is made, we do know that the final contracts have been signed. This means that the bankers have satisfied themselves as to the adequacy of the security and the marketability of the bonds. It is understood that the bonds will bear a 7 per cent coupon and will be offered at about 92.

"If this is the case the price certainly is attractive, particularly when countries like Holland are able to borrow in this market on about a 6 per cent basis. The liberal yield is explained, of course, by a lack of enthusiasm over things German that is an aftermath of the war. As things stand the bonds will be a first lien on Germany and will be recognized as such by both Germany and the allies. If Germany pledges herself and the allies declare their intention of giving Germany every chance to carry on under the Dawes plan.

Effect of Bond Issue.

"Successful flotation of the loan will open a wide range of economic prospects. European commerce should be restored, demand for American raw materials should be stimulated and world purchasing power should be increased. Also demands may be made on our investment markets, the influx of gold should cease and an outflow of capital may take its place. Increased European competition may be felt in the world markets. The forces involved obviously are of the first magnitude. It would be a brave man, however, who would undertake to predict which will predominate and how the complex will balance. In the large, the net result should be beneficial. One thing seems fairly certain that the changes that installation of the Dawes plan will bring are not likely to come suddenly; time will be required to effect the readjustments. Difficulties probably will be plentiful, but the European recovery that started two years ago should be materially accelerated. Meanwhile domestic industry seems to be holding its own rather well. Final figures for steel production in September proved larger than the preliminary result suggested, thus repeating the August experience. Output now seems to be closer to 63 per cent of capacity than 60. Railroad car loadings are continuing to set new high records for the year and are close to the high point for all time. Allowing for lighter loading than when cars were at a premium, it is apparent that the distribution of goods is on a large scale. Everything considered, business is pretty good.

Agricultural Prospect.

"Agricultural prospects in the main are encouraging. Official estimate of the country's wheat crop has been raised to 856,000,000 bushels, which is well ahead of prewar figures and represents a good postwar yield. Nevertheless, the best prices of the year have continued to prevail. The injury to the corn crop is less than the pessimists expected, but the other grains are making fine showings. Cotton prices have reacted after recent gains, but are reasonably good, while the outturn of the staple promises to be generous. When the year's crops are harvested the farmers should be in a position to play their part in restoring prosperity."

"Prices moved irregularly in financial markets today and there was a general absence of speculative features. Early losses in stocks were partly recovered before the end of the short session. Cotton was quiet and lower, while foreign exchanges moved within a narrow range. Further uneasiness over the stabilization in the oil industry weakened petroleum shares and the trend in this group was easier, but in some of the specialties short covering effected recoveries. General Electric and Baldwin rallying after reactions; slight rallies took place in Woolworth and American Can, which had been hammered down at the start. Kresge lost 10 points and American Water Works 2¾ points, while Kinney fell a point and American Sugar, Colorado Fuel and East Iron Pipe sagged. The volume of trading diminished when support came into the market and transactions in the two-hour session were well under half a million shares. The lack of renewed buying power was taken to mean that stocks were still pressing on the market and despite the indicated success of the General loan there appeared to be no sign of a sustained pre-election recovery.

Exchanges Quiet.

"Moderate selling pressure appeared in the foreign exchange market at the opening, following which business quieted down and rates held steady at close to the previous closing levels. With the news out the signing of the German loan agreement and with a holiday approaching, both speculative and commercial interests were not disposed to do much. Sterling was unchanged at $4.49 and French francs were 1½ points lower at 5.19½ cents. Other European currencies were quoted unchanged to 2 points lower. Actual flotation of the German loan in the coming week, which undoubtedly will be followed by other foreign borrowing, should clear the way for a revival of European trade. Under these circumstances the course of the exchanges in coming months will be unusually interesting.

"The Clearing House statement today shows the following: Loans, discounts, etc., decrease $62,512,000; reserve in Federal Reserve Bank of member banks, decrease $1,407,009; net demand deposits, decrease $54,706,000; time deposits, decrease $1,667,000."

BREAK IN WHEAT ON THE LOCAL EXCHANGE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Oct. 11.—Wheat futures ranged lower at the week-end session, corn also showing loss. Favorable weather was a factor in corn market. There was a report of frost in Argentina, but Liverpool was weak.

Wheat opened lower and showed loss from previous close in the early trading. Corn moved in a limited range, but was shaded some. Liverpool wheat closed 3¼d lower, and both December and March declines. The pending holiday Monday led to evening up.

December wheat opened at $1.44⅞ to $1.44. May wheat $1.48⅝. December corn $1.11 and May corn $1.12⅝.

Local wheat receipts, which were 235,000 bu. compared with 174,000 a week ago and 284,000 last year, included 110 cars local and 71 through. Corn receipts, 800 bu. compared with 64,000 a week ago and 114,400 last year included 24 cars local and 12 through. Oats receipts were 64,000 bu. compared with 100,000 a week ago and 230,000 last year, included 23 cars local and 15 through. Hay receipts were 19 cars local and 15 through. Last year, 2 cars.

Stocks in St. Louis public elevators were 3,473,643 bu. of wheat, 103,397 bu. of corn, 345,997 bu. of oats, grain stocks consisted of 3,408 bu. of rye and 1,000 bu. of barley. Last year, 547,309 bu. of No. 2 red winter wheat, 830,010 bu. of No. 1 hard winter wheat, 1,864,418 bu. of No. 2 hard winter wheat, 4162 bu. of No. 2 corn, 28,573 bu. of No. 4 corn, 94,000 bu. of No. 2 white oats, 44,457 bu. of No. 3 white oats, 17,461 bu. of No. 3 white oats, 195,357 bu. of No. 3 white oats, 17,461 bu.

Primary receipts of wheat were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago. Corn receipts were lighter than a week ago and lighter than a year ago. Oats receipts were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago. Shipments were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago. Shipments of wheat were lighter than a week ago and lighter than a year ago. Oats shipments were lighter than a week ago and lighter than a year ago.

Primary receipts of wheat were 3,843,000 bushels, compared with 2,305,000 a week ago and 2,305,000 last year. Corn receipts were 583,000 bushels, compared with 637,000 a week ago and 1,752,000 last year. Oats receipts were 1,752,000 bushels, compared with a week ago and 3,448,000 bushels, compared with 2,414,000 last year. Corn shipments were 434,000 bushels, compared with 269,000 a week ago and 1,443,000 last year. Oats shipments were 276,000 bushels, compared with 936,000 a week ago and 1,200,000 last year.

Trading was quiet and featureless on the local cash grain market Saturday, while hard wheat went down 4c to 5c. There was a fair demand for milling wheat, but offerings were well cleaned up once the decline had been established. The demand for corn improved somewhat, but local mills taking but a few cars. There was only little demand, however, for the low grades, only a few cars being sold. It was estimated that about one-fourth of receipts were futures, there being but a very limited demand. Exporters did not buy. Oats opened off ¼c, with only a few sales being made mainly at 1c decline. On the recession there was pretty fair demand, with only a few cars offered. Receipts were white went to shippers, local industries taking the rest. Oats offerings increased with the demand and prices ranged off ¾c to 1¼c. A few cars of select heavy test oats sold at the latter inside quotation, but most shipping orders were filled at inside prices. Wheatfeed was quiet, demand being limited. Mixed corn sold at unchanged prices. Hay

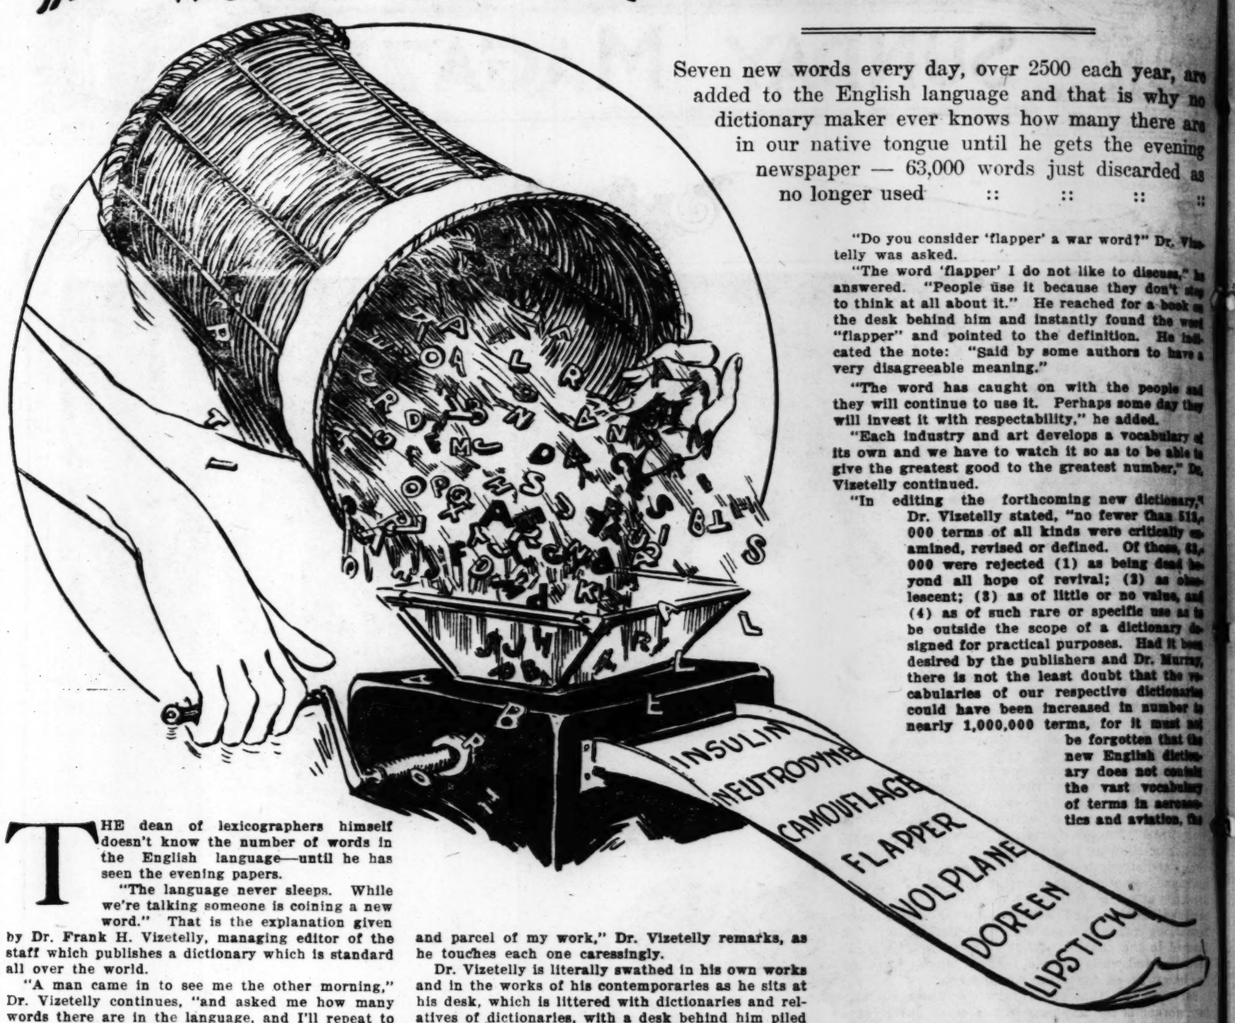
The World's One Crop That Never Ceases



Seven new words every day, over 2500 each year, are added to the English language and that is why no dictionary maker ever knows how many there are in our native tongue until he gets the evening newspaper — 63,000 words just discarded as no longer used :: :: :: ::

THE dean of lexicographers himself doesn't know the number of words in the English language—until he has seen the evening papers.

"The language never sleeps. While we're talking someone is coining a new word." That is the explanation given by Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, managing editor of the staff which publishes a dictionary which is standard all over the world.

"A man came in to see me the other morning," Dr. Vizetelly continues, "and asked me how many words there are in the language, and I'll repeat to you what I told him.

"I said: 'I don't know. I haven't seen the morning papers yet.'"

In his whimsical way, Dr. Vizetelly explains that he is now the dean of lexicographers, having reached that coveted position through the process of elimination, all the other deans having died and left the field to him.

In talking with Dr. Vizetelly one soon learns that during his 35 years of word-dealing he has not only learned to define words with the accuracy which makes a dictionary a sort of students' holy book, but he has also acquired that subtle sense of putting terms together in a way to give the greatest pleasure to the "party of the second part."

It is not without a certain awe that one looks over the list of books written by Dr. Vizetelly. He is the author of some 25 volumes on word usages, etc. Among his works are: "The Development of the English Language," "Essentials of English Speech and Literature," "A Desk-Book of Errors of English" and "A Desk-Book of 25,000 Words Frequently Mispronounced."

As anyone can realize, these are not books that can be banged off in an inspired moment. They are all works that require the most careful research and the severest accuracy.

And yet this man has time to coin new words on his own account. "Myobist," meaning one who minds his own business, is an offshot of his brain. An upstate paper recently commented on the term, calling it a "bully good new word."

And in the rush of the new dictionary on its way to the press with 25,000 words being added this year, Dr. Vizetelly gladly stops for an hour or so to chat and to exhibit the curious little volumes, quaint first editions of attempts at dictionary making.

He reaches down into his desk to get out a small volume called "The New England Primer," which contains an account of the burning of a minister, Mr. John Rogers, together with a poem which he is supposed to have addressed to his children.

Then comes Lyman Cobb's "English Verbal Distinctions," dated 1834, which contains a little maxim at the top of each page, advising the reader that "Little sins lead to great evils," or "Knowledge is the treasure, but judgment is the treasurer of a wise man."

There are numerous other small volumes, the first American dictionary, and others. "They are part and parcel of my work," Dr. Vizetelly remarks, as he touches each one caressingly.

Dr. Vizetelly is literally swathed in his own works and in the works of his contemporaries as he sits at his desk, which is littered with dictionaries and relatives of dictionaries, with a desk behind him piled with dictionaries, with another desk at his right hand also loaded with such volumes and with the desks of his assistants in a similar condition. And yet he sits there a very human figure in spite of it all, with a whimsical sense of humor that finds expression not exactly in his eyes, but in the very fine lines under and about his eyes.

People in doubt about the pronunciation or the usages of words turn to Dr. Vizetelly from all over the world. He runs a column in the Literary Digest called "The Lexicographer's Easy Chair." For the Sept. 20 issue, for instance, he answers questions from persons in Nagasaki, Japan; Goderich, Canada; New York City; Aberdeen, S. C., and Philadelphia.

"What is responsible for the large number of new words going into the dictionary this year? It has been reported the number is about 25,000," he was told.

"Of course, the language doesn't grow at the rate of 25,000 words a year," Dr. Vizetelly explained. "That number has been 10 years in accumulating. That is at the rate of 2500 words a year. At the time we reset the book there were 450,000 words in the dictionary. We have a larger number now.

"The growth of words depends entirely on conditions," Dr. Vizetelly continued. "During the war we acquired a lot of new words due to the new chemicals, the science of destruction, and all the rest of it. Who ever heard of 'camouflage' before the war?"

Here are a few facts about your language as phrased by Dr. Vizetelly:

"The language never sleeps."

"The growth of words depends entirely upon conditions."

"The number of words in the language increases at the rate of 2500 a year.

"Each industry and art develops a vocabulary of its own."

"The police have a remarkable vocabulary."

"Words of dialects, slang and vulgarisms, the submerged tenth and criminal world seldom find a place in the dictionary."

"The word 'flapper' has caught on with the people, but has not yet reached a stage of respectability."

"The writing of a dictionary requires the most careful research and the severest accuracy."

"Do you consider 'flapper' a war word?" Dr. Vizetelly was asked.

"The word 'flapper' I do not like to discuss," he answered. "People use it because they don't stop to think at all about it." He reached for a book on the desk behind him and instantly found the word "flapper" and pointed to the definition. He indicated the note: "Said by some authors to have a very disagreeable meaning."

"The word has caught on with the people and they will continue to use it. Perhaps some day they will invest it with respectability," he added.

"Each industry and art develops a vocabulary of its own and we have to watch it so as to be able to give the greatest good to the greatest number," Dr. Vizetelly continued.

"In editing the forthcoming new dictionary," Dr. Vizetelly stated, "no fewer than 513,000 terms of all kinds were critically examined, revised or defined. Of these, 63,000 were rejected (1) as being dead beyond all hope of revival; (2) as obsolescent; (3) as of little or no value, and (4) as of such rare or specific use as to be outside the scope of a dictionary designed for practical purposes. Had it been desired by the publishers and Dr. Murray, there is not the least doubt that the vocabularies of our respective dictionaries could have been increased in number to nearly 1,000,000 terms, for it must not be forgotten that the new English dictionary does not contain the vast vocabulary of terms in aeronautics and aviation, the large number in electricity and that vast technical vocabulary which is restricted in use and found chiefly in glossaries of works devoted to particular sciences.

"Then there is the vast wealth of words peculiar to Africa, America, Australia, India, New Zealand, the Dominion of Canada and, just to be a bit humorous, the land where the tail wags the dog, and Ireland.

"The police have a remarkable vocabulary. Today it would be extremely useful if someone in the department would get up a guide to the language used by the criminal classes. I don't know how you feel about the word 'gorilla.' To me it brings up the picture of an animal. But someone pointed out to me the other day that the word, as applied to a person of the underworld, is spelled 'guerilla.'

"Apart from this, there are large vocabularies of various dialects, as slang and vulgarism, the criminal and the police world and the underworld. The language of the submerged tenth and the language of high life below stairs; the speech of the demi-monde—none of these find place in modern dictionaries.

"It is true, however, that a few terms that stand out from the rest are recorded, but that vast collection made by Farmer and Henley and published in their 'Slang and Its Analogues' is ruled out of the pages of all dictionaries designed for the home.

"Some of your readers may remember the story told about Dr. Johnson, who was reproached by a lady who expressed her astonishment that she could not find words of a certain class in Dr. Johnson's dictionary, to which the gallant doctor replied that he was surprised to learn that the lady sought for such words. True or not, the story is good enough to bear in mind when one considers the words of the English language in bulk."

Some of the problems in making up the dictionary may be illustrated by the following incidents related by Dr. Vizetelly:

"I barely got the word 'neutrodyne' into the Practical Standard Dictionary," he says, "when I received notification—that is, the company did—that the word was copyrighted and a trademark name, notwithstanding the fact that the word 'neutro' has been in the English language since 1530 and the word 'dyne' for more than a century. It is true that the trademark name is used as a noun and I define

KING'S NIECE, A FACTORY HAND

Countess Elsa Bernadotte, related to Sweden's royal family, was working at a leather-cutting machine in Chicago for $18 weekly when the newspapers discovered her — She says the experiment in democracy, now abandoned, was delightful — The countess lived at typical boarding house and had difficulty in finding a job—Descendant of French soldier who became famous General and was elected to a foreign throne :: :: ::

A FEW weeks ago the world was startled by the news that the Countess Elsa Bernadotte, great-great-granddaughter of King Bernadotte, and niece of Sweden's present King, had been discovered by newspaper reporters in Chicago working at a power machine which cut tanned hides into leather parts to be made up into shoes and automobile cushions.

The Countess received $18 a week for this labor, which, considering the fact that she was of royal lineage, was munificent pay. Royalty, especially in its feminine branches, is customarily regarded as more decorative than lucrative in its daily occupations, so the $18 a week earned by the inexperienced Swedish Countess was pure velvet, even though the slender white fingers of aristocracy were blistered and reddened and raw by their contact with the cutting machine, which is no respecter of rank.

When the factory-girl Countess was discovered and interviewed by reporters she told them that she had always wanted to find out for herself how it feels to be a working girl. She found it stimulating and delightful—this arising at a rigidly exact moment in the morning, this battling for place among the throng of workers struggling to maintain standing room in the gritty elevated trains of Chicago, this entering the factory shoulder to shoulder with buxom youngsters accustomed to the work bench from their early teens, with slim flappers whose gum-chewing fragility concealed an unguessed virility and strength of will and muscle. The Countess found something fascinating in the meager breakfast at a typical Chicago boarding house, in the snatched luncheon of none-too-dainty sandwiches, mysterious coffee and pie with a sodden crust. She listened to the chatter of her fellow workers while she toiled and while she ate, learned what it actually was like to be an American working girl.

She says now that she thinks the American factory worker is the happiest in the world. She says that, though Sweden considers its women free, their freedom is as nothing compared to the zestful, unself-conscious freedom of the American working girl. And she says, with a pout of her red lips and a look of trouble in her blue eyes, that her experiment in democracy has not been allowed to run its course. She wanted a much longer time in which to study the absorbing subject of the American working girl.

But a gossiping landlady, suspicious of her slightly foreign accent and her aristocratic manner, told of her suspicions concerning "that blonde girl with her swell manners," and the newspapers were upon her trail. The experiment in democracy was ruined, and the great-great-granddaughter of one Swedish King and niece of another has retreated into the relative privacy of her suite at an exclusive hotel. There, talking of the dear girl's originality and courage, Chicago society is once more calling, sending its invitations and making much of the scion of Scandinavian royalty.

Before she got her job running the leather-cutting machine, Countess Elsa walked the streets many weary days, hunting for work. She had had the good sense to equip herself with a none-too-new blue serge suit, and shoes and hat consistently shabby. So the foreman whom she saw, and who told her "Nothing doing today," saw only a slender, blue-eyed, rather timid girl, with a newspaper folded, as is the manner of wistful job seekers to fold their newspapers to the "Female Help Wanted" columns.

She tried at many factories, this Swedish Countess, before the boss of the leather factory took her on. A Countess, you see, is so inexperienced when it comes to starching collars in a laundry, or trimming kidneys in the stockyards, or even scrubbing floors. And probably she didn't look overly strong to the hiring foreman.

She did find her job at last, though, and reporters who have interviewed her former fellow workers—"thrilled to death" as these girls are now, at the realization that they have shared work bench and lunch table with an honest-to-goodness Countess—learn that she worked with the best of them; that she neither asked nor received favors; that she was a working girl among working girls; that she was promptly at her bench when the clock struck 7:30; that she never "soldiered on the job" as the long factory day wore itself to a murky midsummer close. "A good sport," they call the Countess Elsa Bernadotte—a plucky little working girl, courageously toiling to complete that vast circle which history began away back in the days of her ancestor, King Jean Baptiste Bernadotte.

The legendary monarch was born the son of a poor lawyer in France in 1763. The tastes of the young Jean Baptiste, however, were military rather than legal. When his father died in 1780 he enlisted in the army as a common soldier.

He was a born soldier and strategist. Two years after he had become Lieutenant he was a Division General. He became famous for his courage, his strategical genius, his beneficent care of his troops. He fought in Germany, he crossed the Alps and fought with Napoleon in Italy. In 1797 he was made Ambassador to Austria, and was recalled the following year to be Minister of War.

It was at this time that Bernadotte married the beautiful Desiree Clary, who, but a few years before, had been the fiancee of Napoleon Bonaparte, and whom Napoleon had renounced to marry, for political reasons, Josephine Beauharnais. The following year Bernadotte was urged to seize power with his troops, become the leader of France, and restore order in that harried State. For once in his active life, however, Bernadotte hesitated too long. His moment passed and Napoleon seized the opportunity which he had let slip.

It was in 1810 that, by unprecedented determination of the Swedish Parliament to elect a Crown Prince who would succeed to the throne of the deposed King, Gustavus IV, Bernadotte found himself chosen for royal honors.

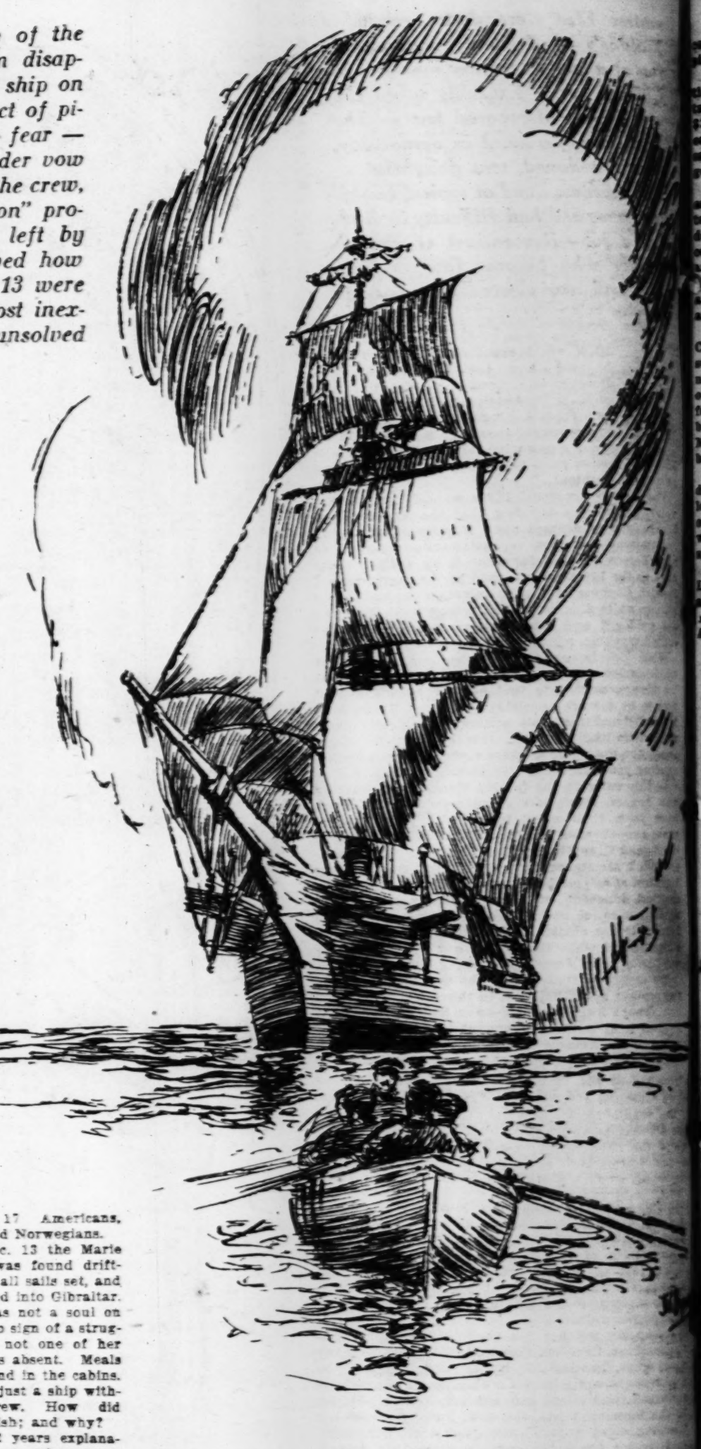
The poor lawyer's son, raised to the throne of royalty, speedily forgot the principles of "liberte, egalite, fraternite" to which he had been so joyously committeed in the days of the French Revolution. He became the most unbending, the most autocratic, the most exacting of monarchs.

So did the democrat change. So did the little segment of the circle drawn by history work upon the revolutionist who became a King. He was all monarch in the end, completely the autocrat. But in his descendants the uncompleted circle swung further on its way. Democratic tastes and tendencies began to manifest themselves. Charles XV, Bernadotte's grandson, was one of the most popular Kings who ever ruled in Sweden. His nephew, Prince Oscar Bernadotte, father of the girl who has been working in the Chicago factory and brother to the present King, gave up all possible rights to the succession when he married out of the royal families of Europe. He chose for his wife Ebba Munck, the daughter of a Swedish noble, instead of one of the several Princesses of royal blood who were offered for his choice.

And his daughter, the Countess Elsa, has followed where he led.

Now Another "Real Solution" of the Wo

According to this account, captain and crew of the American brig Marie Celeste, all of whom disappeared mysteriously after abandoning their ship on the high seas 52 years ago, committed an act of piracy and concealed their identities through fear — This yarn, purporting to have been told under vow of secrecy many years ago by a member of the crew, seems even less reasonable than the "solution" provided by a manuscript said to have been left by another member of the crew, who described how the other 12 of the ship's company of 13 were drowned in a remarkable manner—The most inexplicable of marine mysteries remains unsolved



ONCE again looms out of the fogs of mystery the brave brig Marie Celeste. Sails set, all shipshape aboard, her canvas bellied by a gentle breeze, she moves smoothly forward, mistress of herself. The trim two-masted craft, square-rigged, a type of vessel which almost has vanished from the seas in recent years, is sighted by the British bark Dei Gratia, off the Azores. She is hailed, but returns no answer. The ship that would speak her lowers a boat. Up over the side climb the boarders. They tread the deck, they peep into the forecastle, they enter and explore the cabin.

In a double sense is the Marie Celeste mistress of herself, for she has neither master nor crew. There is nobody aboard, living or dead. In the cabin the captain's table is set for breakfast, which has been partly eaten. Near the table is a sewing machine with unfinished work upon it—a child's garment. A thimble rests upon the cloth. On the table is a bottle of cough medicine, the cork out. In the hampers are many articles of clothing, including apparel for a woman and for a little girl. The child's nighties are seen, with a few playthings. Not a lifeboat is missing.

In the cook's galley are kettles wherein meat is found partly cooked, the fire apparently having but recently burned itself out. The logbook of the Marie Celeste is in the mate's room, the last entry having been made at 7 a. m. Dec. 2, 1872, and giving merely the latitude and longitude.

And the date when the men from the Dei Gratia board the Marie Celeste is Dec. 5, 1872!

It all happened, just that way. The facts set down above are a part of authentic marine history. Meager as they are, they comprise virtually all that has been known during the past half-century about the voyage of the Marie Celeste after she sailed from New York early in November, 1872, bound for Genoa, carrying a cargo of spirits.

It is known, of course, that Capt. Ben Briggs, a Maine man, was skipper of the brig; that his wife and their little daughter, a child of 7 years, accompanied him; that in the crew were 10 men, including the mate—13 persons aboard, all told. But for 52 years nobody has been able to tell what became of those 13, how or why the brig was abandoned in perfect condition, on the high seas, in favorable weather. So far as the world has known, not one of the 13 ever reached land anywhere. The abandonment of the Marie Celeste has remained the deepest, the most inexplicable, the most astounding of all the great mysteries of the seven seas.

But now, according to a London newspaper, the Daily Express, the true story of the ship's company and crew's fate has come to light. "Great Sea Mystery Cleared Up," headlines the Express. "What Happened to the Marie Celeste. Derelict Gold. Crew's Escape With Stolen $18,000."

So much for the newspaper headlines! Then follows this latest of several tales told in comparatively recent years, each purporting to clear up the mystery. The reader is invited to take it for what it may seem worth, reserving decision until the reading of certain other facts and fancies in connection with the Marie Celeste mystery, which are printed here in a brief digest following this story published in London a few days ago:

The Daily Express is able today to offer the real solution to the mystery of the Marie Celeste, the classic sea mystery which for 52 years has baffled investigators in every part of the world.

Capt. H. Lucy, whose name is respected all over the Mediterranean and in Eastern waters, claims to be the only man living who knows how the Marie Celeste was abandoned. He learned the facts 42 years ago, under oath not to divulge them till his informant had died. He now believes himself at liberty to speak.

Although 70 years of age, Capt. Lucy served with the Royal Navy Reserves in the Dardanelles during the war. He was shot in the leg, and later joined the Italian Navy. He was awarded the Croix de Guerre and the Italian Cross of Merit. He has made his home in India, and arrived in London on a visit only last week.

It is necessary to recall the story of the Marie Celeste. On Nov. 7, 1872, the Marie Celeste sailed from New York for Genoa with a cargo of alcohol. She was captained by a man called Briggs, whose wife and daughter were on board. The crew consisted of 17 Americans, Danes and Norwegians.

On Dec. 13 the Marie Celeste was found drifting with all sails set, and was towed into Gibraltar. There was not a soul on board; no sign of a struggle, and not one of her boats was absent. Meals were found in the cabins. She was just a ship without a crew. How did they vanish; and why?

For 52 years explanations, some extravagant, have been offered to explain how mother and daughter and 18 men got away from the ship without leaving a trace.

"I heard the true story of the Marie Celeste when I was mate of the Island Princess, cruising in the South Seas," said Capt. Lucy to a Daily Express representative yesterday. "It was told to me under oath by a man called Triggs, whom I had met in the Bay View Hotel, Melbourne, and for whom I found a job as bo's'n of our Kanaka crew.

"This man Triggs—though I am sure it was an assumed name—had been bo's'n of the Marie Celeste. I only learned this after living in the same ship with him for three months. Bit by bit he told me the story, which I will tell you in his own words—as near as I can remember.

"'I signed on as bo's'n of the Marie Celeste at Boston,' Triggs told me. 'We loaded in New York for Genoa in 1872. We made good sailing across the Atlantic, and expected to pick up the coast of Spain or Portugal within the next 24 hours. About midday we sighted a steamer, and as she rolled to port and starboard, and, seeing no one aboard, concluded she was a derelict.

"'The sea was calm, so the captain, after a consultation, decided to board her on the chance of finding something useful. The mate, myself and four others rowed over to the steamer, but we failed to find her name, only that she belonged to the port of London. The action of the salt water had rotted her and washed her name away.

"'In the purser's cabin we found a large iron safe. As we could not open it I and two others rowed back to the Marie Celeste and returned with the carpenter and a bag of tools. We found the safe contained about $18,000 in gold and silver.

"'I went back and told Capt. Briggs, who at once came over to the derelict. The captain had a few private words with the mate, and it was decided to take the money aboard the Marie Celeste, which we did, in the boats belonging to the derelict steamer. Before we left, however, the captain told the carpenter to go below and open out one of the wa

the World's Greatest Sea Mystery rocks and sink the ship, as she was a danger to shipping.

"When we got aboard the Marie Celeste the question of dividing the money cropped up. The captain took $6000, the mate $3000, the second mate $2000, and I received $1500. The remainder was equally divided between the crew, who were all quite satisfied. The captain's wife and daughter did not get a share.

"Then the legality of the act was discussed, and as no one aboard knew much of marine law we came to the conclusion that by taking the money we had done an illegal act. The captain took us into his confidence, and we decided to sink the Marie Celeste and make for Cadiz.

"Before we could do this we were spoken to by a vessel, so sinking the brig was out of the question, as there would be a suspicion of foul play.

"We then decided to get away from the Marie Celeste in the three boats which belonged to the sunk steamer. We painted these boats with the name of a schooner belonging to London, and put our boxes in the boats, with the money and some food and water. There was then a northeast wind blowing. This accounted for the course the deserted Marie Celeste was on when sighted by the British barque which took her into Gibraltar.

"We arrived in Cadiz, which was about 50 miles distant, early the following day and reported the loss of the schooner whose name we had painted on our boats. We said she had struck a submerged wreck. Our money helped us a lot, and the captain spent freely.

"We then split up. Some of the crew went to London by a Spanish fruit boat; the captain, his wife and daughter, the two mates and I went to Marseilles by a Spanish coasting boat. From there I went to Australia. I have seen none of my shipmates since.

"Our object in leaving the Marie Celeste was to make things look as mysterious as possible, so that we could never be traced.

"The reason for abandoning her and separating as we did was because the captain was afraid that some of the hands might have got drunk in Genoa—our destination—and have spoken about the money which we took from the derelict.

"That," said Capt. Lucy, "is the story told me by this man Triggs. I believe it to be the only true story of the Marie Celeste. I saw his papers, which proved that he signed on at Boston aboard the Marie Celeste, but I must say that he always covered up his name when he showed it to me. I also believe Triggs knew the name of the derelict from which they took the money, but he never trusted me sufficiently to tell.

"I naturally made private inquiries about him for my own satisfaction, and discovered that he had about $500 in the Bank of Australia. I also discovered that he had lived at the Bay View Hotel, King Street, Melbourne, for about five years without being known to do any work."

Capt. Lucy has kept this strange story of the sea to himself for more than 40 years, during which time he has smiled often to read the elaborate solutions attempted in many parts of the world to explain the mystery of the Marie Celeste.

Thus ends the "real solution" offered by the London newspaper. The reader is entitled to the privilege of picking holes in that yarn wherever the picking looks good. Some known facts, to be told now, suggest that the tale told by Capt. Lucy's old salt was an effort of the imagination. Capt. Briggs—the real name of the Marie Celeste master—was known to be quite fond of his children. When he sailed from New York on that voyage his 12-year-old son was at the wharf, begging to be taken along. The boy had enjoyed two voyages already with his father. He was attending school. Capt. Briggs almost consented to take the lad along, but left the decision to the owner of the vessel. The latter decided that the boy should stick to his books.

Does it seem reasonable to believe that for the sake of a few thousand dollars Capt. Briggs would commit an act of piracy, change his name, hide himself in some foreign country, abandon his young son to the mercies of a hard world? And how about Mrs. Briggs? Would she so easily forget the existence of her boy and remain content the rest of her life as the wife of a man who had given up everything worth living for, just for a handful of stolen gold?

The ordinary human mind figures that some member of the crew undoubtedly would have turned up and told the story, if the facts were as Capt. Lucy's informant declared. So widespread was the publicity attending the mystery that it would have been virtually impossible for a dozen persons to keep their identities secret over a long period of years. The law of probabilities, at any rate, is against such a situation.

Another thing—if the Marie Celeste encountered and robbed the derelict vessel, why has not the identity of the derelict ever been made public? No other vessel reported meeting the derelict. Marine records, which are kept with faithfulness, carry no account of such a vessel.

The whole tale of the taking and dividing of the $18,000 has a melodramatic slant calculated to arouse suspicion. Carefully analyzed, it really seems even less to be credited than the "solution" of the mystery which appeared in the Strand Magazine in 1913. For purposes of comparison that story is given here in skeletonized form.

By way of a preface it may be explained that the July, 1913, number of the Strand contained a discussion of the mystery, then more than 40 years old, in which several celebrated novelists gave fictional "solutions"—as their imaginations conceived the true facts to be. Conan Doyle, Morley Roberts, Arthur Morrison, Barry Pain and Horace Annesley Vachell each supplied an explanation, more or less ingenious; that is to say, each of those writing men told how it might have happened, that mysterious episode of master and crew leaving a ship such as the Marie Celeste and never afterward being heard of by anybody under their own identities.

That article was read by A. Howard Linford, A. B., headmaster of Peterborough Lodge, a large preparatory school in Hampstead, England. He sent to the Strand a manuscript which, he declared, had been left by one Abel Fosdyk, an old ex-seaman who had been in Linford's employ for many years. The man had died some years earlier, and when Linford read about the Marie Celeste in the Strand he recalled that old Fosdyk, in committing a number of papers to his hands, had said something to the effect that in one of the manuscripts would be found the "account of the Mary Celeste." Linford then for the first time examined the papers, one of which proved to be a long article in the handwriting of Abel Fosdyk, purporting to tell the full story of the disappearance of the brig's crew.

Fosdyk claimed to have been a member of the crew. According to his account, as published in the Strand for November, 1913, there were 14 persons aboard the brig, one of whom he believed to be a stowaway. The extra person was welcomed as a relief from the menace of the unlucky number 13.

Fosdyk wrote that the captain's little daughter, known aboard merely as "Baby," was a great favorite with him. With the manuscript he left a photograph of a small girl, inscribed "Baby at the age of 2," which was reproduced with the Strand article. Baby, thought by Fosdyk to be 7 or 8 years old at the time of the voyage, was discovered one day by her father, who was at the wheel, standing out on the bowsprit, holding to nothing. Fosdyk's attention was directed to the child's peril. He approached on tiptoe, grabbed Baby and drew her back to safety.

Capt. Briggs instructed the ship's carpenter to rig up what became known to the crew as "Baby's quarterdeck." This was a platform made of a couple of old doors, with railings at the two ends and the outer side. The platform was attached to the bowsprit and the bow of the ship, a half-barrel was placed on the floor of it as a seat, and the child sat there every day in fair weather, looking out ahead.

There was much weather that was the opposite of fair. After many days of buffeting, the skipper (called Griggs in the Fosdyk account) suffered a bad spell of nervous prostration. To put it briefly, he "went out of his head." He picked a quarrel with the mate, whom he accused of cowardice because the mate some years earlier had not tried to save a man who was overboard. The mate explained that he had all his clothes on and therefore couldn't swim. At this Capt. Griggs (or Briggs) became highly indignant. Himself an excellent swimmer, having taken prizes in swimming contests as a youth, he announced his intention to prove to the mate that a man could swim with all his clothes on. His wife, the mate and members of the crew tried in vain to prevent the captain from going overboard to carry out this mad idea.

As the Fosdyk manuscript goes, Capt. Briggs dropped into the sea fully clad. Baby thinking it great fun to see her father thus trying a swimming feat. The little girl sat on her "quarterdeck" and looked on. Two members of the crew also went into the water, to rescue the captain in case he needed aid. Suddenly there was a shrill cry, and Mrs. Briggs, with the rest of those left on board, rushed to the child's outhanging platform. Somebody had seen a big man-eating shark not far from the swimmers. The overloaded platform snapped off, and everybody fell into the cold waters of the Atlantic.

SAYS WEBER TO FIELDS:

WEBER AND FIELDS are, probably, the best-known team of comedians in the history of the American stage. Literally millions have laughed at their comical dialogues and their antics. Now they are collaborating in a series of new, humorous articles which will be published weekly, and of which the first one appears below. The articles, in characteristic patter, will be mostly comment on fads and foibles of the day.

"IT IS my opinion, Mr. Weber, that we have been neglecting a great opportunity in not entering high society. I will begin grooming you for such positions immediately."

"It iss no need to make a groom oud of me, I am already married."

"Matrimony iss not being discussioned. Confine yourself to such a subject as iss, not a subject that iss not. For me to enter you in society it iss necessary for you to conduct yourself with grace"——

"Grace who?"

"Grace iss not who. Grace iss grace. Your appearance should be made in society with grace"——

"I am not acquainted with Grace. I have never been introduced to her."

"To appear with grace"——

"I told you I am a married man. My wife will not let me run around in society with any strange womens."

"O cheese and crackers. I mean you should be graceful. See, Grace-full. Simble, isn't it?"

"But if Grace iss full, that makes it all the more reason why I should stay home with my wife."

"Forget, for one minute, about your wife."

"It iss impossible. She wouldn't let me."

"Then your wife can accompany you. I don't care so much. I will arrange that you will be properly dressed for your debut."

"For my what?"

"Your your day-boo, your day-boo, day-boo."

"Quit booing me. Boo your ownself."

"I am not booing you. I am entering you into society. You should wear for your first appearance a Tuxedo suit."

"I don't like tucks in my suit. I am a modest man."

"But your modesty will become you better in a Tuxedo. It iss fashion's decree."

"My wife, she will get the decree, if I run around with Grace in a tucked suit."

"But think of the impression you will create. Imagine yourself, I ask it, coming down the grand staircase in proper attire. Think of all the prominent people greeting you with acclaim"——

"A claim to what? How much iss it I owe them?"

"You only owe them a note of recognition."

"For how much iss the note?"

"It is for nothing but kindness."

"O dot is easy. Then I pay it."

"And when you enter the grand ballroom you will be greeted as a distinguished guest"——

"I guessed what?"

"You are the guest."

"Vell, what iss the answer?"

"There iss no answer. You merely bow to the left and to the right and smile and show your teeth."

"For why should I show my teeth? I am not going to bite anybody."

"It iss not because you are angry that you show your teeth. It iss by smiling that you show your teeth."

"Should I take them out?"

"No; by all means leave them in. Leave your teeth in. Move graciously about among the company and indulge in pleasantries."

"O, I should make funny chokes?"

"No; the entertainers are employed by the host. See, one of them iss a magician; he makes things disappear"——

"The things disappear? Then I will wear my diamond stick pin in my undershirts"——

"You are wrong. He makes small objects disappear by slights of his hands. See, he makes a dollar disappear. Now he has the dollar—watch"——

"O, he has a dollar watch. It must be a cheap crowd. I don't like such company, and besides I have decided that Grace iss no lady to go to such a place."

"Don't be impatient. Don't misunderstood. It iss perfectly all right. If you don't like the magic, maybe one of the entertainers is a balley master. See, he flirts and flits with grace"——

"If he flirts with Grace I'll knock his head off."

"You misunderstood, again. He iss entertaining the assemblage"——

"What has he got, some trained seals?"

"No."

"Does he do acrobatics?"

"No."

"Does he sing some grand opera?"

"No, he can't sing."

"What's the matter? Has he got a horse's throat?"

"No, he has not got horse's throat."

"Maybe, then, he iss a sword swallower."

"No. He swallows nothing but food."

"O, he is almost human."

"You are kiddling me."

"I am not kiddling you. It iss your party. I didn't ask to come. You suggested Grace. She iss not among my phone numbers."

"Now, listen mit your ears. We are expecting much from you in the foxtrot. Can you, I ask you, do a nice, beautiful foxtrot?"

"O, jelly cake, I do a foxy foxstep. I weigh only 240 pounds."

"Well, to foxtrot will help you reduce."

"Reduce what, my expenses?"

"No, your weight."

"Where should I wait?"

"You don't wait anywhere. You are supposed to be foxtrotting."

"O, I am foxstepping?" "Chass."

"Do I foxstep mit Grace?"

"Mit several of the ladies you will foxtrot."

"O, baby dolls, when my wife hears all this, I am a ruined man."

"You are so ignorance you don't know yesterday from next Tuesday. I refuse absolutely to talk to you any further."

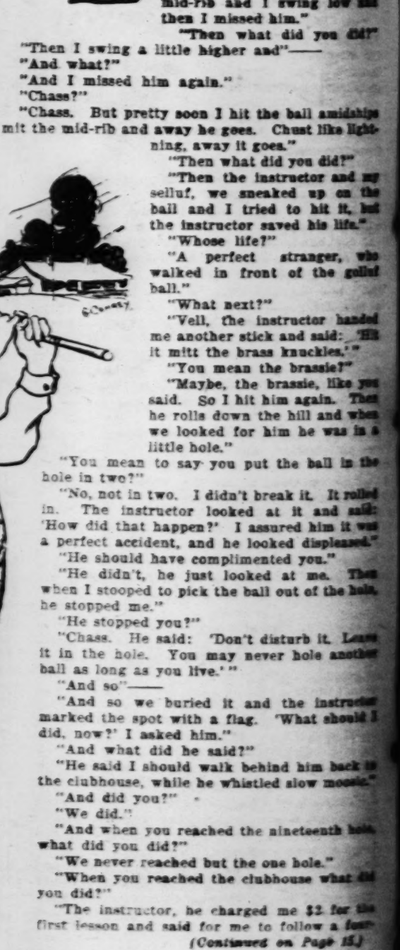
"Just one question."

"Vatt iss it?"

"Before you quit talking to me answer me just one thing. Iss Grace a blonde or is she a brunette?"

"We will now sing: 'At each social function we conduct ourselves with unction.'"

"So much for high society. Now, I should remark, Mr. Weber, that von of the most popularity outside sports, nowadays, iss golluf. What knowledge, if even the slightest, have you of the game of golluf?"



"O, dott iss so easy. I know all aboud golluf. I played it vonce, and I compliment myself, I play a good, stiff game."

"I ask in all seriousness, how do you know you play a stiff game, if, as you said, you only played just once?"

"Vell, vonce, I play by the instructor, and he looked right at me and said: 'You are a big stiff.' Therefore, I know I play him a stiff game."

"Do you mean you are proud to play like a big stiff?"

"Chass, I feel highly complimented. If I play only vonce, and I play a stiff game, just think—pause and think, what I could do mit a lot of practice."

"Chass, I am thinking."

"I took me a mid-rib and I swung low"——

"You mean you took a niblick, not a mid-rib."

"No, I insist, I took me a mid-rib and I swing low and then I missed him."

"Then what did you did?"

"Then I swing a little higher and"——

"And what?"

"And I missed him again."

"Chass?"

"Chass. But pretty soon I hit the ball amidships mit the mid-rib and away he goes. Chust like lightning, away it goes."

"Then what did you did?"

"Then the instructor and my selluf, we sneaked up on the ball and I tried to hit it, but the instructor saved his life."

"Whose life?"

"A perfect stranger, who walked in front of the golluf ball."

"What next?"

"Vell, the instructor handed me another stick and said: 'Hit it mitt the brass knuckles.'"

"You mean the brassie?"

"Maybe, the brassie, like you said. So I hit him again. Then he rolls down the hill and when we looked for him he was in a little hole."

"You mean to say you put the ball in the hole in two?"

"No, not in two. I didn't break it. It rolled in. The instructor looked at it and said: 'How did that happen?' I assured him it was a perfect accident, and he looked displeased."

"He should have complimented you."

"He didn't, he just looked at me. Then when I stooped to pick the ball out of the hole, he stopped me."

"He stopped you?"

"Chass. He said: 'Don't disturb it. Leave it in the hole. You may never hole another ball as long as you live.'"

"And so"——

"And so we buried it and the instructor marked the spot with a flag. 'What should I did, now?' I asked him."

"And what did he said?"

"He said I should walk behind him back to the clubhouse, while he whistled slow moosic."

"And did you?"

"We did."

"And when you reached the nineteenth hole, what did you did?"

"We never reached but the one hole."

"When you reached the clubhouse what did you did?"

"The instructor, he charged me $2 for the first lesson and said for me to follow a four-

Mrs. Brown, of Pittsburg, Did It

She is the first American hostess in London who has had the Prince of Wales at her breakfast table — Heir to the throne was guest at all-night dancing party, then stayed for ham and eggs—This social triumph marked the climax of season of gay and lavish entertainments at historic old Norfolk House, a ducal town residence, which was leased last summer by wealthy American widow—Her popularity was aided by marvelous caviar sandwiches and the coldest champagne

By KARL K. KITCHEN.

ALMOST anyone who has a noncollapsible bankroll can take a great London house for a couple of months. If one has engaged a famous chef and given due consideration to the wine cellar, there is no difficulty in having a lot of titled guests. And it is not an impossible trick to get the Prince of Wales to drop in for tea or dinner.

But to have the Prince of Wales stay for breakfast—ah, that's something else again!

The most famous ducal mansions can be leased, Baronets and Earls may be hired for the week-end, but it takes a great hostess to keep the Prince for ham and eggs. Only one American in London, up to the present time at least, has succeeded in doing this. Consequently, it is only just that I should give credit where credit is due.

Mrs. Brown is the plain and undistinguished name of the American hostess who triumphed over the breakfast table.

At first glance this name conveys nothing to the average reader. And even the information that she is a widow from Pittsburg does not help much. There are so many "Mrs. Browns" in Pittsburg and everywhere else.

But in London Mrs. Brown is a name to conjure with. Not only did she entertain the Prince at breakfast, but her entertainments at Norfolk House—the town residence of the Duke of Norfolk, which she leased this past summer—were the gayest and most lavish of the recent social season. Not to have been entertained at Norfolk House while Mrs. Brown was its chatelaine was a social error that few titled Londoners made. For in the British capital the social set invariably rises or sinks—whichever you prefer—to its gayest level.

Not to have been entertained at Norfolk House while Mrs. Brown was' chatelaine there was a social error that few Londoners made.

Mrs. W. Harry Brown, the American hostess whose brilliant entertainments captivated titled smart set.

Two years ago Mrs. Jimmie Corrigan, wife of the Cleveland steel millionaire, was the outstanding American hostess in London. Despite the fact that she was the daughter of a gardener from Stevens Point, Wis., her lavish entertaining, coupled with occupancy of the famous Keppel House in Grosvenor Square (Mrs. Keppel was the "chere amie" of Edward VII) won her considerable attention. But Mrs. Corrigan never entertained any members of the royal family at dinner, and, of course, never had the Prince of Wales for breakfast.

With a close-fitting all-night dancing party, Mrs. Brown wound up her London season.

Until Mrs. Brown arrived upon the scene last June, Mrs. Corrigan's pre-eminent position was unquestioned. To be sure, many of the conservative set raised their eyebrows at her, but her dinners attracted guests whose titles would have made her Stevens Point friends gangrenous with envy.

However, when Mrs. Brown — at this point it might be well to state that her late husband's name was Harry and that he was a Pittsburg banker—came to London this year and took Norfolk House, Mrs. Corrigan's social fame suffered a total eclipse. It is said that the Duchess of Norfolk asked such a big sum for a two months' lease that she did not believe anyone would pay it. But Mrs. Brown did not even show a moment's hesitation. A few days after her arrival in London she moved into the great house in St. James' Square with her son William and his bride of three months. And hardly had their trunks been unpacked before the "Widow Brown" began a series of entertainments that made London society sit up and take notice.

In London, as in New York, an outsider with social aspirations must have a sponsor. And in London, as in New York, there are many impecunious personages, long on family but short on cash, who will function for a consideration. I do not know who sponsored Mrs. Brown's social season, nor does it matter. But I know that the list of her guests included the names of the greatest social lights in England.

Norfolk House, St. James' Park, London, the town residence of the Duke of Norfolk, which Mrs. Brown leased for season.

Naturally, the mere fact that Mrs. Brown was ensconced in Norfolk House gave her tremendous prestige. This great structure, with its portico of four huge pillars, overlooking St. James' Park, has been the home of seven Dukes of Norfolk, one of whom lent it to Frederick, Prince of Wales, for three years. It was during that time, in 1738, that the future George III was born there.

It is doubtful if any of the social functions held in its stately drawing rooms during the two and a half centuries of its history approximates in gayety the receptions given by its American chatelaine. For Mrs. Brown made a specialty of entertaining the younger set in honor of her son and daughter-in-law. The latter, by the way, is an extremely beautiful and personable young woman. The best jazz bands and the most skillful professional dancers in London were engaged for these affairs, which soon became the talk of the town.

During a previous visit to London, Mrs. Brown had given a few small entertainments in her suite at Claridge's, and she was presented at one of the courts at Buckingham Palace. But it was not until the news of her fox-trotting parties was noised about that the social who's who took any notice of her.

The younger set is still dance mad, and the news that the best jazz band and the fastest floor in London were just around the corner at Norfolk House brought a procession of high-powered cars to the pillared portico in St. James' Square.

The additional information that Mrs. Brown's chef prepared the most marvelous caviar sandwiches and that her champagne was served colder than in any other house in London did not deter many invited guests from accepting her invitations. And, as is the custom in society nowadays, not a few guests brought friends along. Consequently it did not take long before the great drawing rooms of the ducal residence were thronged with the gayest, dancingest set in London. And it was the most natural thing that the Prince of Wales, who goes wherever there is a good time, was brought to Norfolk House by one of his friends.

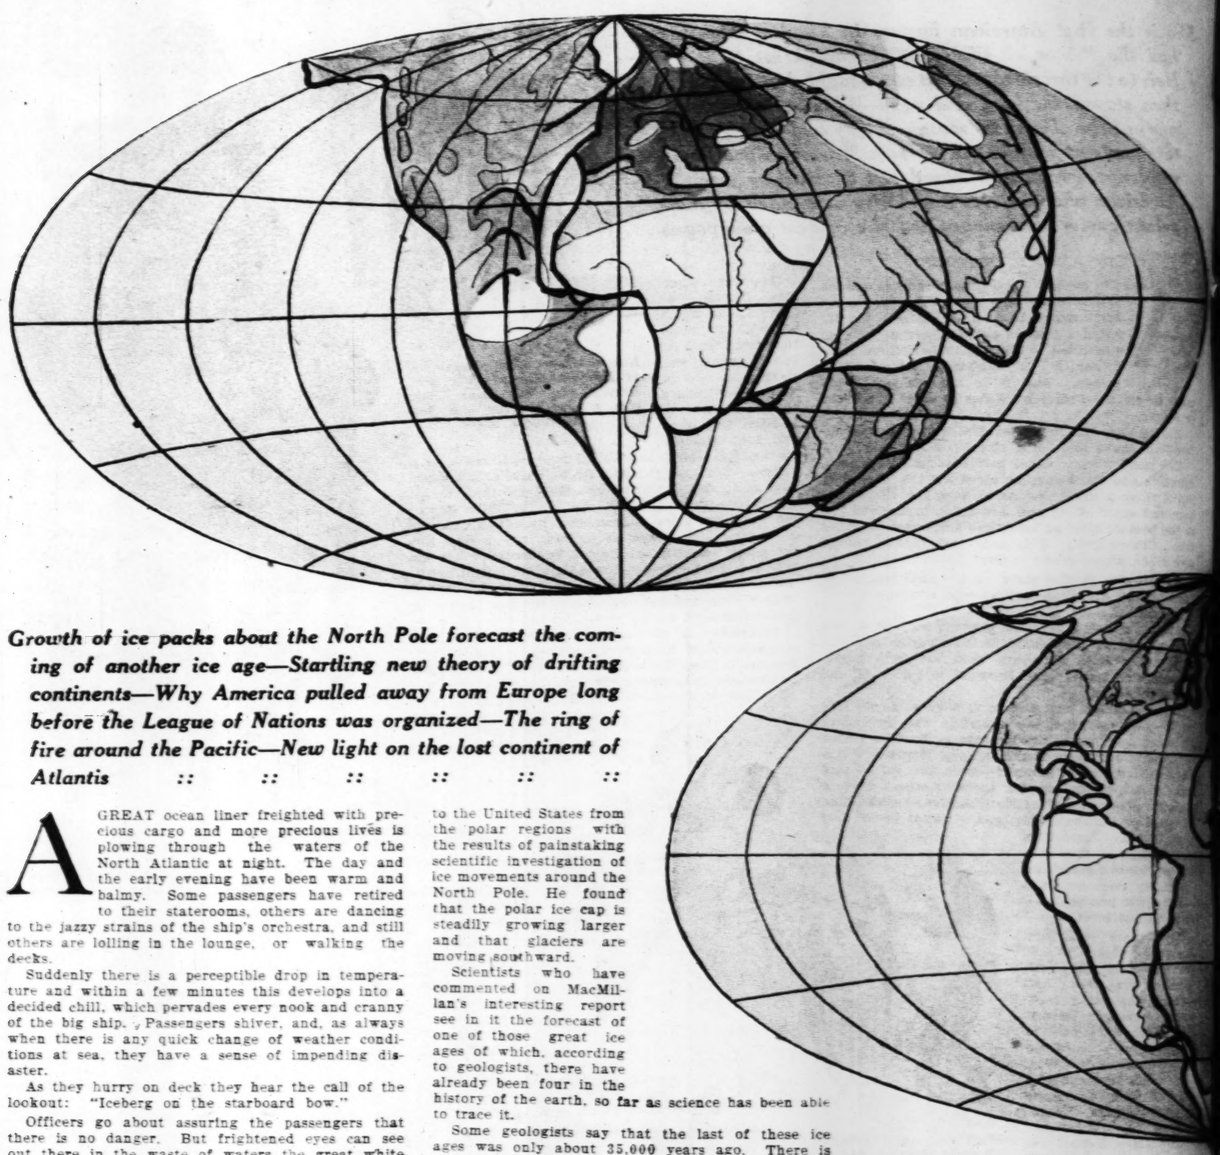
Needless to say, he must have enjoyed himself, for he returned to an evening function which was given in his honor. His Royal Highness found the air of gaiety which pervaded the great mansion much to his taste. Skillful publicity agents saw to it that the Prince's visits were duly chronicled in the daily press, and in an amazingly short space of time many of the newspapers were publishing lengthy articles about "London's Latest American Hostess," together with pictures of the interior of her rented mansion. Her 20 English servants were photographed, and a nice point was made about the beautiful silver-and-blue liveries of her footmen and her dark-blue Rolls-Royces, with their chauffeurs uniformed to match. One of the most amusing things printed about her was that "she is tall and wears jewels well, having some very beautiful diamonds." And the less dignified sheets did not hesitate to get off the old joke that she came "clean from Pittsburg"—a bit of alleged American humor.

However, it was not until Mrs. Brown gave a close-fitting, all-night dancing party the last week in July that she scored her greatest social triumph. On the eve of her departure for Scotland she decided to wind up her London season in the traditional blaze of glory. And she did. The party was the most successful, from every viewpoint, of her many entertainments. The Prince of Wales came, the Prince of Wales stayed all night, and when Mrs. Brown suggested that the Prince of Wales remain for breakfast His Royal Highness not only accepted but escorted her to the ham and eggs. And the Widow Brown, who had come "clean from Pittsburg," scored a social triumph unequalled by any other American hostess in London.

Mrs. Brown modestly disclaims anything more than a transatlantic version of Pittsburg hospitality.

"But, of course, in Pittsburg," she adds, "we have no Prince of Wales to invite for breakfast."

The Coming Ice Age and Our



Growth of ice packs about the North Pole forecast the coming of another ice age—Startling new theory of drifting continents—Why America pulled away from Europe long before the League of Nations was organized—The ring of fire around the Pacific—New light on the lost continent of Atlantis :: :: :: :: :: ::

A GREAT ocean liner freighted with precious cargo and more precious lives is plowing through the waters of the North Atlantic at night. The day and the early evening have been warm and balmy. Some passengers have retired to their staterooms, others are dancing to the jazzy strains of the ship's orchestra, and still others are lolling in the lounge, or walking the decks.

Suddenly there is a perceptible drop in temperature and within a few minutes this develops into a decided chill, which pervades every nook and cranny of the big ship. Passengers shiver, and, as always when there is any quick change of weather conditions at sea, they have a sense of impending disaster.

As they hurry on deck they hear the call of the lookout: "Iceberg on the starboard bow."

Officers go about assuring the passengers that there is no danger. But frightened eyes can see out there in the waste of waters the great white bulk of the iceberg.

Long after this floating menace has passed from view and the atmospheric temperature has again become normal there is a chill of the spirit arising from the thought of what would have happened if the ship had struck the berg.

And then not so many hours later, in the full light of day, the same passengers sight the friendly shore of the American continent. To be more specific, they see the skyline of New York. If the lookout then were to call out: "New York on the port bow," there would be no shivers of apprehension, no sudden chill of the spirit. On the contrary, there would be general elation and in all likelihood pleased exclamations of "home at last" and "back to terra firma."

Certainly the average passenger would not think of the continent as a drifting berg and he would laugh at you if you questioned his statement that the seemingly solid surface on which he was about to land was not more entitled to be called "terra firma" than was the iceberg which the ship passed in the night.

He would never think of New York and the rest of the great American continent as a floating derelict like the iceberg.

Probably still further beyond the reach of his imagination would be the concept that at some time in the distant future the icebergs will swoop down on those landbergs which we know as continents, crush them like eggshells and destroy every vestige of life on that seemingly stable but relatively fragile thing which the tourist so glibly calls "terra firma."

And yet these two concepts of the floating land continents and the inevitable and unconquerable invasion of the icebergs are uppermost in the modern scientific thought of the day.

But recently Capt. Donald M. MacMillan, noted American explorer of the Arctic regions, returned to the United States from the polar regions with the results of painstaking scientific investigation of ice movements around the North Pole. He found that the polar ice cap is steadily growing larger and that glaciers are moving southward.

Scientists who have commented on MacMillan's interesting report see in it the forecast of one of those great ice ages of which, according to geologists, there have already been four in the history of the earth, so far as science has been able to trace it.

Some geologists say that the last of these ice ages was only about 35,000 years ago. There is abundant geological evidence that between the ice ages there were periods in which ice caps and glaciers entirely disappeared, leaving the earth tropic and temperate over its entire surface.

This alternating of warm periods with the ice ages has been assigned by many scientists as the explanation of the fact that MacMillan and other explorers have found coal in the polar regions. These bituminous deposits show that in one or more periods of the earth's existence there were forests and tropical flora in the Arctics.

There will be much speculation among scientists as to whether MacMillan's findings point to a return of a great ice age or whether the increased cap area around the pole is only a surface enlargement indicating that the ice is spreading out preparatory to floating away into warm waters, where it will melt. In that case the earth might look forward not to the return of an ice age but rather to a recurrence of one of those periods in which tropical conditions predominate.

Centuries are but minutes of time in the computations of geologists. To the mind of science the last ice age, 35,000 years ago, was a recent episode in the earth's evolution. When the next ice age will come cannot be predicted accurately, but some savants have figured it out that this planet of ours will be icebound from pole to pole not later than 5000 years from now.

Ice fields, packs and bergs have been closely studied for generations and their drifts and movements have been noted and charted.

The popular mind conceives the solid surface of the earth as being made up of firmly fixed and stationary land continents and constantly shifting ice fields. They do not think of the seemingly firmly anchored continents as drifting rock bergs.

Yet modern science takes into account these land movements and suggests that when the next ice age comes it may find an earth with its surface topography so changed that it will bear no resemblance to the earth as mapped in the geogra of today.

Recently some European geologists, led by Alfred Wegener, a German, have advanced new theories concerning the movements of the bergs which we know as continents. These theories are outlined in an interesting way E. Free, Fellow of the America Association Advancement of Science.

These new theories point to the conclusion the continents not only rise and sink, but that drift, so that the parallel between the rock of a continent and an iceberg in the sea is plete.

The original suggestion of this theory Prof. Wegener from consideration of the able way in which the indentations on the of the two Americas fit into the bulges and on the west coast of the combined land Europe and Africa. This can be seen from the prepared by Prof. Wegener and reproduced with.

From this came the suggestion that all the areas of the earth might once have been to each other, as indicated in the first of Wegener's maps. This, of course, was many lions of years ago; possibly two or three years ago.

Such a land mass would have been the tidal influence of the moon, the same that makes the present tides in the ocean. course of eons, Prof. Wegener thinks, this pull of the moon actually pulled the original continent into three pieces. You might he earth as surrounded by a uniform very heavy liquid, almost as heavy as and even stiffer and more viscous than ike the berglike continents and island at as a brick would float in a pan of Quite the way you observe, that icebergs float in the sea.

This theory—now well established and almost universally adopted by scientists — provides a reasonable basis for the drifting continent theory of Prof. Wegener. That the continents rise and sink from time to time in the world-wide layer of viscous rock was already believed by Prof. Hayford and by the adherents of his theory of isostasy.

From this it is not too great a step to the idea that the continental rock bergs not only rise and sink, but also drift.

If this idea be true the real universal ocean of the earth is not the watery ocean that merely happens to fill up the hollows in the surface. The real ocean is the ocean of viscous rock that underlies the present land masses and the present seas.

It is probable that this fundamental rock ocean is exposed underneath the Pacific Ocean and possibly also underneath the Atlantic. That may be the explanation, or a step toward the explanation, of the famous "Circle of Fire" with which the Pacific Ocean is surrounded.

If you look at a map showing the locations of the active volcanoes on the present surface of the earth you will see that a ring of these fiery chimneys exists, almost unbroken, all around the Pacific Ocean. In Japan volcanoes are numerous. Toward the south, in New Zealand, volcanic activity is now dying out, but was great in recent geologic periods. On the eastern side of the Pacific we have the great volcanoes of South America and Mexico. Even in the United States there is still one volcano that is feebly active, Mount Lassen, in California. Not many thousands of years ago the Western United States was one of the great volcanic regions of the world. There are visible in California and Nevada lava flows which cannot have occurred much more than a thousand years ago.

The rim of the Pacific Ocean is well known, also, as the seat of the most violent of present earthquakes. Japan, South America, California, all are areas where small earth tremors are frequent and violent shocks are not rare.

All this becomes quite reasonable on the Wegener theory. The underlying ocean of rock is not, we must remember, a freely flowing liquid. It is stiff, viscous, difficult to push aside. That is why the drift of the continents is so slow.

As the westward drift of the Americas constricts the area of the Pacific Ocean we may expect that the viscous rock of the underlying rock ocean will protest. It will be forced up in ridges at its margins, just as mud is squeezed up into ridges when a wagon wheel slips sidewise in it.

These ridges, Prof. Wegener believes, are what we recognize as the mountains of the west coast of America and of the east coast of Asia; that is, of Japan. Underneath these mountain ridges the disturbance of the rock ocean that underlies everything is what has stirred up the volcanoes that compose the Pacific's Circle of Fire.

Around the Atlantic Ocean these ridges have not been produced because the continents are drifting apart, not together. There is a progressive expansion of the rock ocean underneath instead of a restriction of it and a compression of its semiliquid rock. Therefore the east coast of America and the west coast of the Europe-Africa mass are comparatively free of volcanoes and of earthquakes.

This brings us to the famous legend of the lost Atlantis, the prehistoric continent that ancient Greek geographers described as having existed between America and Europe until it was swallowed up by an earthquake. Can this be some dim remembrance of a time when the two continents were closer together and the Atlantic Ocean did not exist?

It cannot. That time was far too ancient to have been remembered by man. When the original single land mass of Prof. Wegener's theory was beginning to break up the earth was probably lifeless. In any case it was millions of years before any creature in the least like man was here to see the change.

And yet the legend of Atlantis cannot be definitely rejected. If you look at the first of Prof. Wegener's maps you will see a small gap between the two continents that were later to be formed; a place where some land surface is missing. It is possibly not an accident that this missing piece of land would have come to occupy, when the drift of the Americas was well along, just the place on the earth that Atlantis is supposed to have filled.

It may be that this little sliver from the continental berg really did lag behind, really did pause close to the coast of Europe, really was inhabited and really did sink beneath the waves in some later cataclysm; all as the Atlantis legend would have us believe.

If some observer off in space could live for a hundred million years and watch the earth once in a while during that tremendous epoch, man might look to him like the insects on the iceberg. To this eternal eye the rock bergs that we ride on might rise and sink, grow and melt, drift about from place to place, just as the bergs of ice do in the terrestrial seas.

Whether anything on earth seems permanent or not depends entirely upon how long you live to watch it.

And for the geologist nothing is permanent. Things that are as "solid as a rock" are not really solid at all. The "everlasting hills" last only a moment as geologists reckon time. The "firm land" that we walk on turns out to be a quivering, heaving, drifting scum on a rock ocean that—if but the time be long enough—is quite as restless as the sea.

Even the earliest of the modern geologists realized, 80 or 100 years ago, that the land areas of the earth had not always been exactly as now. On top of the highest hills they found the bones of fish, the shells of oysters and other molluscs. It was evident that where there is now land it had once been sea.

Furthermore, it required only a very little study of the rock layers exposed in different parts of the earth to determine that the land and the sea had exchanged places many times. Rocks that bear every sign of having been formed under the ocean are interlayered with rocks that are just as clearly the product of land conditions.

Hence arose in the minds of geologists the idea that there have been a number of risings and sinkings of the continents.

The Cinderella Game

MR. OTTO BROWN leaned forward on the divan and permitted a bellboy to hold a match to his cigarette. Then, dropping a quarter into the bellboy's ready hand, he settled back with the sigh of a gentleman who has just enjoyed an excellent dinner and blew a puff of smoke ceilingward. A moment later another bellboy hastened toward him.

"Chicago evening papers, Mr. Brown?"

"Thank you," nodded the young man, not too languidly, and dropped a quarter into this bellboy's hand. If there was one thing Mr. Brown liked it was service—and at French Springs the entire staff of the Corona Hotel seemed to make an heroic effort to give it to him.

It must be admitted that Mr. Brown, as he lounged on the great divan, intent upon the Chicago evening papers, presented a somewhat pleasing appearance. There was no guest at French Springs who looked so exceedingly well in a dinner coat, and his sleek black hair and regular features caused many a lady passing in the lobby to look upon him admiringly.

Had one of these by chance peered over his shoulder, she would have seen that the young man's gray eyes were scanning only the "society" columns of the sheaf of newspapers on his knee. As he opened each in turn he turned at once to the chronicled doings of Chicago society. And when he had finished the last of them a bland expression, something akin to satisfaction, might have been observed to settle over his countenance. With a careless lift of the eyebrows he summoned another bellboy, dropped a quarter into his practiced hand, and allowed him to carry away the armful of crumpled papers.

Then Mr. Brown bestowed his attention on the passing groups of guests. Most of these were known to him, and not infrequently was he the recipient of a sweet smile from some overdressed mamma with a marriageable daughter, or some languishing lady who had been married too long to the same husband. And to each the young man bowed with a smile that was uniformly impersonal. He seemed to be looking for someone.

Behind a clump of palms by the grand staircase, Mrs. Bumble, wife of the Indianapolis bean king, paused and clutched the arm of her daughter, Annabelle.

"There's a dance tonight, isn't there?" queried Mrs. Bumble, who was a large woman, with henna-ed hair and fat, powdered arms.

"Uh-huh," Annabelle, the flapper nodded.

"Why don't you ask Mr. Brown if he doesn't want to go with us?"

"Oh, now, momma"——

"Listen. Everybody says he's a catch. You know what your father's theory is: when you want a thing—go get it."

"But, momma, you can see yourself that he's crazy about Gloria Lee."

"See here, when he finds out who we are in Indianapolis, perhaps he'll change his mind."

"But she has money, too. She's supposed to be the wealthiest girl in Virginia."

"Who said so?" demanded Mrs. Bumble, militantly. "A lot of hotel gossips! I just wish I knew somebody in Richmond!"

"I," said Annabelle, "like Gloria Lee. I think she's very beautiful."

"Humph!" snorted her mother.

At that very moment the object of Mrs. Bumble's concern was reading a note which had just come down to him from Miss Lee's room. "Will you meet me," said the fashionable scrawl in the note, "out under the trees at 9 o'clock?—G. L."

With a smile, young Mr. Brown folded the note and carefully tucked it away in a pocket of his dinner jacket. Then he glanced at his watch. It lacked 20 minutes of 9 o'clock. Flicking his cigarette into a convenient ash receiver, he rose, sauntered leisurely across the lobby and made a graceful exit. Numerous feminine eyes followed him, and a blond young man, sitting alone in a corner behind some palms, glared after him jealously.

The night was warm with the soft, fragrant air of late April. Over the scraggly top of an elm tree the thin rim of a new moon hung poised, and to the young man pacing the dewy lawn and glancing from time to time up at a certain lighted window on the fifth floor of the hotel, it seemed a night made for romance.

• • • • • • • •

Startling as the revelation may sound—since you have seen him as a guest at an expensive hotel at French Springs—Otto Brown was a barber. Otto Brown, in real life, had the second chair in the Hotel Seville barber shop, and because the Seville is Chicago's most ultra-ultra hotel, he had succeeded, during his 12 years of barbering, in amassing, from tips, wages and what not, a round sum of money.

In the shop he was known only as Otto: doubtful it is if three persons, aside from the employes, knew that he possessed another name; yet his clientele was large and fashionable.

Through all the years (he had but recently turned 30) Otto Brown had but one ambition—to be a gentleman, meaning a man who dresses for dinner each evening and can afford to keep a town car.

At one time in his [illegible] sorial career it had [been] his wont to follow [the] seasons. That is, [from] January to April [he] would attach himself [to] the shop of some [fa]hostelry in Palm [Beach]; from April to Septem[ber] he would ply his trade [in] Atlantic City, to the mountains for the autumn, [to] Pinehurst or California—and Chicago for two [or] three months around the holidays. Thus he managed to familiarize himself with most of the fashionable resorts in America, and to know how the people who frequented them lived, dressed, talked and idled.

It was something of a liberal education. He learned, for instance, to differentiate the born gentleman and the self-made type. And it was upon the real gentleman that he, both consciously and unconsciously, patterned his own manner and tone of voice.

In the spring he made his great decision. For months Otto had been planning in his mind a vacation. Not a summer vacation—such as the average barber would take, at a cheap resort on an Indiana lake—but a vacation de luxe. Thus it was that, in March, he decided to spend three weeks at French Springs—as a gentleman.

On the details of the adventure the young man spent many hours of careful thought. Granted that was that, years before, he had taken up the ancient and royal game of golf—for golf at a place like French Springs is utterly essential—and years of practice upon the municipal links of Chicago had made of him a fair player. Otto had always dressed well, and had, for a barber, a rather extensive wardrobe. Having, the season before, permitted himself the extravagance of a tweed golf suit, the only clothes he needed to purchase were a Tuxedo, some white flannels and appropriate shoes. Never in his life had he owned a dinner coat, but because he knew that it should be a first-class one he bought not the $200 that the tailor on the avenue charged him.

This left only the matter of riding things. It was the thought of riding that caused him more worry than anything else. French Springs, like most spring and autumn resorts, was more famous for its bridle paths than for its mineral water, and appearance there in riding clothes was quite as important to the daily program as dressing for dinner. [illegible]

They danced every remaining dance together.

A Case of Love at First Sight, With Complications

"You'll see whether it's a joke or not," replied the house detective grimly.

...Existence at French Springs was, for Otto Brown, a gay-patterned tapestry of pleasure. Each evening, as he dressed for dinner and sauntered down the glittering lobby of the Corona Hotel, he felt himself potentially a prince of the realm. Mid-western millionaires and their wives and daughters, who knew him merely as Mr. Brown, a pleasant—and supposedly wealthy—young man from Chicago, smiled upon him almost with deference. And Otto Brown was happier than he had ever been in his life.

By day he idled on the broad, sunny veranda of the hotel, or played golf; by night he fox-trotted with the daughters of the rich. The only awkwardness that marred the life came in connection with the hotel barber shop. Each time he passed its open door and scented the hair tonics and heard the gurgle of the electric massage machines and the crisp chatter of the barbers saying, "Next gentleman!" he experienced a distinct sensation of uneasiness.

But taking the adventure all in all, he was getting away with it splendidly. When the guests at Corona descended to the lobby each morning they discovered Mr. Brown in riding clothes. He had, he said, risen early for a canter. Sometimes he would sit around in equestrian attire all morning, slapping his boots with his crop, and talking enthusiastically of the joys of the bridle-path—as he had always just returned from a ride; no one ever saw him actually on a horse.

Then toward the end of the first week Gloria Lee arrived, and straightway Otto lost his heart. It is only fair to state that he lost it upon gazing for the first time at the beauty of her hair and her violet eyes and her superb figure—before anyone hinted that she was an heiress. That night there was a "hop" in the ballroom, and he was duly presented to her, and without a thought of consequences, fell instantly and completely in love. Never had he been privileged to know such a girl! Her soft Southern voice, he told himself, actually was music—and when she smiled——

Gloria Lee, it must be admitted, did not discourage his interest in her; and though for the first three days every man in the place raced in pursuit of her, after a week the field narrowed down to Mr. Otto Brown, supposedly wealthy young man from Chicago, and Mr. Felix Piggensticker, a wealthy young man—from Kalamazoo.

Felix Piggensticker was tall and handsome and good-looking. He was an excellent horseman (and in this he outshone Otto, for Gloria Lee loved horses and rode magnificently), but he was also a blatant egotist. Before Gloria the barber of the Seville had a panicky aversion to horses. Yet he must have riding clothes, so he made a pilgrimage one evening to the North Side Riding Academy and, by dint of persuasion and money, cajoled the proprietor into renting him a complete outfit, from crop to boots.

To be a gentleman for three weeks! To rise from his white-tiled world of razors and shampoos and clippers! To live like a millionaire; playing golf with the sort of people he had always shaved! What an adventure!

He wired the Corona Hotel to reserve a room, and in late April departed, with a high heart and a quantity of luggage, for French Springs.

On the very day that Otto Brown, gentleman, embarked upon his adventure, a sleek young man named Ed Bickels, known to the police as Eddie the Dude, completed in Chicago a clever job of forgery. The amount involved was something over $30,000, and before anyone could so much as raise an outcry, Eddie the Dude had disappeared.

As is customary in such cases, no trace of the fugitive was found, but it was the belief of those worthies who wear derby hats and thick-soled shoes and smoke cigars around police headquarters that he had headed down into Indiana.

Never had he been privileged to know such a girl! Her soft Southern voice, he told himself, actually was music—and when she smiled——

Gloria Lee, it must be admitted, did not discourage his interest in her; and though for the first three days every man in the place raced in pursuit of her, after a week the field narrowed down to Mr. Otto Brown, supposedly wealthy young man from Chicago, and Mr. Felix Piggensticker, a wealthy young man—from Kalamazoo.

Felix Piggensticker was tall and handsome and good-looking. He was an excellent horseman (and in this he outshone Otto, for Gloria Lee loved horses and rode magnificently), but he was also a blatant egotist. Before Gloria he managed always to appear the perfect suitor. And this, in itself, was an art.

One morning as Otto was standing on the hotel veranda with Mrs. Bumble and her daughter, Annabelle, Piggensticker and Gloria rode up together, flushed from their canter, looking for all the world like a healthy young god and goddess.

"My," said Mrs. Bumble, maliciously, "Aren't they a handsome couple?"

What Otto lost in not riding with Gloria he made up at golf. She had never played golf and he was teaching her; and the two of them were spending, each day, an inordinately long time on the course. This was Otto's inning, for Felix Piggensticker's golf was atrocious.

So for a week Gloria played about with each of them in turn, and seemed unable to make up her mind. Sometimes she preferred Otto, sometimes Piggensticker, and the affair attracted great interest among the guests of the Corona Hotel.

Felix's attitude toward Otto was intended to be disconcerting. Whenever they were face to face he treated him as an inferior, and once, in the presence of Gloria and some others, Felix contemptuously asked what business Mr. Brown was in—in Chicago. Otto, of course, had schooled himself for emergencies of this sort, and replied promptly that he was in the steel business, feeling that this was no grave untruth, since the tools in his profession were made of steel.

Where, the man from Kalamazoo then demanded, was Mr. Brown's office? Being prepared for this, too, Otto carelessly named the largest office building in the city. He had an unpleasant intuition that Piggensticker suspected him; and when, a second later, Piggensticker asked what floor his office was on, our barber knew that war had been declared.

"If you," he said, coldly, "are so anxious to know about my affairs, why don't you go up to my office some time and make a thorough inquiry?"

It was a bold stroke, of course, but temporarily victory was his.

Thus far the barber of the Seville had played in amazing luck. There were, fortunately, no Chicago people at French Springs; and by following in the newspapers each day the movements of Chicago society, he was able to assure himself that none were on the way. In a way there was something of the zest of adventure about this masquerading as a gentleman. For, should the papers herald the arrival of some notable from the Sooty City, it would be up to Otto to pack his bags and flee.

And yet tonight, as he paced the dewy lawn under the moon and waited for Gloria Lee, he told himself that it would be impossible to leave French Springs while she was there—impossible even though exposure were threatened. For he was in love now—hopelessly, head-over-heels in love. All his life had he dreamed of the love of a great lady, and something in his heart seemed to tell him that, incredible as it might sound, the great lady from Virginia did love him. Gloria Lee, the heiress, loved Otto Brown, the barber. Though, of course, she didn't have any idea that he was a barber!

A moment later he was aware that a shadow had fallen across the carpet of moonlight on the lawn. Then she was coming toward him through the velvet shadows under the trees.

"What a marvelous night!"

Otto Brown, the lover, bent over her two hands and kissed them. Then he looked deep into her eyes. "This night," he said, "was made for you—and me." Of a truth, our barber should have dwelt in the romantic days of plumed hats and rapiers! Gloria Lee gazed wistfully at the moon.

"What," he asked, clinging to one of her hands, "are you thinking about?"

"I am thinking," mused the girl, dreamily, "how perfectly happy I am."

'Twere a breach of good taste, really, to spy upon our barber in his love-making, so suffice it to say that ere the new moon had slipped down behind the scraggly elm, Gloria Lee was in his arms and he was telling her breathlessly that he had loved her from the first moment he saw her; and she, with her eyes closed and her parted lips close to his, waited to be kissed again.

Sometime later they strolled, hand in hand, back to the hotel to the ballroom, where they danced every remaining dance together. This fact, coupled with the radiance of their smiles, set every tongue in the place wagging; and it was definitely decided that the Lee girl and young Brown were engaged.

While this highly agreeable little interlude was being played out under the moon, Felix Piggensticker sat nursing his bitterness in a corner of the lobby, smoking innumerable cigarettes. For, having seen Gloria walk out alone to meet his rival, small wonder that Mr. Piggensticker felt upset. In his heart a great wrath was simmering. He had a distinct feeling of having loved and lost.

A girl from the telegraph desk crossed the marble floor and handed old Gubb, the night clerk, a yellow telegram.

A moment later old Gubb ran a plump hand over his bald head and readjusted his glasses nervously. Then he put down the telegram and glanced hastily about the lobby. Daggett, the house detective, was leaning idly against a marble pillar. Gubb signaled frantically, and Daggett tipped his soft hat over one eye and sauntered leisurely across to the desk.

Felix Piggensticker could not, from where he sat, hear what the night clerk said to Daggett, but he saw Daggett take up the telegram, read it, cock his hat over the other eye, and read it again. Whereupon Felix rose and approached the desk.

"What's up?" he asked.

Old Gubb, who was ever deferential to wealth, bowed.

"A telegram, Mr. Piggensticker," he replied, "from the Chief of Police at Chicago. It seems that a crook named Ed Bickels—Eddie the Dude—is probably here. It appears he's in the habit of stopping at good hotels, posing as a gentleman."

"Let's see the telegram," suggested Felix. Daggett handed it to him.

"Description: average height, well-dressed, weight about hundred fifty, black hair, gray eyes, regular features." As he finished reading, a thought struck Felix like a flaring rocket. His hands, holding the telegram, fairly shook.

"Why," cried Piggensticker, his voice trembling with excitement, "don't you know? Who answers the description? Brown, of course—this fellow who calls himself Brown!"

"Brown?" echoed old Gubb.

"Brown!" gruffed the house detective.

"Why, certainly! Can't you see it? The whole thing's as plain as day. I knew there was something queer about that bird from the first!" And lowering his voice our barber's rival proceeded to make known his suspicions.

"Otto Brown's your man," he announced, almost jovially; "there's no doubt about it!"

The house detective shifted his hat over the other eye and tried to look very professional indeed. Old Gubb looked worried.

"But Mr. Brown," he protested, feebly, "always seemed like such a nice fellow—gentlemanly and"——

"Gentlemanly!" cried Piggensticker. "Of course! That's his game—that's how he swindles people! Take my advice and arrest him tonight."

The night clerk's faded blue eyes were troubled. He liked Mr. Brown. "But you must have some proof," he objected. "You couldn't arrest a guest without some proof."

"Hold 'im on s'picion," growled Daggett. He liked the idea of making arrests. This one would undoubtedly prove a sensation, and if the man were Eddie the Dude, what a feather in his hat! "Yep," he nodded, "we c'd hold 'im on s'picion."

"But," protested old Gubb, "if it's a mistake"——

Piggensticker would have liked, of course, to see his rival arrested that very night—but caution told him it were better to have a complete case against Otto Brown. "See here," he went on, tapping the desk with his finger, "I can wire my Chicago agent tonight to look Brown up. There'll be an answer the first thing in the morning—and you can pinch him then."

When Gloria descended for breakfast the next morning, Otto, attired as usual in riding things, rose from a chair to greet her, a great love shining in his eyes. For an instant they surveyed each other, half critically, as lovers have from time immemorial on the morning after the declaration of their love. It was as if they had grown new selves the night before, and these new selves were seeing each other for the first time in the light of day. Then Gloria lowered her eyes, and, there being no one about, Otto bent swiftly over her hands and kissed them.

"You've no idea," he said, huskily, "how wonderful you are."

"I have, though," replied Gloria, "a very good idea of how wonderful you are!"

It was one of those fine points which young people who have loved each other not over a week delight in arguing.

"I wonder—I wonder if you know how much I love you?"

Gloria Lee raised her eyes swiftly to his, and the expression he saw in them must have been extremely gratifying to him.

"I want to be finding that out," she said, softly, "all my life." She broke off suddenly. Several people were approaching—Daggett, the house detective, in the lead, and Felix Piggensticker and Mrs. Bumble and others.

Otto Brown turned to face them, and as he discovered that he was still holding Gloria's hand, released it with a slight flush of embarrassment. Daggett, the sleuth, halted directly in front of him.

"Ed Bickels," he announced, dramatically, "I arrest you in the name of the law."

"Ed Bickels?" repeated Otto, stepping back a pace. "What is this, a practical joke?"

"You'll see whether it's a joke or not," replied the house detective, grimly. "Get your hat an' come with me."

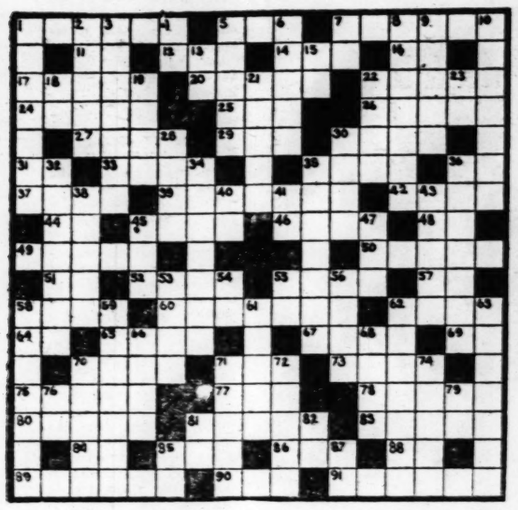
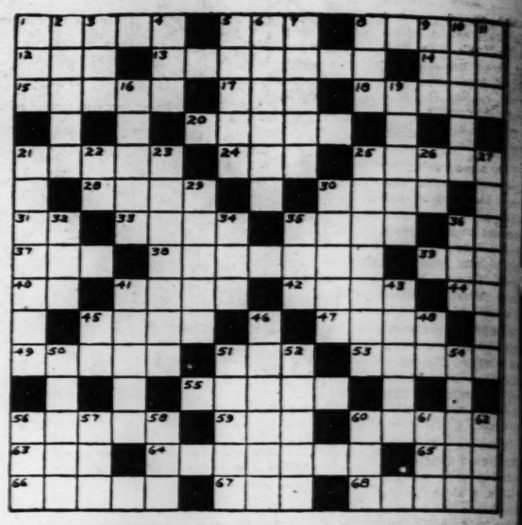
More Cross-Word Puzzles to Tax Your Skill



Some of the world's best-known rivers figure in today's puzzle. In fact, they form the four corners. A good place for new comers to start is on square 32, where the vertical word defined as "to exceed the extent of" begins. It is "outspan." The "a" in that word is the second letter in "small island near British New Guinea"—the horizontal word beginning at 55, which is "Nada."

EVERY number in the form represents the beginning of a word, reading either horizontally or vertically. If there is a black square to the left of the number, the word is horizontal; if above it, the word is vertical. The definitions for the correct words to fill the form are found below, with numbers corresponding to those on the form. Run through the definitions till you find one that you recognize, and put it in its proper place on the form, one letter for each white square. This will furnish several cross-clews to the words linking with it at right angles. Continue in this manner till the form is completely filled. If you have solved the puzzle correctly it should read both horizontally and vertically with words corresponding to the definitions.



There are some grand old words in this puzzle, and the interlock is something grand also.

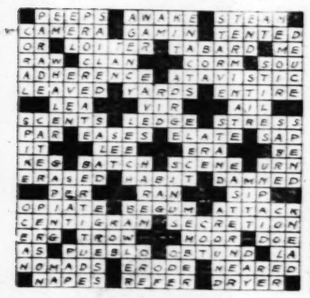
ANSWER TO LAST WEEK'S PUZZLE



The World's One Crop That Never Fails

it as an adjective. Now, take the word 'shoplifter.' It is a common enough word over here. But the other day I found that in England the term is known as a jackdaw.

"The word 'fugio cent' you won't find in the Practical Dictionary because that is a word restricted to the unabridged edition." He took a sheet of the unabridged dictionary and pointed to the picture of the fugio cent, showing obverse and reverse sides. According to the definition fugio cent is "a copper coin authorized by the Congress of 1787, having 'Fugio' as its inscription."

But Dr. Vizetelly pointed out that although the coin was authorized in 1787, it was evidently minted in 1782, five years before it was authorized, for the coin bears that date. Another curious thing about the coin is that it bears the terse inscription: "Mind Your Business."

"If journalists would bear in mind that they as well as the people make the language, perhaps we would attain a higher type of culture than is reflected by the very interesting and amusing autobiography of a thief," Dr. Vizetelly commented, in quite another vein.

Then he turned to a book of his own. "It took me four years to get this out," he said. "I'm a man who won't accept anybody's word without verification. None of us who work with words can possibly accept other people's say so, because sometimes people are honestly mistaken."

Dr. Vizetelly occupies a unique place in the ranks of self-made men, having bridged the span between a farm in England and the managing editor's chair of one of the best-known dictionaries of the English language.

As a boy Frank H. Vizetelly worked on a farm in Surrey and later in a sawmill. Then destiny took a hand and lured him to America, where he offered his services to the dictionary publishers for nothing. He was taken into the firm on trial, which lasted for a day. The following day he was offered $12 a week.

He became a dictionary hack and did all sorts of sub-editorial, proof-reading and publishing work, familiarizing himself with the dictionary business so thoroughly that just before Dr. Isaac K. Funk, one of the founders of the firm, died in 1912, he appointed Dr. Vizetelly managing editor.

HOW PEOPLE VARY WHEN THEY SEE RED.

IN TESTING the ability of more than 600 individuals to see red light, R. A. Houstoun and W. M. Heddie, in England, have found that some people see reds much dimmer than other people do. Among the persons examined the one with the best eye for reds saw them more than five times as well as did the one with the worst eye for this color. Even among the people who believe that their eyes are perfectly normal there are apt to be wide variations in the sensitiveness of the eye to light of reddish tints.

RIVERS, AND THE PART THEY PLAY IN LITERATURE

THERE is something strangely fascinating about a river, especially to those who have spent their childhood beside one, and after reading an essay by Mr. F. G. Afialo on "The Genius of the River," I hasten to remove the reproach of having neglected the rivers that flow through the world of letters. Let me begin by quoting a paragraph in which Mr. Afialo points out how fertilizing rivers have been to literature:

"Rivers meander through the Bible, source of many founts of later poetry. The psalmist, whoever he was, loved them well, and they filter softly through those wondrous songs of his. In their whisper he read the promise of infinite mercy, and for the righteous he could find no better place than that of a tree planted by the rivers of water. In the mythologies of many lands rivers roll sonorously, and none with more grandeur than in Hindu legend the Ganges, the Nile of India, yet unlike the Nile, never destructive or capricious.

"We read of this mighty stream in the 'Mahabharata' as springing from the tangled hair of Siva, and flowing beneficently over the earth; and it is today the proudest humiliation of orthodox Hindus to prostrate themselves before the benefactor. There is something singularly sympathetic about this river-worship. There are moments at which it invades minds attuned to the ideals of other faiths."

Apart from Thames and Tweed, and Rhine and Tiber, and Nile and Ganges, and other historic streams that have bulked so largely both in fact and fiction, what are the rivers in books that live in your memory?

First, I suppose, is the Floss, hurrying on between its green banks to the sea, in George Eliot's novel, with its tributary Ripple—"How lovely the little river is, with its dark, changing wavelets!"—which turned the wheel of Dorlcote Mill, and along which Tom and Maggie Tulliver used to wander. It was, I believe, in the Ripple and not the Floss that the Round Pool was to be found—"that wonderful pool which the floods had made a long while ago; no one knew how deep it was; and it was mysterious, too, that it should be almost a perfect round, framed in with willows and tall reeds, so that it was only to be seen when you got close to the brink"—where Maggie, with Tom's assistance, caught the large tench.

Associated with Ripple, in my mind, is the little river Brawl, which, as you know, runs noisily westward, separating Clavering Park from Fairoaks, until it is lost in a little somber wood. When the Claverings went to live in Clavering Park, Arthur Pendennis "took to fishing in the Brawl, which runs through the park, and passes not very far from the garden wall; and by the oddest coincidence, Miss Amory would walk out (having been to look at her flowers), and would be quite surprised to see Mr. Pendennis fishing."

Except in "The Mill on the Floss," there is, I think, no Victorian novel in which a river plays so important a part as in "Lorna Doone." We are given a good description of it in one of the early chapters:

"About two miles below our farm, the Bagworthy water runs into the Lynn, and makes a real river of it. Thence it hurries away, with a strength and a force of willful waters, under the foot of a barefaced hill, and so to rocks and woods again, where the stream is covered over, and dark, heavy pools delay it. There are plenty of fish all down this way, and the further you go the bigger they be, having deeper grounds to feed in."

It was by investigating the course of this stream that John Ridd found his way into the stronghold of the Doones and met Lorna, and it served him well during the time of his courtship. Another stream, in the same book, that stays in the memory is the brook from which Tom Faggus rescued the drake that had been caught in the hurdle during the flood.

Where there are weirs, there are necessarily rivers, and two weirs in George Meredith's novels deserve to live in the history of romance. By one of these, Richard Feverel made acquaintance with Lucy:

"Above green-flashing plunges of a weir, and shaken by the thunder below, lilies, golden and white, were swaying at anchor among the reeds. Meadow-sweet hung from the banks, thick with weed and trailing bramble, and there also hung a daughter of earth. Her face was shaded by a broad straw hat with a flexible brim that left her lips and chin in the sun, and, sometimes nodding, sent forth a light of promising eyes. * * * The blooming young person was regaling on dewberries. They grew between the bank and the water. * * *

"From a dewy copse, standing dark over her nodding hat, the blackbird fluted, calling to her with thrice mellow note; the kingfisher flashed emerald out of green osiers; a bow-winged heron traveled aloft, seeking solitude; a boat slipped toward her containing a dreamy youth; and still she plucked the fruit, and ate, and mused, as if no fairy prince were invading her territories, and as if she wished not for one, or knew not her wishes."

And it was by another weir that Winfried Pole (a more unworthy lover) kissed Emilia, in "Sandra Belloni."

All these are English rivers; and to avoid the charge of insularism, it is necessary to mention some that flow in other countries. Stevenson gives us a couple. "Two little rivers, or, rather, two swamps, emptied out into this pond, as you might call it; and the foliage of that part of the shore had a kind of poisonous brightness," in "Treasure Island." Several are to be found in Mr. Conrad's early novels. The rivers in "Almayer's Folly" and "An Outcast of the Islands" are quite as memorable as the human beings who live on their brinks. And in Mrs. Flora Annie Steele's "On the Face of the Waters" we get more than a glimpse of the genius of the river.—London Observer.

What Happens When Dynamite Explodes

By CHARLES S. HURTER.

BIG dynamite blasts are mentioned more and more frequently in the news. Charges of dynamite are buried deep in the face of a cliff, an electric switch is turned, there is a deafening roar, and thousands of tons of rock come crashing down. What, the inquiring observer asks, produces this explosion? What actually happens when dynamite explodes?

To answer this question, it is necessary to explain briefly what dynamite is. Reduced to its essentials, dynamite is a mixture of nitroglycerin with wood meal and nitrate of soda or nitrate of ammonia, or both. Nitroglycerin, in turn, is composed of several different elements, namely, carbon, hydrogen, nitrogen and oxygen, the molecules of which are grouped in such a way as to form a heavy, oily, yellow liquid.

Now, these same molecules are capable of arrangement in other groups to form several different substances instead of the one, and the bonds which hold them together in the particular arrangement which makes nitroglycerin are very weak.

Consequently, when the electric current sets off the detonator imbedded in the dynamite and this imparts a sharp shock and very high temperature to the nitroglycerin, the bonds between the molecules which compose the nitroglycerin break down. The nitrogen and some of the oxygen remain free—both of them gases—while the other molecules instantly combine to form two compound gases, carbon dioxide and water vapor.

The breaking down of the nitroglycerin and rearrangement of its molecules generates a great deal of heat—enough to raise the temperature of the gases to 6300 degrees Fahrenheit, or thereabouts—and this high temperature causes the other ingredients of the dynamite to decompose into gases, or to burn, with the release of still more heat.

All of this takes place in a single instant and the highly heated and rapidly expanding gases, which would normally occupy a much greater volume than the dynamite, exert a sudden tremendous pressure on the walls of the bore hole. The rock gives way and the escaping gases set the air into violent vibration.

To the beholder, the explosion consists of the roaring noise and the rending of the rock, but in reality these are only the audible and visible results of the rearrangement of the molecules of the dynamite when subjected to a shock from the detonator, this conversion of the nitroglycerin and other ingredients of the dynamite into gases constituting the actual explosion.

ANCIENT HORSE THE SIZE OF A DOG.

GEOLOGISTS exploring a little-known region in Northern China have discovered the bones of a fossil horse which lived millions of years ago and which was no larger than a modern dog. Bones of primitive men have been found in the same deposits. Possibly the horses of those days were household pets, as dogs are now, though it is more likely that if men used these tiny horses at all it was for food rather than for any other purpose.

Thousands say of this book
"This is just what I have always wanted!"

A YOUNG business man once said to a famous newspaper editor: "Tell me what is the matter with me. I can't read worth-while literature. I've been trying to read the works of Carlyle, yet I ..."
"Stop," exclaimed the editor. "Have you ever tried to eat roast beef three times a day, seven days a week? That is the trouble with your reading, you need variety, daily variety. Then you'll find good reading one of the most thrilling pursuits of your life. Yes, and the most profitable, too."
That young man's question expressed an urgent need of thousands. Everybody knows that good literature offers the surest, quickest way to broad culture. But what to read and where to begin? That has always been the baffling problem. And then, recently, suddenly, by a stroke of communicative genius, nine of the most famous men of letters did strike upon a plan which threw open the doors of literature's treasure house.
The nine eminent men who created this new plan were Dr. Lyman Abbott, John Macy, Richard Le Gallienne, Ann Doe Dickinson, Dr. Hiram Percy, Thomas L. Masson, Dr. Henry Van Dyke, George Iles and Dr. Hamilton Wright Mabie.
Thousands Acclaim It
The inspiration that came to these men was a Daily Reading Guide—a definite schedule for each day's reading for a year.
And this schedule was so arranged that the selections fall on anniversary dates. Thus on July 14 much of the reading is about the Fall of the Bastille; each day is full of work timely interest. NEW CONSTITUTIONS IN MIDDLE LIFE THROUGH CORRECT BREATHING

THE importance of correct breathing cannot be exaggerated by the "young" middle-aged man who wishes to restore his physical health to what it was in early youth. The question of breathing is closely related to those of exercise and muscular development, but it is quite possible to treat it separately, writes Lieutenant-Colonel H. G. Mayes in the London Express.

The breath of life is no idle phrase. Many people have lived for more than a month without food, others have gone for days without water, but if the air supply is cut off, if only for a few minutes, death must supervene.

This is because the sun is the basis of all life. It is the energy of sunlight which is stored up in the food we eat which again becomes the tissue of the body.

The first function of the breathing process is to release for the uses of the body this energy based on light. This release can only take place by the transmission of oxygen all through the human frame. The process of breathing is that of drawing this oxygen from the outer air into the lungs, which then scatter it through the body.

All life is based on oxygen, and without it all life would cease.

So there are throughout the body cells which might be called "oxygen conveyors." As you breathe the oxygen flows into the lungs and is then rapidly distributed throughout the whole human frame by these cells. When the lungs have distributed the oxygen where it is wanted they draw into themselves again, on the rebound, all the gases and poisons which the organs of the body produce in the normal discharge of their functions. There is, therefore, a double process continually going on—the outward drive of the oxygen and the return journey, which cleanses the system of impurity.

Hold your breath for a few moments and you will have a kind of bursting sensation. It is the body crying out for its necessary oxygen. To put it in more technical terms, the lungs oxygenate the blood—a process absolutely essential to very life itself.

Anyone can see that a process of such infinite importance as breathing should be carried on in the right way and not in the wrong way.

It is our very unconsciousness of the act of breathing which makes us so careless about it. To a conscious muscular process we devote mental attention and carry it out as effectively as we can, but since breathing seems to happen of itself we do not bother to control it as we ought. Yet 18 breaths are taken every minute without our knowing it—that is to say, one for every four beats of the heart.

Breathing may also be regarded as a process of pumping the blood through the body. In accordance with the vigor with which this is done the elements in the body which resist disease will be strengthened. The process is roughly as follows:

As the lungs are emptied the wall of the chest is raised. This in turn exerts a kind of suction force on the veins which enter the chest, and draws the blood from the stomach through the lungs into the heart. The stronger the muscles of the chest and of the wall of the stomach are the faster the blood will move and the healthier the body will be.

I have come now to a point where the problem of breathing touches on that of muscular development in general, and I will simply add some detailed notes on the right method of breathing.

The correct method of breathing is, of course, through the nose; air taken in this way is both filtered and warmed before reaching the lungs. Colds, sore throats and many kindred ailments are sometimes caused by mouth breathing.

People accustomed to mouth breathing may find difficulty in breathing through the nose. The following simple treatment, if carried out morning and evening, will be found beneficial:

Close one nostril and immerse face and nose in tepid water, breathe gently up and down until you feel the water almost enter the throat, remove the face from the water, exhale and inhale sharply, still keeping one nostril closed. Carry on until the air passages of both nostrils are quite clear, after which remember to breathe at least one hour entirely through the nose.

Remember always to keep one nostril closed when breathing in water, as breathing with both nostrils in water at the same time may cause slight ear trouble.

The above treatment can be used while washing the face, and if carried out efficiently will not only clear the air passages, but will make nose breathing easy and natural.

RADIO WAVES CAN PENETRATE ANY SUBSTANCE

IT IS almost impossible to keep the radio waves out of anything. Even the inside of a complete metal container, like an iron tank, some of the radio energy will penetrate if you leave so little as a tiny crack for it to get through. This is the conclusion of R. H. Barfield, as reported recently to the Institution of Electrical Engineers of England.

Through ordinary house materials, like stone or wood or brick, the radio waves penetrate easily, by passing right through the material itself. Such materials are "transparent" to the radio waves, as glass is transparent to light. But metals are not transparent to radio. A lining of metal sheets on your house would keep the radio waves out of it—provided the metal were solid all around the house.

The smallest chink in the metal would let some of the radio energy get in. Mr. Barfield found that the small crack around the cover on the manhole of a large iron tank was enough to let some of the radio waves in. To keep them out the tank cover had to be well fastened down, so that it was in good electrical contact with the main body of the tank.

THE ENERGY OF THE VOICE.

THE amount of actual power sent out, in the form of sound waves, by the human voice, is so tiny that 200,000 people all talking at once would produce only about enough power to light one medium size electric lamp.

Another "Solution" of Greatest Sea Mystery

Just how much havoc the shark caused by its appetite for human flesh, Fosdyk does not attempt to explain. He found himself, after a hard swim, aboard the floating platform, with another member of the crew, who was terribly injured and who died some hours later and rolled off. Everybody else, it is to be inferred, was either killed by the shark or drowned. The Marie Celeste sailed away as her own mistress.

Fosdyk found himself cast up on an African beach, where he was attended by black men and women whose language he could not understand. Weeks later a sailing craft appeared and took him aboard. He was landed at Algiers, went to Marseilles, was taken very ill, underwent an operation at a hospital and finally recovered his health.

"About four months later," runs the Fosdyk yarn, "or in the summer of 1874, I came to England and met in the Surrey Commercial Dock the man who introduced me to my late employer, in whose service ashore I remained until he died, and in the service of whose son I still am, and I pray God I may remain so until it pleases Him to take me home."

By "my late employer" was meant the father of Headmaster Linford of Peterborough Lodge School. Fosdyk's manuscript contained no explanation of the man's long silence. If his was a true account, why did he not tell his story as soon as he returned to civilization after his rescue? Extraordinary as it is, the tale seems more plausible than that told by Capt. Lucy's informant. But the privilege of picking holes applies to both yarns with equal force.

The mystery of the Marie Celeste remains to be solved acceptably, human incredulity being what it is.

The Cinderella Game

"But I don't understand. My name is Brown."

"Yeh? The police got your number, all right, Mr. Eddie the Dude—an' you're comin' with me."

"What does he mean?" It was a frightened cry from Gloria.

Otto turned to her, and as he was about to speak, Piggensticker's voice broke in.

"Gloria," he said, harshly, "I'm sorry—but this man you believe to be Otto Brown is known to the police as Eddie the Dude, and he's wanted in Chicago for a neat little job of forgery."

"You lie," said Otto, in a hard, strained voice.

"I do, hey? Then read this!" Piggensticker's eyes glittered unpleasantly, and he thrust forward a telegram. "I suspected you from the first—when you told me you were in the steel business and had an office in the Babylon Building. So last night I wired my Chicago agent to look you up, and here's his reply: 'No such person in Babylon Building nor in Chicago Business Directory.' There!" he cried, triumphantly. "Now, what have you got to say?"

Otto's face had gone pale, and his fists were clenched. He longed to strike this man a smashing blow, yet some calm voice in his enraged soul was whispering that he must play the gentleman to the end.

"It's a vile frame-up," he said, chokingly. "And I'm going to hold you responsible for it." He glared threateningly at Piggensticker.

"Come along," interrupted the detective; "no more arguing, there."

"But this charge is ridiculous. I tell you my name is Brown. Oh—it's all too ridiculous. You can't arrest me"—

"I'll take a chance on it," snapped Daggett. "You're a pretty slick worker, but you're not goin' to get away from me!"

Otto was vaguely conscious of a ring of staring faces about him. As if from afar came the rasping voice of Mr. Tupper, the assistant manager. "The evidence is all against you—please go quietly," he was pleading. "Think of the reputation of the hotel!"

At this moment the main door swung open to admit a new arrival—a breezy, red-cheeked, well-dressed young man, followed by a bellboy laden with luggage.

"What's the row?" demanded the breezy young man.

"They've nabbed a crook," somebody told him. "That fellow in riding clothes."

Mr. Raymond Shirley of Chicago, who prided himself on traveling without announcing his movements in the society columns of the newspapers, craned his neck and caught sight of Otto. Then straightway Mr. Shirley pushed his way through the crowd.

"Here," he said, frowning, "what's the big idea?"

From the moment Otto Brown saw the face coming toward him through the crowd, his spirits dropped and hope died out of his heart.

"What do you want with this man?" demanded Mr. Shirley, crisply.

"Why—uh," Daggett coughed, "he's a crook—wanted for forgery."

"Crook — nothing!" exclaimed Mr. Shirley. "I guess I know Otto, here—he's been my barber in Chicago for the last five years—at the Seville in Chicago!"

There was a startled gasp from the crowd, and Mr. Shirley, who felt that he had heroically saved a difficult situation, heard a fat woman with henna-ed hair say, sniffingly: "A barber! My dear, did you ever hear of such a thing! Why, I'd almost rather he'd turned out to be a crook. Come, Annabelle, I always told you that young man was no good!"

The crowd seemed to be dispersing, and Mr. Shirley, suddenly sensing tragedy in the little drama, reached out his hand to the barber of the Seville. But the barber of the Seville did not see it. He turned, and was staring dejectedly down at the figure of a beautiful, fair-haired girl who sat huddled in a chair, weeping.

* * * * *

When his trunk had been strapped, and the last bit of wearing apparel tossed with almost frantic haste into the traveling bags, Otto Brown stood up and passed a trembling hand across his eyes. Even yet he was a bit bewildered, but through the chaos of his thoughts certain facts impressed themselves upon him cruelly. His house of cards had crumpled about him, the glamour had faded from his great adventure, and he was once again Otto the barber. That was not, of course, the bitterest thing. It was the thought of Gloria Lee, who had believed in him—who had, briefly, perhaps, loved him. He cursed himself for the unhappiness, the disgrace he had brought upon her. What a fool he had been.

* * * * *

Came a knock on the door. It was a bellboy, and behind him a porter, come for the trunk.

"Did you get a car?"

"It's waiting at the door, sir."

"Mind you—I don't want to be seen," said Otto. "Can't we go down by the freight elevator?"

"Certainly, sir—come with me."

A dilapidated automobile, of the sort that is used to convey guests to and from the railroad station at French Springs, stood panting at the side entrance of the hotel. As the bellboy stepped out of the freight elevator, he looked cautiously about."

"No one in sight," he answered curtly. For, having Mr. Brown's final tip in his pocket, he was now free to leave off the "sir." That meant the end of Otto's career as a gentleman, but Otto was in no mood to notice it—or to care. He had lost, in the last hour, the only thing that mattered in life.

But as he emerged stealthily from the freight elevator and listlessly shuffled around the corner toward the door, a running figure hurled itself at him, and he felt Gloria Lee's arms tight about his neck.

"You can't go away like this," she was saying, breathlessly, in his ear. "You can't! I know—I don't care!"

And then it was that an amazing thing happened. Gloria Lee's arms clung tighter to him, and she whispered something in his ear.

"I didn't hear." He bent closer.

"I'm not an heiress—I don't know who started the story. I didn't deny it because—well, because it was nice having people think I was an heiress."

A strange light was breaking in the young man's eyes. "But—Richmond?" he asked, his voice a trifle unsteady.

"Oh, I live in Richmond, all right. I'm a manicuress in the St. George Hotel there. All my life I've dreamed of taking a vacation like a lady, and I"—

But his lips stopped the rest of her confession. A minute that was a rapturous century swept by.

"Say," announced the bellboy, after a perfunctory cough. "Your car's waitin'."

The barber of the Seville looked up slowly, and on his face was an expression of great happiness.

"Tell him," he said, "to wait."

flush and pick up the rudiments of the game?"

"You mean, he said to follow a foursome?"

"Maybe it was a foursome. Some said 'Fore' and some said only cuss words."

"Chass, und did you follow them?"

"The caddy boy takes me and leads me gentle, for 50 cents, and we followed with a lot of peoples."

"Did you pick up the rudiments of the game?"

"No. I helped the boy pick up the clubs what they dropped."

"That iss a good beginnings. Did any of the experts give you advice?"

"Only one of the fourflushers. He said 'Fore.'"

"And what did you said?"

"I said: 'I beg your pardon, not four; you missed him only twice.'"

"And he said"——

"He asked me what did I know about golluf? And I replied, in my usual, well-informed manners, that I knew, positively, that golluf was a Scotch game."

"And what did he said?"

"He said that the Scotch was in the nineteenth hole."

"Chass; proceed."

"Then I told him to throw the ball up in the air and hit as it comed down, like Babe Ruth, and he takes a medal off his breast and pins it on my broad bosom, and remarks that I win the double cross mit the palm."

"Then what did you do?"

"I bowed politely, acknowledging the laughter and applause."

THE DEDICATION OF MISSOURI'S NEW STATE CAPITOL

Airplane view of the new State Capitol at Jefferson City, some of the dedication crowd in the foreground, the broad sweep of the Missouri River beyond.

Main entrance of the new State Capitol, with some of those who took part in the dedication pageant grouped on the steps. The figures standing at the center are those of Governor Hyde and three former Governors and the members of the State Capitol Commission.

"First lady" of Missouri and four of her predecessors. Left to right: Mrs. Elliott W. Major, the widow of former Governor Joseph W. Folk, Mrs. Arthur M. Hyde, Mrs. Frederick D. Gardner and Mrs. Herbert S. Hadley.

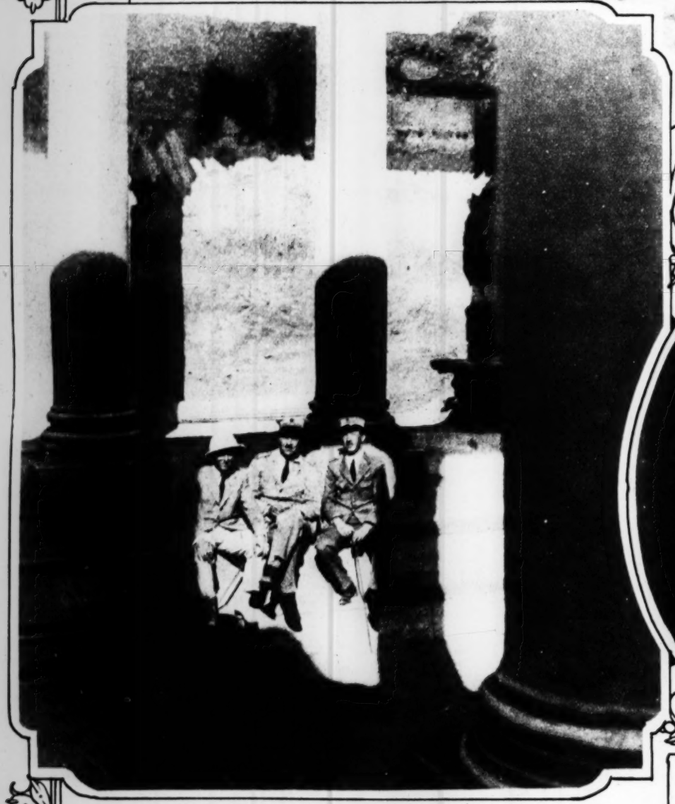
Photographs by Clint Murphy, staff photographer of the Post-Dispatch.

In the back row are Colonels on the personal staffs of the four Governors—Hadley, Major, Gardner and Hyde—whose administrations have had to do with the construction of the new Capitol. Governor Hyde stands at the center of this group. The gentlemen in black, grouped about the small model of the Capitol, are former Governors and the members of the State Capitol Commission. Each of the 114 counties is represented by one of the young women terraced on the steps.

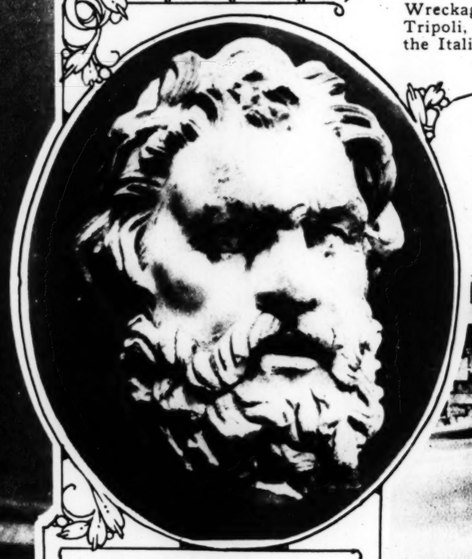
UNEARTHING A BURIED CITY OF ANCIENT ROME

Wreckage of a magnificent building in Leptis Magna, near Tripoli, Northern Africa. The excavating is being done by the Italian Government.

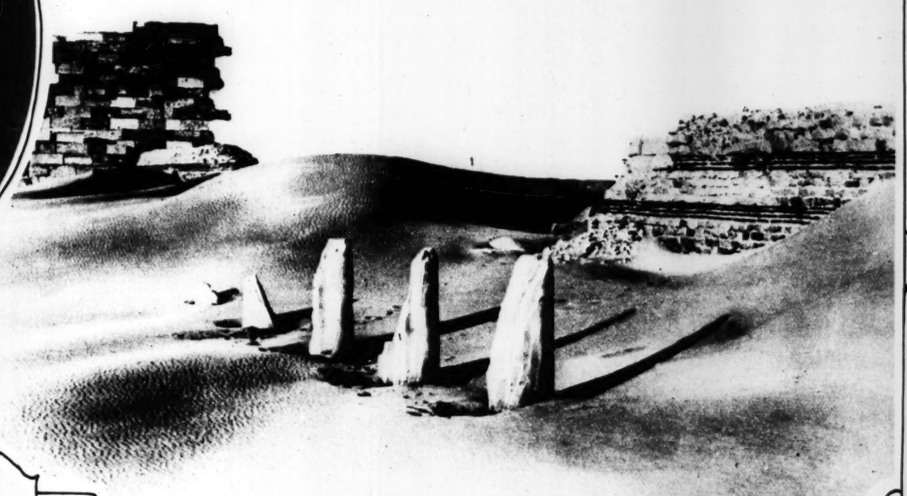
Statue of Esculapius, father of medicine. Search is now being made for the head, believed to be buried deeper in the sand. The snake at the base identified the subject as Esculapius.



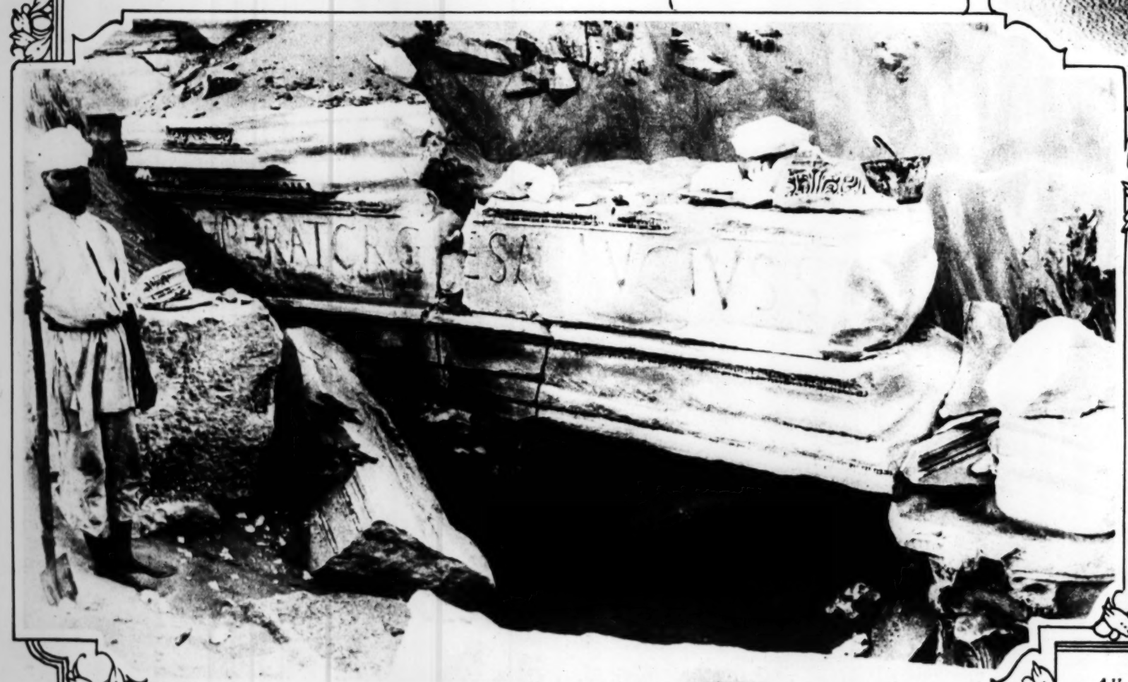
The men and the ancient glories they have unearthed. Prof. Renato Bartoccini (left) and two Italian officers who aided in the conquest of Northern Africa, thus making the explorations possible.



Fine example of ancient Roman sculpture dug up by the excavators. Prof. Bartoccini, in charge of the work, has called it "The Agony of Inspiration."



High relief of highly elaborate classical workmanship buried in the sand. Leptis Magna was once a seaport, but its ruins are now in a sandy waste.



The inscription over the front of the imperial palace at Leptis Magna, with part of its dedication to the Emperor Septimus Severus still intact.

—All Photos by International.

A fine example of ancient Roman carving. It was the finding of bits of ornamentation like this that led to the most important explorations since those at Pompeii.

THE TOILETTE SECRET :·

that has made American Hands the LOVELIEST in the World-

CUTEX is the dearest toilette requisite of women who care about their hands.

Such women say they simply would not be without Cutex — it keeps the skin about the nails smooth and pretty and the nails themselves always immaculate — snow-white no matter what they do.

Cutex has been perfected by a specialist who realizes that the old-fashioned way of prodding and forcing back the skin around the nails or cutting it can never give the smooth, soft nail rims, essential to pretty finger tips. So he made the safe liquid that softens the cuticle and loosens the dead skin which dries to the nail and spoils its beauty.

FOR this manicure the nail tips are first shaped with a file, then smoothed with the Cutex emery boards. The hands are washed and then with a Cutex orange stick, moistened in Cutex, wrapped in a bit of cotton and wet in Cutex again, the cuticle is made lovely, and the nails snow-white. For the polish that gives the nails a fragile shell-like lustre there are four Cutex Polishes to choose from: Powder, Liquid, Cake and Paste.

Complete Cutex manicure sets are 60c, $1.00, $1.50 or $3.00. The articles separately are 35c.

Triscuit is not made of flour. It is the whole wheat, cooked in steam, drawn out into filmy shreds and then pressed into a cracker and baked in electric ovens.

Its crispness encourages thorough chewing, and that means sound teeth and healthy gums. Delicious for any meal with butter, soft cheese or marmalade.

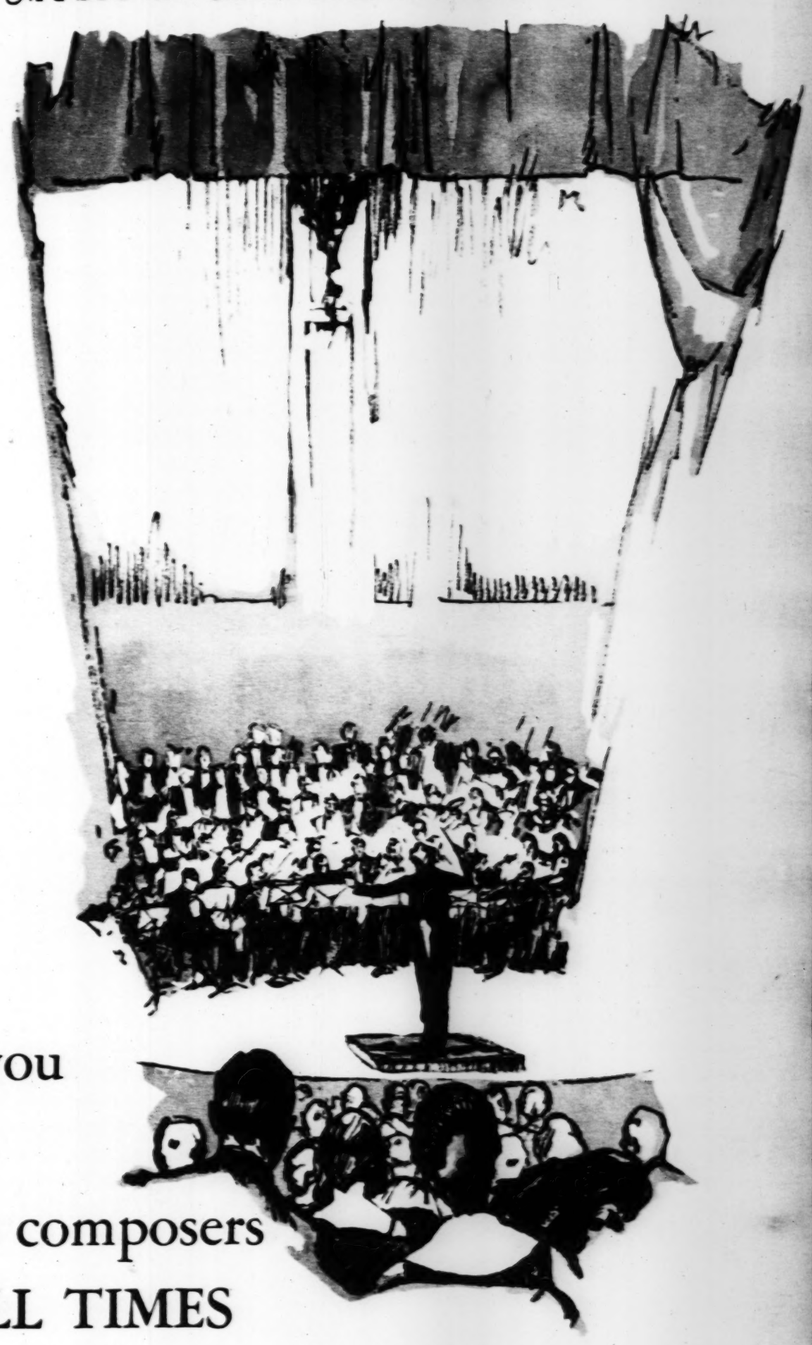
ALL THE MUSIC OF ALL THE WORLD



They play for you
the MUSIC of all the greatest composers of ALL TIMES

WHITE shoulders . . . gleaming jewels . . . black coats . . . faint rustling of programs . . . a breathless hush as Walter Damrosch raises his baton—then, strains of such glorious music as the world seldom hears.

It is "Symphony" night at Carnegie Hall. From the four corners of New York have come the lovers of music who crowd the great auditorium to the doors. Beethoven or Brahms, Schubert or Mozart, Dvorak or—whatever the work to be heard—these lovers of music know it will be gloriously played.

To-night perhaps it is the Symphony in G minor, composed by Mozart in the very flower of his genius. Would you like to hear the New York Symphony Orchestra play it? You can. This famous orchestra, under the leadership of Walter Damrosch, has made Columbia New Process Records not only of the Mozart work, but of overtures and operatic selections that belong in every record-library with claims to artistic completeness.

Through Columbia Records you can own many other records made by the noted symphony orchestras of the world—orchestras which play for you the immortal scores of the greatest composers of all times.

Ask a Columbia Dealer, for instance, for record 55005 D. Take it home and put it on your phonograph. In a single magic moment you are in London, across the seas, listening to the New Queen's Hall Orchestra under Sir Henry Wood. A few quiet measures, then your senses are steeped full in the beauty of Schubert's Unfinished Symphony. It is truly a marvelous rendition of this inspired work.

Should you care to compare the great French and English orchestras, Columbia Records enable you to do even this. The French Symphony (the oldest organization of the kind in the world) has recorded for Columbia a number of lovely things. A reference to the Columbia catalog will give you a choice.

Turn the leaves of this same catalog and you will see listed there records bearing riches in music of which you may not have dreamed. There are beautiful pieces impeccably played by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra under the direction of the scholarly Mr. Stock, and records by the Cincinnati Symphony and the Philharmonic of New York.

All Columbia Records (including the latest popular hits) are made by a method of laminated construction which permits the use of a finer and more delicate surfacing material than has ever been used before. It eliminates scratching and needle noise—and you hear the music with shadings of tone and subtleties of phrasing not possible on ordinary records. They are priced from 75c up. YOUTH KILLED IN HOLDUP IN WHICH WIFE WAS PICKET

Mrs. Anna Mueller, 18, Tells of Brief Career in Drugstore Robberies With Husband, Also 18.

OUTSIDE IN AUTO WHEN HE IS SHOT

Robber Wounded at Store at Marcus and Natural Bridge Dies on Way to Hospital.

Mrs. Anna Mueller, 18 years old, sold today, in a cell at Mounted Police Station, of her brief career of adventure as advance picket for her husband, Clarence Mueller, 18, and another young man in drugstore holdups.

Last night, attempting the second robbery in three nights, Mueller was fatally shot by Leroy H. Schumann in Schumann's store at Marcus and Natural Bridge avenues, while the bob-haired young wife sat outside in an automobile, munching an ice cream cone which she had bought in the store a few minutes before. Mueller died in her lap, as the other youth was driving them toward a hospital.

She admits that she was a willing accomplice in last night's attempted holdup, and in one which her husband and his companion committed Friday night at Ninth and Chambers streets, getting $15 there.

"Clarence said there was very little chance of the police catching us," she said. "He said it would be safer and easier for them if I was along."

Warrants charging attempted robbery in the first degree were issued today against Mrs. Mueller and the other young man named by her, who is Cecil Williams, 18, of 3311 North Ninth street. Williams has not been caught.

Married 16 Months Ago.

The girl said she and Mueller were married 16 months ago "and lived together when we could afford to." For the last two weeks, she said, they had lived at 3818 North Eleventh street. He worked at times as a laborer, she said, but her impressions on this point were indefinite. The police had arrested him 13 times in three years, and he had been sent twice to Bellefontaine Farms on minor charges.

Friday night, it apparently was just as easy and safe as her husband had told her it would be.

"We drove up to the drug store on Chambers street," she related, "and I went in and bought some candy, and saw the druggist was all alone. I went out and told the boys, and they went in and held the druggist up, and in a few minutes were out, and we all drove away.

"Yesterday afternoon, we drove around looking for another place to stick up. We picked out the drug store at Marcus and Natural Bridge, because the store stood off by itself, and looked prosperous. I went in and bought some candy then, and the boys decided to come back after dark.

Her Part in the Holdup.

"About 9:20 we were back there, and I went in and bought an ice cream cone, and saw that the druggist was all alone. I went out and got into the car as the boys got out.

"As I sat there eating the ice cream, I heard a shot in the store, and Clarence and Williams ran out, and Williams helped Clarence in and started to drive east. I saw Clarence was shot pretty badly, and told Williams to stop at a filling station, so that I could telephone for a doctor.

"I went into the filling station to use the phone and I saw Williams jump out of the car and run away. Then I asked a man who was at the filling station to drive my husband to the hospital, as I didn't think I could drive the car."

The man to whom she appealed, William Hunning of 3623 Cora avenue, drove them to the American Hospital, Taylor and Maffitt avenues. Mueller was dead when the hospital was reached. His wound was in the upper part of the head.

Gives Name of Accomplice.

Night-riding policemen were out looking for the wounded robber when word was received from the hospital that a body had been taken there. The police found the young wife sitting by Mueller's body.

Schumann, the druggist, said the killing of Mueller was the second time he had had occasion to commend in defending a drug store. In 1922, when he was staying at night in a store at Boyle and Maryland
